Ford says economy program is good

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford told his Cabinet Friday he believes his economic program is "good — despite what the critics say" and that no one has come up with better ideas, the President's chief spokesman reported.

"Some say it's too tough, some say it's not tough enough — but no one is offering anything better," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen quoted Ford as saying.

Meanwhile, the nation's foremost business leaders forecast that unemployment would rise to 6 1/2 per cent next year but that the country would avoid a serious recession.

The business leaders also predicted that the inflation rate next year would decline to 8.5 per cent, down from about 11 per cent this year. This economic prognosis was released at a Hot Springs, Va., meeting of the Business Council.

On Capitol Hill, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Friday there is no economic justification now for removing federal price controls from oil.

Simon told a congressional panel that President Ford supports continuation of the oil depletion allowance as long as prices are controlled. However, he said Ford will sign a taxrevision bill phasing out the allowance because "on balance it's got a lot more good than bad."

At a White House meeting Friday afternoon, Ford ordered the Cabinet- level group to take up as first priority a survey of government departments and agancies and how they can hold down spending.

The President also scheduled a meeting Saturday with his new 18-member Citizen Action Committee to Fight Inflation.

Ford intends to spell out what he wants Americans to do as part of a voluntary energy conservaton and anti-inflation effort when he appears next Tuesday in Kansas City before a gathering of the Future Farmers of America.

At Friday's Cabinet meeting, the President got a report from Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, on attempts to reduce the number of federal employes. Also, Nessen said, Ford received a report on the Boston school desegregation situation from Atty. Gen. William Saxbe.

Simon, in testimony before the Joint Economic Committee responded to criticism about Ford's inflation- fighting efforts.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., vice chairman of the committee, asked how the administration can justify a program that raises taxes on middle- income families while effectively giving industry additional tax breaks.

Proxmire said the proposed 5 per cent surcharge on the taxes of families with incomes above $15,000 "serves no useful economic purpose. It is not aimed at the kind of problem we have."

But Simon called the surcharge one part of a "balanced, comprehensive and integrated package of economic policy."

Consumers will be the ultimate beneficiary of the increased incentives for business investment, Simon said, because the result of higher investment will be greater production and lower prices.

Eagleton endorses Ford oil plan

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., strongly endorsed President Ford's goal of drastically reducing daily oil imports Friday night, but he warned that similar action may also be needed concerning other imported materials.

The United States may be entering an era of "product diplomacy" in which other countries may use their natural resources as a lever to gain power, Eagleton said at a meeting of the National Asssociation of Recycling Industries. "Beyond any question, the increase in the price of petroleum products, with its enormous multipliers throughout the economy, is the primary force behind today's economy," Eagleton said. "Unless we can come to grips with that problem, we will not whip inflation now or in the next five years."

Eagleton said the United States was entering an era of "product diplomacy" in which the oil tanker and ore hauler might replace the gunboat as an instrument of world power.

Eagleton said the country, which now imports more than 90 per cent of its rubber, cobalt, chrome and asbestos, must exercise its "power not to buy" against possible cartels in producing countries.

Eagleton called for a concerted national resource conservation and recovery program, saying such action was vital if the country was "going to successfully resist extortionist prices and cut-offs of supplies."

Ford slated for Curtis fund-raising breakfast

Ford will be in Kansas City Tuesday night to address some 12,000 FFA members.

The next morning he will speak at a fund-raising breakfast for Missouri Republicans and former Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, the GOP candidate for the Senate.

Ed Stemmler, campaign manager for Curtis, said about 400 persons, including Gov. Christopher S. Bond, are expected to attend the $100-a-plate breakfast at the Muehlebach Hotel at 8:30 a.m.

Ford, making his first trip to Missouri since becoming President in August, will leave Kansas City after the breakfast.

Curtis, who was a colleague of Ford for 18 years in the House, was defeated six years ago when he sought the Senate seat now held by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

He is opposing Eagleton's reelection bid.

Hand picked cotton a thing of the past

By WANDA ATCHLEY

BLOOMFIELD --Most of us who grew up in this area have vivid memories of the long days and sore backs from picking cotton by hand, that is. However, hand-picked cotton today, is almost as much a thing of the past as the Model A, according to area farmers.

Not a single bale of hand-picked cotton has been brought in this year, officials at a Bernie cotton gin said, and only three bales were received last year.

"Hand-picked cotton is a thing of the past," Mrs. Bill Glass of the Vinson community said, when asked if the country store operated by Mr. and Mrs. Glass still keeps cotton sacks in stock.

"We haven't carried cotton sacks in about three years," Mrs. Glass said. "We tried to purchase some two years ago but were unable to do so."

The Glass store is located east and south of Dexter in the heart of Stoddard County's cotton producing area. Mrs. Glass said she knows of no one in the area who still hand picks cotton and that the only cotton sacks available are those purchases several years ago.

A call to other merchants in Stoddard County's cotton producing area turned up the same results. One Charter Oak merchant just laughed when aksed if he still stocks cotton sacks. He said it would be impossible to purchase a sack even if you wanted one.

Contact with several Stoddard County farmers also proved negative. The farmer's said they know of no one who hand picks cotton or plans to do so. They said hand-picked cotton in the county has been virtually non-existent for several years.

So it seems that hand-picked cotton has been replaced by the marvels of modern machinery, and the chore of picking cotton will become just an unpleasant memory.

Butler in custody in Mississippi

NEW MADRID --Dwight Butler, 31, of rural Gideon was placed in the custody of Mississippi state parole authorities Thursday afternoon. He was being held in the Dunklin County jail by the sheriff's department on a Mississippi parole violation warrant.

Mississippi officials had attempted unsuccessfully Sunday to gain Butler's extradition.

Mississippi authoritites had been notified that Butler was available to be returned to Mississippi after a felony charge of possession of stolen property against him was dismissed Sept. 24 by New Madrid Prosecutor Hal E. Hunter, Jr.

After the officers arrived Sunday, however, it was discovered they did not have the proper extradition papers.

Normally documents must be signed by the governor of the state where the suspect is staying, but Butler agreed to waive this right if he violated the parole agreement when he signed the agreement.

Butler, a former inmate of Mississippi and Missouri state prisons, has been in and out of New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin and Stoddard County jails since March, when he was charged with possession of stolen property in New Madrid County and burglary and on March 22 he was ordered held under $1,000 bond for circuit court trial in New Madrid County following a preliminary hearing in which he was accused of possession of 18 bushels of soy beans on March 2 that he allegedly knew had been previously stolen.

Later he was placed under $2,5000 bond in Stoddard County pending trial in circuit court on burglary and stealing charges stemming from the Feg. 22 burglary of Shipman's Rebel Market in Dexter.

Juvenile office remodled

BLOOMFIELD — A remodeling of the juvenile office has been included in the present remodeling under way at the county court house, according to county clerk John Marvin Capps. During the past, Capps said, it has been necessary to use the juvenile office to seat witnesses during Circuit Court trials. He said this has interfered with the work of deputy juvenile officer Melvin "Churn" Williams.

A partition has been installed between the juvenile office and the entrance to the Circuit Courtroom, providing a hall in which witnesses can enter and leave the Circuit Court room without first entering the juvenile office. Capps said the cost of the project was included in a bid submitted for the lowering of the ceilings which is presently under way.

Capps also said that the office equipment for the new county health unit has arrived. He said that the site of the health unit has not yet been determined, but several places are being considered. He said, however, he expects the office to be located in Bloomfield.

Garrison seeks guardian rights

KENNETT — Dr. Norman A. Garrison Jr., charged with the first degree murder of his ex-wife and who was held in contempt of Circuit Court here earlier this year when he failed to comply with a court order regarding the terms of custody of their children and a divorce settlement, filed a petition Wednesday in the office of the clerk of the Dunklin County Circuit Court seeking the court's permission to manage real estate inherited by their three children now residing with him and to sell their fashionable two- story Kennett home.

The petition — filed for Dr. Garrison by the law firm of Schapp, Graham and Reid of Fredericktown — named Don S. Jones, administrator of the estate of Lee Ann Garrison, as the defendant.

The petition alleges that Dr. Garrison — acting in capacity of guardian of the three children his ex-wife bore by him, Lila Annjonette, Norman A. Garrison III and Candice Michelle — has the right under Missouri law to remove the property of the nonresident wards to Mississippi, since the children were Mrs. Garrison's sole heirs.

The petition states that on Sept. 25 in the Chancery Court of Alcorn County, Miss., the court granted letters of guardianship to the physician of his three children by the late Mrs. Garrison, whom he is accused of murdering on Sept. 8.

Dr. Garrison's petition contends that under Missouri law he is entitled to the property in which the nonresident children are entitled and that he be permitted to remove from Missouri to Mississippi the property and sue and recover the same in any court.

The petition asks that the Circuit Court enter an order directing Jones, the public administrator of Dunklin County, to turn over the share of each of the three children's interest in the estate to the children and Dr. Garrison, although the petition acknowledges that the estate is presently being probated in Dunklin County Probate Court.

Dr. Garrison's suit contends that the divorce settlement, to which he agreed to in June, ordered him to convey the house to Lee Ann Garrison for life, with the remainder in fee to vest in the three children. Since she was killed by an unknown assailant on Sept. 8, the petition states, Dr. Garrison contends that his three children are entitled to a fourth of the estate each and that as "foreign guardian," he is entitled to take possession and sell his children's interest in the real estate.

Probate Judge Lawrence Bradley, after reviewing the petition Thursday, said it was his contention the Circuit Court had no jurisdiction in the matter, and appointed Mrs. Flora Todd, an aunt of the late Mrs. Garrison, as the guardian of the four children's estates.

The order of appointment, issued by Judge Bradley, read in part: "The said minors (Elizabeth Kimberlee, 12, Lila Annjonette, 9, Norman A. Garrison III, 5, and Candice Michelle, 2) have an estate within this state which a part thereof is located in Dunklin County; and said minors have an estate within the state which is not derived from a living parent and the best interests of the said minors require letters of guardianship for their estates and it is necessary to preserve said estates that a guardian of said estates be appointed and that Norman A. Garrison Jr., is a nonresident of the state of Missouri and none of the said minors are now 14 years of age, and that Said Flora Todd is a suitable and competent person for said guardianship."

Kimberlee Garrison is now living with Dr. and Mrs. Loys Wilson, under the care of Mrs. Todd, and the other three children remain in Mississippi at Dr. Garrison's home, where they have been since the beginning of summer.

When the divorce was granted in June, the court awarded Mrs. Garrison custody of the children, allowing the doctor to get them for a six- week visitation period in the summer plus shorter visits at other times. The children were not returned at the end of the six-week period by the doctor, because, his attorneys contended, the matter of custody was going to be reopened.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Experience is the dearest thing in the whole world. It cannot be purchased with money, and to secure it a man must spend his whole life.

WHERE YOUR TAX DOLLAR REALLY GOES

When Washington politicians talk of cutting the Federal budget, they invariably aim the scalpel at the Defense Department. However, that's like operating on a benign wart while ignoring a raging cancer in another part of the patient.

The cancer is the nation's social programs which have grown wildly in recent years and failed to give America much of a return on its investment. The Federal budget for the current fiscal year, which tops $300 billion for the first time, includes $100 billion for income security programs. That's more than double the amount spent on these programs in 1969.

Consider further: In 1968, President Johnson's last budget year, the government obligated $75.6 billion for defense and military assistance programs. The total requested by former President Nixon for this year is $92.6 billion, which, because of inflation, is actually a decrease from 1968.

In comparison, the amount spent by Federal, State and local governments for domestic social and economic programs in 1966 was $123 billion. The comparable amount in 1976 will be just over $400 billion. In other words, these programs during the last 10 years have been increasing at an average annual rate of 12.6 per cent — more than twice as fast as the growth of the GNP, which provides the tax base to pay for them.

Can there be any doubt where the real impetus to inflationary government spending is originating?

What is even more disturbing about this ruinous trend is the uneasy feeling that too many of those hard- earned tax dollars are going to those who don't deserve them. The Secretary of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare earlier this year reported that four out of every ten families receiving funds from the nation's largest welfare program were found to be either ineligible or paid incorrectly. Secretary Caspar Weinberger said that "national scandal" alone is costing taxpayers more than $1 billion annually. How many similar scandals are buried in government files?

We are by nature a generous people. None of us would deny to the truly needy our helping hand if it were at all possible to extend it. But none of us wants to feed a welfare cheater.

Next time someone talks about where those tax dollars are being wasted, do us all a favor and set him straight.

COMMUNIST CUBA: A SOVIET SATELLITE

Now we are being told that most Latin- American diplomats in Washington are now convinced that the U. S. will move to re-establish diplomatic relations with Cuba after the November elections.

Yet the American Security Council's report shows that Communist Cuba is at present more a Soviet satellite than at any time before, economically, culturally, politically and militarily.

It is now predicted in Havana that before long there will be the official announcement of Communist Cuba's cooperation with or perhaps fully joining in the Warsaw Pact, the military alliance of Communist Eastern Europe. This prediction was given credibility by the presence of a Soviet naval squadron, under the command of Rear Admiral Yuri Ivanovich Mozarov, in Havana harbor while the Soviet controlled Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (CMEA) were in session there. This was the twelfth Soviet naval squadron to visit Communist Cuba since the famous meeting between the then Special Presidential Adviser on National Security, Dr. Henry Kissinger, and Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet Minister of Foreign Affairs, which was supposed to deal with the issue Cienfuegos on the southern coast of Communist Cuba.

Altogether some twenty-two Soviet cruisers and destroyers have visited Cuba, plus 15 submarines, a number the operation of a new and powerful Cuban radar station at La Bajada, in the western - most part of Cuba, was inaugurated. This radar station has a range of some 400 miles and reaches the American coasts on the Gulf of Mexico.

Also, huge Soviet "Bear" bombers continue to fly from their bases in Europe to airfields in Communist Cuba and back, along the Atlantic Coast of the U. S.

The Institute of Nuclear Physics at Managua has been expanded in recent years to cover most of the old National Military Academy, and since 1969 some 700 Soviet technicians and guards have been working at the Institute. Now Canada has offered the Castro regime some equipment for the Nuclear Institute.

Military technicians sent by the Soviet Union are in charge of all units of the Cuban Armed Forces, as supervisors, advisers, or instructors. Their number is estimated to be around 22,000 men. The Cuban sugar industry is also directed by some 400 Soviet technicians.

Prof. C. Mesa-Lago of the University of Pittsburgh, the author of some of the most important books about the Castro regime, had an article on Communist Cuba in the June issue of the magazine "Vision," published simultaneously in the U. S. and Mexico, in which he said that the Soviet Union has given Communist Cuba the advanced MIG-23, to be flown by Soviet trained Cuban pilots, the first time anybody had disclosed in print that there are MIG-23s in Communist Cuba.

Appearing on a television program, Moshe Dayan stated there were 3,000 Cubans (Pilots, artillerymen, missilemen, etc.) fighting for Syria against Israel. The Pentagon then issued a statement the following day to the effect that there were "only between 100 and 500 Cubans fighting for Syria."

On the home front here, seven contingents of the so-called "Venceremos" Brigade of American young leftists have gone to Communist Cuba since December 1969, the last group on April 1974. Its recruits have just come back after a circuitous trip to Havan, Bridgeport (Barbados), New York City. Altogether some 2,300 recruits of the Venceremos "Brigade" have gone to Communist Cuba for indoctrination, training, contacts and resources. Some of the earlier recruits have already worked with the Weathermen, the Symbionese Liberation Army, and other terrorists groups.

So except for a few bleeding hearts, we see no reason to resume relations with Castro's communist utopia-- especially since Communist Cuba wants mostly is U. S. trade and aid.

YOUR 2000% TAX HIKE

Perhaps Standard readers are getting tired of our constant harping on federal deficit spending and high taxes, but we believe the crux of inflation is excessive government spending. Here are the indisputable facts in the case:

In 1929 the entire federal budget came to less than $3 billion. That works out at an incredible 10,000 per cent increase in federal spending over the last 40 years.

The almost straight-up climb occurred during a period when the nation's population was growing from 120 million to about 210 million, an increase of about 75 per cent.

That means federal spending has been escalating up to $300 billion a year at a pace 130 times faster than the population growth.

The greater part of the increase has occurred since the end of World War II. In 1947, for example, the federal budget stood at $29.8 billion. In 1972 it was $250 billion. Hence, in the 25 years from Harry Truman to Richard Nixon, the budget jumped up more than 800 per cent.

State and local spending, meanwhile, took a corresponding upward swing -- from less than $20 billion in 1948 to more than $160 billion in 1972.

In terms of taxes to pay Uncle Sam's bills, the per capital federal tax burden was $64 back in 1932. But by 1972 it had shot up to $1,502 -- a hike of more than 2000 per cent.

Again, the pace upward was steep after World War II. In 1959 the per capita tax load was only $630. So it has nearly tripled from Dwight D. Eisenhower to the end of the Nixon administration.

Small wonder that national opinion polls show ever-increasing numbers of Americans favor putting the brakes on government spending and of course on taxes as well.

One poll showed that 70 per cent of respondents even looked with some favor on the idea of tax revolt.

We have asked for, and got, too many services from government. Too much of this we could have done for ourselves, we now leave to bureaucrats and politicians. Inflations will never ease until we stop the free- loading and begging.

SUPERMEN HAVE FEELINGS, TOO

WASHINGTON — For several years now, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been portrayed in magazines and books as Superman. Whenever there was trouble in the world, Henry would dash into a phone booth near the White House, change into his blue bodystoking costume and fly off to settle the matter.

It came as a shock the other day to hear Henry admit he was no longer Superman.

I was passing the phone booth and I saw Henry inside. "Good," I said to myself, "Henry's going to settle the oil crisis." I waited to see him fly out of the booth on his mission, but he just remained there.

"Henry," I finally said anxiously, "why haven't you changed into your costume?"

"I'm not going to be Superman any more," Henry said. "I'm sick and tired of working miracles."

"But, Henry, if you won't be Superman, what will we all do?"

"That's not my problem. Being Superman means you have to travel a lot. I want to spend more time with Nancy."

"I can appreciate that," I told him, "but you have an image to uphold. The media made you what you are today. You just can't go into a phone booth and say you're not coming out."

"Why should I come out?" Henry replied. "The House is picking on me; the Senate is picking on me; the press is picking on me. You know Supermen have feelings, too."

"You can't pay attention to criticism, Henry. If everyone loved you, you wouldn't be doing your job."

"Everyone (ital) used (unital) to love me," he said.

"Yes, but that's because they didn't like Nixon. You always looked so much better compared to him. Once he resigned, you were more or less on your own, and some people decided they loved you and some people decided they didn't."

"I think Superman should be loved by (ital) everybody (unital)," Henry said. "I don't mind criticism, What I don't like is unfair criticism."

"Nobody likes unfair criticism," I told him.

"I'm the first one to admit," he added, "that I'm not perfect. What I don't like is other people telling me I'm not perfect."

"Nobody likes to be told they're not perfect, Henry. The thing to do is to rise above it and prove they're wrong. Now get into that silly costume and fly off to the Middle East and straighten out our problems."

"I'm not going to do it unless I have assurance that people will stop picking on me."

"You have my word, Henry. I'll make sure that there is not one line in the newspapers questioning any of your past actions."

Henry started taking off his pants.

"Okay," he said, "I'll do it one more time. But if I hear any squawks from anybody about what I did, it's the last time I go into this phone booth."

"I don't know if I ever told you this, Henry," I said, "but you have lovely legs."

"Don't try to change the subject," he said as he took off his shoes and socks. This is everybody's last chance. If they don't like what I'm doing, let them get another Superman."

"They'll like it, Henry," I assured him. "They'll like it."

And so last Tuesday as people looked up into the sky they saw a weird object. One person said "It's a bird"; another person said "It's a plane," and then everyone cried out at once "NO, IT'S KISSINGER!" And we all slept better that night.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: No recession in junkets

WASHINGTON -- Each year, members of Congress explore the world, riding elephants in Ceylon, viewing art in Sweden, fingering chopsticks in China, poking their legislative noses into faraway places from the girlie shows of Paris to the palaces of Riyadh.

As part of our watch on waste, we have reported how these congressional travelers have squandered the taxpayers' money on vacations in official guise. Congressional junkets cost the taxpayers an estimated $1 million a year, which is a lot of moola to spend on legislators who preach austerity for everyone else.

But the junkets that cost the taxpayers nothing, we have discovered, may wind up as the most expensive of all. Dozens of legislators take trips overseas at the expense of foreign governments. They are lavished with hospitality by their friendly foreign hosts. Then the touring lawmakers return to Capitol Hill to vote for foreign aid, sugar quotas and other benefits for the host governments.

Not only is it poor economics for our lawmakers to repay hospitality with foreign aid, but it is unconstitutional for them to accept the hospitality in the first place.

Our founding fathers, fearful that some federal officials might sell out their country for foreign gratuities, added a special clause to the Constitution. This prohibits them from taking any "emolument ... of any kind whatever from any King, Prince or foreign state."

Yet the tourists from Capitol Hill have ignored the Constitution, not to mention the 1966 Foreign Gifts Act, by accepting illegal trips at the expense of foreign governments. Here are a few we have uncovered:

House Agriculture Chairman Bob Poage led still another congressional expedition to Brazil. The Brazilian government, looking for bigger sugar quotas, picked up the travel bills. Those who accompanied Paoge on the free trip were Congressmen Frank Stubblefield, D-Ky., William Wampler, R-Va., George Goodling, R-Pa., John Zwach, R-Minn., Ed Jones, D-Tenn., Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., and Jerry Litton, D-Mo.

Mainland China has opened the bamboo curtain to a number of Marco Polos from Capitol Hill. Their travel expenses inside China have been paid by the Mao Tse-tung government. Among those who have accepted a free tour of China are Senators J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., John Sparkman, D-Ala., Gale McGee, D-Wyo., Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., Robert Griffin, R-Mich., and Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii; also Congressmen Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., John McFall, D-Calif., Jerry Pettis, R-Calif., Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., William Maillard, R-Calif., William Broomfield, R-Mich., and Barbara Jordan, D-Tex.

The other China, governed by Chiang Kai-shek,, has also rolled out the redcrpet for congressional tourists. Congressmen Bob McClory, R-Ill., Bob Leggett, D- Calif., and Floyd Spence, R-S.C., were flown to Taiwan under the auspices of the Chinese Nationalist government. The bills were picked up, strictly speaking, by a Chinese foundation. A dozen staff members from Capitol HIll were also treated to a free Taiwan vacation. Ralph Vandervort, a Senate Space Committee staffer, explained to us that the trip was "kind of a public relations thing" by the Chiang Kai-shek regime.

Some three dozen Congressmen and their aides, led by House Democratic leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, flew en masse to both Taiwan and South Korea, courtesy of those governments. So heavy was the congressional tourist traffic in Taiwan that U.S. Ambassador Walter McConaughy cabled plaintively: "This influx of visitors ... is straining embassy resources to the full."

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., as we have previously reported, traveled to Iran, Pakistan, Ceylon, Indonesia and New Zealand with his wife and daughter. In violation of the Constitution, most of Hartke's expenses were footed by the host governments. The U.S. embassy in Ceylon was quietly alerted by the State Department that the Hartkes had "side interests idelphant ride, sightseeing tour and gem shopping."

Many individual members of Congress have seen the world as the guests of foreign governments. Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., took a free excursion to Sweden to visit an art exhibit. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, flew to the Middle East at the expense of the Kuwaiti government and came back supporting the Arabs. Even Attorney General William Saxbe, while he was a Senator from Ohio, took a three- week tour of Bangladesh, paid for in part by that government.

Footnote: Without exception, the congressional travelers told us they were unaware of the prohibition on accepting plane fares and hotel accomodations paid for by foreign governments.

WASHINGTON — This is a good society, after all. Observe, please, who took personal insult from the President's recommendation of a 5 per cent tax surcharge on annual incomes over $15,000 per family. The resentment ricocheted from New York and San Francisco street cleaners to the more elitist building and construction trades workers; from many police forces to truck drivers; from municipal employes to auto workers.

This is a high- wage society. It's going higher. So will prices. And nearly everyone overlooks the fact that the national welfare (relief) bill now tops $40 billion annually. And 1974 will zoom out on truly high wage wins by coal- diggers, aerospace employes, airline pilots and oil workers. The latter now are really gung-ho. What easier pickings these days than the oil companies?

The price picture has a Dorian Gray grimness about it too. Price- makers are anticipating a wild union bargaining in 1975-- especially during the early months. There will be some 3,500 construction contracts up for renegotiation, steep cost- of- living clause increases and wage- reopeners. Bill Usery, Federal Mediation chief, tells me that the unions will be going for at least 10 and 12 per cent money increases for starters. Fringes will be extra.

There's not much Jerry Ford has with which to hold the line. So as an old center he passed the ball to Congress which these days is less loaded with heavyweights than usual. It will do very little for months.

He talked of his Council on Wage and Price Stability. Well, the day after he addressed the Congress, this council had an almost empty eight- room suite in the new Executive Office Building. Rattling around in it were its executive director, pragmatist Al Rees, former head of Princeton's economics department, and a deputy director, a public relations man and a secretary. Prof. Rees was searching for lawyers, economists and researchers.

The 53- year- old Rees is a sanguine, ofttimes enthusiastic, practical economist. Rare, indeed. But he's fighting this war with bows and arrows -- without a quiver. His is the awesome assignment -- get the featherbedding out of government, labor and industry. Remove all restrictions. This would take a combination of Roosevelt, Truman, Churchill and Attilla the Hun.

Prof. Rees now is keeping his eye on the scarcity and high price of anti- freeze, the coal industry collective bargaining, and the threat of airline pilots to strike if they don't make spectacular gains. He can't interfere in the nine negotiations. And that's that.

Arnold Miller's coal diggers will win very handsome wage-fringe increases. What if these are added to the current $20 to $25 a ton coal price and passed on to the private and industrial consumers? What if the utilities have to pay so much more?

Then Prof. Rees, with an assist from the Council of Economic Advisers, estimates the impact on inflation -- and passes it on to the President. Well, at least to his shop foreman, L. William Seidman, Mr. Ford's bright keeper of all domestic accounts. Sort of economic czar.

Bill Seidman is the man to watch. He's a fine snorkeler, skier, jogger, push-up chap. He knows his way around the intricate maze of corporation accounting. Certainly he knows where some of Manhattan's best East Side restaurants are (not far from his big town apartment).

But he's new to Washington's infighting, the frustrations of group encounters with the dug-in, ever kingdom- conscious Washington bureaucracy.

Neither he nor Jerry Ford really knows the labor movement -- though the President has had some good talks with labor chief George Meany. Actually, the President has been saved from considerable clobbering by the labor chiefs only because of the civil war inside the Democratic party. Labor's high command -- insiders say -- just won't go along with a new politics Democratic presidential candidate in 1976. So why cut oneself off from the White House now? Why knock "Jerry? ... Rocky's our man, isn't he? And he'll be Vice President. So let's cool it for a while."

Thus, though the President's speech turned them off, at least it didn't turn them on -- loudly. Privately, union leaders said they were sharply disappointed.

Labor's rank and file will not be that silent. Most of them are for letting the other fellows make the sacrifices. Just watch coming negotiations. For the moment there's nothing to stop them from pushing for 12 to 15 per cent annual wage increases. Nor the price-makers, either.

Just about all Prof. Rees can do is to get into off- the-record discussions with labor and business leaders in an attempt to head off higher inflationary wages and prices. Then he must go to the President via Seidman. Then, if permitted, Dr. Rees can hold public hearings to shame the pushers- up of wages and prices into some sort of rollback, the chances for which are as good as a comeback by Bob Haldeman.

So the society is good -- and inflated. It will continue inflating. Without congressional help there's little President Ford can do. And it's sad to say but if you knew many of them as I do, you'd know the congressional power brokers aren't about to help a Republican President even if he is a decent fellow who would rather be right than President.

Settling America

This work, called "Peaceable Kingdom" by Edward Hicks, portrays correctly what the early settlers of America found--a land that was empty but also was inhabitated by savages, some friendly, some otherwise. Painting is from Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art collection.

When Englishmen first began to scent opportunity in America, they were told two controdictory "facts" about the new land. They were told, on the one hand, that it was a "desert," a "waste firmament." They were told, at the same time, that "savages" lived there. For Englishmen and Anglo-Americans both statements remained correct for centuries: America was both empty (an opportunity) and filled (with problems).

America's apparent emptiness can be explained by considering English perspectives at that time. The native Indians were not numerous by European standards, especially not in comparison to the enormous expanse of territory they lived in. What we would call a relatively low density of population, Englishmen were then perfectly justified in perceiving as "few."

More importantly, Englishmen thought the Indians had no "settled habitations." What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put.

Initially, therefore, Englishmen had no notion of exterminating the native peoples, nor even of sweeping them aside; even though people already lived in America, Englishmen thought, such an immense land had plenty of room for more.

The warped perception that caused the English to see Indians as unsettled wanderers was in large measure a function of how they saw society at home. The severe, almost catastrophic dislocations which accompanied the English Reformation and Henry VIII's fluctuating tempers had resulted in large numbers of displaced persons.

Thrown off the land onto English countryside and villages, they became the "wandering beggars" to whom Kakluyt, the "trumpet" of American colonization, had referred in his "Discourse Concerning Western Planting."

Social dislocation and what we would call "underemployment problems" persuaded many Englishmen that England was overpopulated in general and especially overpopulated by "undesirables." Given the assumptions of the day, America was seen not as a dumping ground for these undesirables (as Australia was to seem much later) but as an empty and fertile ground for the settlement, employment, and hence moral and social reformation of the offscourings of English society.

At the same time, as the Protestant Reformation took increasing hold on English society, certain religious fringe groups came to think of America as a refuge from a mounting threat of persecution. They were not immune, any more than Englishmen generally, to the scent of opportunity which by the early 1600s was so very much in the air. The various streams of attraction to America and propulsion from England were thoroughly mixed.

In retrospect, the early "great migration". (1620-1650) of the English to America is particularly striking in terms of the number and variety of people and motivations involved. Relative to the population of Europe, probably more persons left Europe for the New World during those decades than at any time before or since.

The English went principally to three areas: the eastern Caribbean (Barbados and the few small Leeward Islands), the Chesapeake Bay (Virginia and Maryland), and eastern New England (the Massachusetts Bay and the Plymouth Colony.)

Some went against their will, especially the Scots and Irish, victim- prisoners of the English Civil Wars, who migrated to the West Indies. Many went for better fortunes and better times: such people probably predominated in the Chesapeake area and were certainly prevalent everywhere else. Some went in the hope of fulfilling the faith we describe as religious, and while it would be right to ascribe "religion" as the predominating motive of those who came to New England, it would be radically incorrect to assign thereby a lack of otherworldly faith to those not fortunate enough to have joined God's special project there.

However sure various breeds of Englishmen were about God's intentions, the various English communities in America turned out to be different sorts of places. In the island, sugar and the slave labor it seemed to require took over almost totally.

The Chesapeake settlements, with a diffuse population, spilled all over the eastern, watered portions of the area. After almost being wiped out by the native inhabitants, the colonists eventually succeeded in establishing a populous but sparsely settled community in Virginia, devoid of real villages and devoted mainly to staple agriculture. (They hunted but mainly they farmed; ironically they went, unintentionally, part way toward reproducing the Indian woodland cultures their forebears had disliked.) Only in New England (and this development was to persist for a very long time) did the English manage to reproduce in the New World what they thought valuable, as a social mode, in the Old.

The Pilgrims in Plymouth and the Puritans in Massachusetts have long attracted attention because they were so articulate about their own goals.

Though the Puritans were a much larger, wealthier, and better educated group, they shared with the Pilgrims a powerful sense of mission. In England, their own low-church, modified- Calvinist Protestantism seemed to be on the defensive against the forces of the Crown, the closely allied Church of England, and, not least, the numerous legions of ungodliness.

Determined that their "true religion" and the Lord's will should prevail in the wilderness, they set about to establish "Bible Commonwealths" where families, society, the polity, and the churches would all be harmoniously ordered according to God's Word.

All this required inner discipline and inevitably (given their view of the essential nature of man) outer discipline as well. They sternly punished lying, drunkenness, fornication and all the myriad other sins to which men and women, and even children, seemed so wickedly inclined.

They enforced orthodoxy and discipline in the churches; they harried out religious dissenters and went so far as to hang two Quakers. The Puritans were indeed pious, intolerant moralists, but they were not prudes. They punished sexual offenses but they were not in the least surprised by them.

They wore colorful clothing, suitable, of course, to their social stations. When Harvard College thought it necessary to limit drinking at commencement, the authorities restricted degree-takers to three gallons of wine per man.

Whether the Puritans succeeded or failed in their mission is a matter of definition and they were themselves ambivalent on the matter. Even as they railed at the prevalence of wickedness among them and at the decline of true piety, they remained acutely conscious that their society and churches were superior to England's.

While they were keenly aware of men's tendency to disperse to new, empty lands, they prided themselves on their regulated pattern of settlement, ordered town by ordered town. They were, indeed, the most realist of utopians.

They expected to establish a New Israel in the wilderness, and they demanded godly thoughts and behavior of its members; at the same time they knew that Adam's fall from grace meant that men were inherently and perversely wicked.

People who demand perfection yet do not expect to achieve it are inevitably condemned to ambivalence about the results.

There were other such experiments in America, but with major differences. The most notable and undeniably successful was Pennsylvania. There William Penn and his fellow Quakers (whom the Puritans hated, partly because they had so much in common) deliberately founded a colony that would welcome all varieties of Protestants.

The idea was a relatively new one, but it led quite directly, as things turned out, to populouness and prosperity even beyond the dreams of the founders. It led also to an even greater novelty- ethnic diversity, a development of such critical importance in all the colonies that it deserves separate attention in another lecture.

'Government should assume financing'

JEFFERSON CITY-- A special Senate Committee on Welfare has recommended that the federal government assume full financing of the aid to dependent children program.

At the same time, the committee headed by Sen. Robert A. Young, D- St. Ann, came up with a long list of recommended laws and suggestions for the Senate Appropriations Committee when it gets to consideration of the welfare budget-- now the Division of Family Services.

"We are hopeful," Young said, "that this report— based on a series of hearings around the state— will lead to some meaningful legislation to take care of the many complaints we heard about the present system.

"We have also set out some findings which we hope will give the Appropriations Committee a better insight into the operations of this department.

"It seems to me, after these hearings, that our legislature should be reviewing big programs like this on an annual basis to make sure we're getting value received for our tax dollars."

One recommended law would eliminate the present property maximum of $10,500 for ADC families and provide instead a "homestead exemption" for the ADC and general relief programs-- the same system used for the old age assistance, the blind and the disabled programs under the new federal supplemental security income program.

Also recommended was a strong fraud law and enough money for the attorney general to hire staff members to enforce it.

Other recommendations for state legislation included:

Make applicants ineligible for ADC where stepparents are financially able to provide support, thus cutting ADC rolls.

Include the natural father in the ADC unemployed parent program.

Set up a fund to pay for vocational job training for those on ADC, including money for day care of children while parents are in training.

The committee suggested that the Appropriations Committee review many administrative practices, including duplication of staffing between income maintenance and family services and reduction of eligibility and overpayment error to not more than 8 per cent.

Reduction of paper work and staff time was recommended along with study of possible use of a "picture identification service card" to show eligibility and services authorized.

Reduction of the number of required forms, more staff training, greater courtesy by employes, more rapid handling of correspondence, a study of the possible use of computers and the possibility of mailing food stamp coupons and assistance checks at the same time were also suggested.

The committee got a lot of complaints about slow pay for medical and dental services and suggested the whole vendor fee schedule be reviewed.

"If savings accrue from recommendations," the report said, "consideration should be given to increasing individual grants."

Murray Lane Baptist Church is setting

Miss Holsinger, Syre wed

Murray Lane Baptist Church was the setting at 7 p.m. Sept. 20 when marriage vows were exchanged between Karen Sue Holsinger and David Eugene Syre. The Rev. Wade Paris officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holsinger, 908 Arlington Road, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Syre of Bertrand.

The theme song from "Love Story" set the mood as family members were ushered into the candlelit church and pews adorned with bows.

Billie Fair was organist, and Greta Davis sang, "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor- length gown of white velvet featuring pearl and lace trimming around the neckline and empire waist. The tapered sleeves were also accented with pearl and lace trimmcomplemented by a Juliet cap which held a three-tiered fingertip- length veil edged with lace.

Sheila Hunt of East Prairie, aunt of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Holsinger, sister of the bride, and Tammy Schaffer of Sikeston.

They wore floor- length dresses of polyester crepe. The gowns featured empire waistlines, high necklines and long sleeves. Mrs. Hunt's dress was blue with tiny white roses, while the bridesmaids wore mint green and yellow gowns with tiny roses.

Dave Albersom of Memphis, Tenn., was best man. Groomsmen were Perry Hold of Sikeston and Keith Holsinger, brother of the bride, of Fort Campbell, Ky.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth and held a three-tiered white cake adorned with a miniature bride and groom. Two candles and a flower arrangement in a heirloom honeydish, which belonged to the bride's great-great- grandmother, accented the table.

Serving the cake was Lori Palm of Sikeston. Patricia Syre of Bertrand, sister of the groom, attended the punch bowl.

Ann Landers

Children don't like dad's choice

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 17 and my sister is 12. We need your help desperately.

Our father has been secretly dating another woman off and on for several years. Mom knew about it and broke them up on two occasions.

Last January Mom died. Dad started to date this woman almost immediately. Sometimes he doesn't come home at night and we know he is with her.

It looks like they are going to be married. This is very hard for us to take because we know how much heartache she caused our mom. The woman is divorced and has two children. There are four of us. (We have two younger brothers.)

My sister and I think that if the ten of us try to live under one roof it will be a disaster. We are unable to hide our true feelings for this woman and don't know what to do. Are we wrong in feeling this way? -- From Chicago

Dear Chicago: I have no idea what your father's marriage was like, and neither do you. I am not condoning his behavior, but I am suggesting that there might have been some factors you kids didn't know about.

If your dad does marry this woman please do your darnedest to create an atmosphere of acceptance and forgiveness. Remember -- "Hate the sin, but love the sinner."

Dear Ann Landers: It's taken me until now to simmer down after reading the letter from the young man who wanted to picket the doctor's office because he was sent a bill for $40 after removing a plantar's wart.

I have been a medical assistant's secretary for nearly three years and I am sick of hearing complaints like this. First of all, a doctor is a professional man who has studied, worked and sacrificed many precious hours of leisure that many of us take for granted.

My boss is at the hospital at 6 a.m. to make his rounds. He pinch hits for other doctors, does clinic work, attends meetings and is in his office at 12:30 to see patients.

His bills are reasonable, yet I must spend hours sending out "reminders" and telephoning patients about long- overdue remittances. It's strange how they turn from sick and desperate people to deadbeats. They MUST see the doctor at once because they are dying! When they get well they'd rather have died than pay their bill.

Thanks for listening, Ann. I feel better now. -- Teed Off

Dear T.D.: I hope the kid who had the plantar's wart sees your letter. And for the record, the price was NOT high. If the job was well done and the wart was removed permanently, he got a bargain.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 19-year- old son is stationed about 600 miles from home. He phones collect every Sunday, and I live for those phone calls. I told him before he left to call us collect, in fact, I insisted on it.

Whenever his collect calls come my husband becomes annoyed. He says the boy should cut down on something else and pay for the calls himself if he wants to talk to us.

I should add, this lad sends his younger sister (who is handicapped) $10 a month, so you can see he is not an insensitive person. Please give us your opinion, Ann. Should he call collect or not? -- A Mother

Dear Mother: Thousands of parents whose sons wore the uniform would give anything to hear their voices again, but they never will. Hand this column to your husband.

This pair of St. Louis Cardinals may be a deciding factor in the football game Sunday at Busch Stadium. Jim Bakken (kicking ball) and Roger Wehrli (22) will be teaming up to try to beat the Dallas Cowboys in their toughest test this season. The Cardinals lead the Eastern Division with a 4- 0 record.

Bulldogs lose fifth

KENNETT——For the tenth time in a row the Sikeston Bulldogs ended up on the short end of the final score. This time the successful opponents were the Kennett Indians, who triumphed 19-0, and dropped the Bulldog record to 0-5. Kennett was the last team the Bulldogs were able to defeat, and that SHS victory was one long year ago.

First string tailback Richy Moore, the leading Indian ballcarrier on the year, was unable to play and Kennett was in what appeared to be offensive trouble. The scouting report on the Indians indicated they passed well, and it was assumed that the hosts would rely mostly on the strong right arm of quarterback Robert Roundtree. If Kennett coach Bill Arment had know that Roundtree was going to complete just three of 11 passes before the game started, he might have just conceded the contest. Its a good thing he didn't. An unheralded tailback with the unimposing dimensions of 5 foot-7, 145 pounds, and bearing number 10 made the night a long one for the crimson and white Bulldogs. Don Downing, a second-string halfback, ran for 168 yeards and score and fipped a halfback option toss to Eddio Cross for another one to give Kennett the win that wasn't even as close as the final score indicated. The Indians used their superior strength and football sense to control the ball and, for the most part, completely stymie the hapless Bulldog offense.

A long punt return by Dowling set up the first Dog score, which came on an 11-yard scamper, by the hard-running back. Larry Johnson, who missed two field goal attempts--one a 55-yarder--and two extra points, was good on this conversion and the Indians had all the points they were to need.

A Tom DeRoush fumble, surprisingly the only fumble of the night for the slick-fingered Bulldogs, set up the second Kennett score two-thirds of the way through the third period. After the wide sweeps by the supposedly slow Kennett runners had worked all night, the Bulldogs finally came up to head off Dowling who cooly tossed the ball to Cross. He appeared to have trapped the ball in the endzone, but the referees saw the play differently.

The final Indian score came when Indian defensive back Ricky Rebstock picked off an errant Luber ariel and returned it to the S-11, from where 5-foot-8, 220-pound Ricky Limbaugh bulled it over two plays later to run the final score to 19-0.

It was a long game, delayed by 23 penalties. It was hard or whether neither team was exactly playing inspired football. The general impression was that the second term would be more accurate.

Once again it was a case of the defense putting two much pressure on a defence that is finally beginning to crack. There was inspiring play from underclassmen Fred Gilliland, Rob Neuman and Juakene Dumas, but it was way too little to stem the tide against the obviously superior Indian players. The monentum which the Bulldogs so sorely needed once again escaped the Bulldogs and they risk further the slipping in to a defeastist attitude.

Tigers win

Cape Central opened the scoring in the first quarter on a one- yard run by Tom Williams and Gessent added the extra point and Cape led 7-0.

After the Tigers defense held the Indians scoreless Gessent sent a 21-yard field goal through the uprights for a 10-0 lead which held up through the remainder of the first half.

David Gross didn't waste any time scoring in the second half for the Tigers as the fleet back broke through the Jackson defensive setup for a 95-yard kickoff return. Brent Chenowetch ran for the two extra points and Cape had an 18-0 lead.

Jackson scored their only points on the night as Bob Lichtenegger ran in from the five yard line. Kent Gibb caught a pass from Terry Holmes for the two extra points.

Poplar Bluff traveled to St. Louis and defeated Northwest 7-6. John Casey Poplar Bluff's starting quarterback who has played every game since his freshmen year stayed home with mono. Northwests starting quarterback Jim Chote was unable to play. Both teams played with their second team quarterbacks.

With twenty-five seconds remaining in the second quarter Northwest's Matt Creath passed eight yards to Mike Barton for the score. Point after missed.

With six remaining in the ballgame Bluff's Mike Moss scored on a four yard run. Chris Shrum kicked the point after. The Mules held on to win 7-0.

The Charleston Blue Jays advanced their record to four wins and one loss Friday night defeating the Cairo Pistols 39-0 in a non-conference ball game.

Both teams were fairly balanced in the first period as neither team was able to score.

In the middle of the second quarter the Cairo center snapped the ball out of the end zone for a two point safety. Later in the quarter Ralph Mitchell ran 45 yards for the first touchdown of the game and Kevin Hess kicked the extra point following. The Blue Jay's Charlie McCluney tackled the Cairo quarterback in the end zone for the second safety of the quarter.

In the final seconds of the third quarter, quarterback Keith Quertermous threw a 47 yard pass to Clint Clark to return to the locker room with an 18-0 lead at the half.

In the third quarter reserve quarterback Hess threw a 56 yard pass to Jon McMikle for another Charleston touchdown. Hess provided the extra point.

With 5:24 left in the third quarter Hess threw another aerial, this time to Rick Smoot for a 58 yard touchdown. Hess kicked the extra point.

Freshmen lose

KENNETT --The Sikeston Bulldogs freshmen took their second loss of the season against one win and a tie here Thursday night as the Kennett freshmen won 22 -8.

The Bulldogs couldn't contain the bigger Indians of defense and were unable to mount any kind of consistant offense.

After a scoreless first quarter the Indians scored on a 10 yard run into the end zone and added the two extra points for an 8 -0 lead.

Kennett was leading 8 -0 in the third period and ran to the Sikeston nine yard for a first and goal but Sikeston held and took over. On the first play from scrimmage the ball was fumbled and Kennett recovered in the endzone for a touchdown and added two extra points for a 16 -0 lead.

Kennett added their final TD in the fourth period on a six yard run and led 22 -0 before Sikeston was able to score.

With a minute left in the game Mark DeWitt passed to Linzie Lambert for 25 yards and a touchdown. Jay Kruger ran for the two extra points.

Hayti rolls over Chaffee

The Hayti Indians didn't let the Chaffee Red Devil's victory over Illmo-Scott City last week frighten them one bit, as the Indians scored in every quarter and defeated the Red Devils 40-6.

Hayti's Danny White scored three touchdowns and gained 165 yards rushing. Eddie Martin Hayti's other back rushed for 104 yards. The Indians rushed for 330 yards.

In the first quarter the Indians mounted a 65 yard drive and scored with White on a nine yard run up the middle. Eddie Martin ran for a two point conversion. Chaffee mounted a fifty yard drive and scored on a three yard run. Point after missed.

In the second quarter White again scored on a fifteen yard run off tackle. Eddie Martin made the two point conversion. White was denied a score late in the second quarter when he fumbled at the one and Chaffee recovered in the end zone. Half Hayti 16- Chaffee 6.

In the third quarter Indian Safety Wayne Robinson intercepted a Red Devil pass and returned it sixty yards for the score. Quarterback Jimmy Morgan passed to End Alex Clinton for the Point after. Danny White blocked a Chaffee punt and returned it fifteen yards to score. Patrick Thomas ran for a two point conversion.

In the fourth quarter Hayti's Don Flowers scored on a twenty- eight yard run up the middle. Thomas again ran the extra point over to give the Hayti Indians a 40 to 6 victory.

The Illmo-Scott City Rams defeated the Caruthersville Tigers 23-10 in a strong, second quarter comeback Friday night in a non-conference game.

Scott Wright started the Ram attack early in the first quarter on a 23 yard run that resulted in a 6-0 lead. Scott Amick passed for the two point conversion following Wrights run to lead 8-0.

Caruthersville booted a nine yard field goal in the second period to trail 8-3 at the half.

The Tiger's Taylor sprinted 22 yards in the middle of the third period to take a 10-8 lead.

Scott City's Mark Short plunged one yard in the fourth period for a touchdown and the lead. Ram quarterback Terry Blattel, threw to Steve Hanchen for the two point conversion. Short repeated his earlier feat with another one yard plunge with Dave Heuring kicking the extra point.

Short ended the night with 14 carries for 57 yards.

John Welsh sneaked across the goal for two touchdowns and two extra points to lead the Malden Greenwave past the Portageville Bulldogs 20-0 in a Southern Division conference game at Malden Friday night. The win game the Greenwave a 2-0 conference slate and 3-2 overall this season.

Welsh scored his first TD in the first quarter after the Greenwave had marched to the Bulldog one yard line. The big quarterback plunged into the endzone for the two extra points to give Malden an 8-0 lead which held up the rest of the way.

The two teams played fine defense the rest of the first half but tailback Nicky Arnold broke loose by the aid of blocks by Kenny Stegall, Jeff Barker, Mark Jones and Mike Broyles, for a 30 yard touchdown. The extra point was missed and the score was 14-0.

The final TD of the game came as Welsh sneaked into the endzone from three yards out.

Deer collision time

COLUMBIA --The 55-mile -per -hour speed limit saves lives. If you don't believe it, ask any deer...

Ollie Torgerson and Wayne Porath, deer biologists for the Department of Conservation, have figures showing that the slower speed cut deer deaths last year and they expect an even more dramatic cut now that the slower speed is mandatory.

"The figures are misleading," Torgerson says. "Actually, we had a very slight increase of four per cent in 1973 deer deaths, but the herd still is growing so there are more deer to be hit. And the increase was much lower than the 15 per cent increases we'd had in the previous few years."

Fall, especially October and November, is one of two periods when deer kills are the most likely to happen. Deer are beginning their breeding season and are restless and likely to be crossing highways.

Again in May, the animals will be breaking up winter groups and does will be looking for fawning areas. Auto -deer collisions are by far the most common accidental deer death and besides being no fun for the deer, such collisions are dangerous for drivers.

There were 2529 highway deer deaths reported in 1973 and undoubtedly others that went unreported -Torgerson feels may drivers picked up the deer they hit because of high meat prices last autumn.

Torgerson had some suggestions for drivers so they can avoid hitting deer. "The best and easiest one is to slow down immediately when the driver sees the flash of deer eyes in his headlights," he says. "There's no way to predict what a deer or any other animal will do when it's confused by headlights."

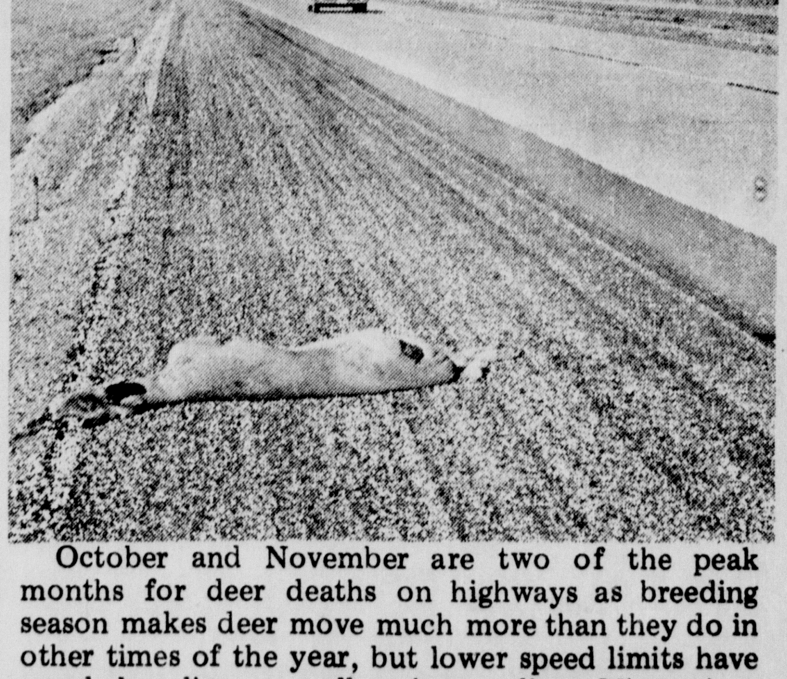
"Often there is more than one deer. The driver sees one run across the road and assumes that's the only one and then he hits a second one. Deer usually travel in groups."

Torgerson also recommends blowing the horn to scare animals on or near the road. "I do it for quail, rabbits, and squirrels --anything I see that I might hit," he says.

Reported deer deaths other than hunting have risen from 2128 in 1969 to 3334 last year. Next to autos, illegal kills are the largest reported cause -but most illegal kills obviously are not reported.

Fences accounted for a few deer (63) last year, while undetermined and other causes took about 100. A particular pleasure to Torgerson and Porath is that there was only one reported death from disease.

"That indicated that statewide the deer herd is healthy and growing in numbers." The reported deaths are one measure of the state of the deer herd. The number of deaths is proportional to the number of deer overall. North Missouri deer deaths rose, but stayed about the same in central and southern areas.



October and November are two of the peak months for deer deaths on highways as breeding season makes deer move much more than they do in other times of the year, but lower speed limits have saved deer lives as well as human lives. Missourians annually hit more than 2,000 deer on the state's highways.

Fertilizer prices keep on rising

COLUMBIA — Nitrogen fertilizer prices, already up 150 per cent over a year ago, are likely to keep on rising, Nolin Hein, University of Missouri - Columbia farm management specialist, reported this week.

"We expect nitrogen supplies to be tight until 1980," said Hein. "Generally, farmers will be able to get what they need, but they'll have to pay for it."

As of Sept. 15 of this year, anhydrous ammonia in Missouri was selling for $225 a ton -- up to $130 over a year ago. Hein expects the price to continue to rise at least until spring of next year.

The price outlook for other farm fertilizers is better --- but not much.

Superphosphate prices in Missouri were at $180 -- up $80 over a year ago. They're also expected to keep rising through spring.

"In the longer run, phosphate supplies should be tight only for the next year or two," said Hein. "By then some new plants will be in operation, and supplies should be somewhat better than nitrogen."

"Potash appears to be the only for the next year or two," said Hein. "By then some new plants will be in operation, and supplies should be somewhat better than nitrogen."

"Potash appears to be the only bright spot in the fertilizer situation for the coming year," said Hein.

"The current price is higher than I expected it to be, but that isn't because of any shortage in plant capacity. It's probably due to increased production and transportation costs. Also, these plants (mostly in Canada) have had labor problems that reduced plant production.

Because of the price and supply situation, Hein had this advice for farmers:

-- Book supplies of nitrogen and phosphate well in advance of the planting season.

-- Soil test and don't apply any more fertilizer than is profitable.

"Also," he added, "this may be a poor year to abruptly change suppliers. If fertilizer supplies are short, suppliers will tend to supply their old, regular customers first."

Bakery wastes may be used as rations

"Bread and bakery waste products are high energy feeds that could nutritionally substitute for corn in hog rations," reports John Rea, University of Missouri-Columbia swine sepcialist.

While that's only one of the corn substitutes Rea suggests for hog producers, he does point out that protein content of these bakery wastes averages around 10 per cent. Some researchers say these bakery wastes can substitute for 75 to 100 per cent of the corn in a hog ration , depending on the fat and water content.

Rea tells farmers to first check these bread products and other non- traditional energy cources for actual nutrient analysis before making the substitute.

"If hog producers can afford to do so, most will stick with corn in their hog rations," says Rea. But the summer's drought and rising prices has many asking about substitutes."

Besides the bread and bakery products, other possibilities are ground rye, molasses , dried whey, tallow and lard.

Some hogs might even be fed moldy or damaged grain. But before hog producers use these, Rea suggests they evaluate them on a "case by case" basis.

He says the moldy or damaged grain probably has enough nutrient value, but it might be toxic to hogs. He suggests that producers dilute the moldy grain with other grains, try trial feeding with a few animals, and avoid feeding it to pregnant females or breeding stock.

USDA announces loan interest hike

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced an increase in the interest rate on price-support commodity loans and on storage facility and drying equipment loans made by Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

The increases, from 7.25 to 9.375 per annum on Commodity Loans and from 8.75 to 9.375 per cent per annum on storage facility and drying equipment loans will more nearly reflect the cost of borrowing money to CCC.

In making the announcement, the department said the new interest rates will be applicable to all such loans for which applications are received by CCC on or after Oct. 1, 1974.

Also announced recently is a change in the policy regarding interest on price-support commodity loans and on storage facility and drying equipment loans made by CCC. The interest rat e on loans for which applications are received on and after Oct. 1 will be subject to changes, twice a year, during the time the loan is outstanding. Loans for which applications were received prior to Oct. 1 will continue to bear interest at the rate stated in this loan agreement until maturity.

Grain storage is becoming marketing tool

SIKESTON— On- farm grain storage is becoming a marketing tool for modern farmers, Robert A. Wright of the Sikeston Production Credit Association, said today.

"Farmers are rapidly becoming market specialists," he added. "The government is not in the grain storage business any more. This creates a need immediately for on- farm grain storage."

Throughout the midwest, a great number of small grain elevators have closed down for one reason or another. This, too, has created a storage need.

Grain storage and drying equipment is an important capital decision, Wright said. Just a small grain drying and storage set- up can cost $10,000 or more. A farm financial advisor can help in this type of decision making.

"But the point to be made is this," Wright said, "more farmers are putting their capital into grain storage units. They are positioning themselves in the market with on- farm storage. They are becoming better prepared as marketers of their cash grain crops."

Committee nominations received

BENTON— Farmers are reminded that the Scott County ASCS Office is now receiving nominations for ASC community election candidates. Kenneth E. Vowels, county executive director, encourages farmers to use this opportunity to nominate their farm neighbors as candidates in the ASC Committee election.

The ASC election will be conducted by mail from Nov. 22 to Dec. 2. Eligible farm voters will be provided with instructions for filling out the secret ballot and returning it to the county ASCS office.

Most resident farmers are eligible to hold office as ASC committeemen. If a farmer would like detailed information concerning eligibility requirements, he or she should contact the county ASCS office.

In filling out a petition, farmers should be careful to include the name of only one nominee, the signatures of at least three eligible ASC voters who support the nominee, and certification that the nominee is willing to serve if elected. Petitions must contain this information; without it, they will not be accepted. The complete petition should be dated and mailed or hand-delivered to the county ASCS office no later than October 29.

ASC committee elections are open to all eligible ASC voters without regard to race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. Vowels said any concerned farmer with an interest in serving fellow producers would be an asset to the ASC Committee. For this reason, farmers are urged to petition for the farmers of their choice. The individual producer will benefit in the long run from a responsible, concerned team of ASC committeemen in the local administration of U. S. government farm programs, Vowels said.

BUFFALO HAVE HEARD ABOUT THERMAL HEAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Americans in general are just now waking up to the possibilities of thermal heat and power, Yellowstone Park buffalo have been benefiting from it for generations.

A National Park Service report says that hot springs in the park are largely responsible for the survival of this country's only wild buffalo herd. Reduced to 23 animals in 1901, the herd now numbers over 800.

Tires, boards, dirt help save silage

COLUMBIA — Gather up those old tires, bags of dirt , heavy boards and that plastic sheeting. It's time to save some silage.

"A cover for that trench or bunker silo is a bargain," claims Fred Meinershagen, University of Missouri-Columbia dairy specialist.

"The 4-mill- thick plastic sheeting has probably doubled in price in the last year, but the silage is worth a lot more, too.

"Without a cover, every inch of spoilage you see next winter represents the remains of what was 6 to 7 inches of good forage at ensiling time."

Meinershagen says the cover for a trench or bunker silo will pay if . . .

— It is covered immediately after filling, not two to three days later.

— The cover is held tightly in place so that wind can't move it.

"Unless you can keep wind from blowing across the silage," says Meinershagen, "carbon dioxide will escape into the atmosphere, causing fermentation and spoilage."

So bring on the old tires, bags of dirt, etc.

"The best material to hold the plastic cover in place is, by far, about 3 or 4 inches of limestone or dirt," says Meinershagen. "But the work required to remove it next winter will likely discourage you from ever using it again.

Bean seed treatment pays off

Research at the University of Missouri-Columbia's Delta Center shows fungicides applied directly to the seed boosted yields as much as 15 bushels per acre. In-furrow treatments were even better, boosting production up to 27 bushels an acre.

"By applying fungicides directly to the seed rather than through the hopper box you get better coverage of the seed and better protection in the soil," reports Chuck Baldwin, Delta Center plant pathologist. "The in-furrow method works even better because you can put more chemical in the soil -- two or three times the amount of fungicide applied directly on the seed."

Cost for the in-furrow treatment runs about $3 or $4 an acre. Direct seed treatment costs even less, because less fungicide is used.

Only two fungicides have been cleared so far for in-furrow treatment: Captan and Demosfan. Several have been cleared for seed treatment.

Chemicals protect the soybeans from seedling diseases such as pythium, phytophthora, rhizoctonia and early season infections of charcoal rot and southern blight.

"These chemicals serve as insurance to the soybean grower," notes Baldwin. "This means they will be able to decrease planting cost and seeding rates and still increase yields."

Navy Sabbath to be observed

CAPE GIRARDEAU --Navy Sabbath '74 is being observed this weekend (Oct. 11- 13), with a theme of "Peace Is a Shared Task."

Lt. Cmdr. J.W. Dowdy, commanding officer of the Cape Girardeau Naval Reserve Center, states that the purpose of the observance is to seek spiritual support for members of the Navy -Marine Corps team and their families.

This year's theme symbolizes the inseparable fact, that in today's world, realization of peace requires that the United States maintain a strong and effective armed force.

Clergymen and congregations are requested to remember the men and women of the Navy and Marine Corps and their families during services on Navy Sabbath weekend.

Locally, the U.S. Coast Guard and the Cape Girardeau Naval Reserve Center are working cooperatively in sponsoring an open house aboard the USS Fox Glove. The USS Fox Glove is a Coast Guard vessel, 112 feet long with a 116- foot barge attached. On Saturday it will be used as the Reserve Center for training pruposes prior to the open house.

Open house aboard the USS Fox Glove has been set to begin at 1 p.m., and it will be located in the Mississippi River at the foot of Broadway in Cape Girardeau.

The public is invited to the open house. Recruiters from the Naval Reserve and Coast Guard will be on hand.

PRAYER: Lord, bring comfort and certainty to us in our groping. Grant us the grace to accept Your answer when we don't understand it or when You say No to one of our fondest dreams. For Your love's sake. Amen.

Community Center dedication planned

MARSTON — A dedication program and open house for the C. M. Barnes Community Center is scheduled Sunday following a carry-in covered- dish dinner open to the public at noon in the center's community meeting room.

An annex connecting the city hall and the community building was recently completed as a result of a joint expansion and improvement project funded by the Civic Improvement Club, the Senior Citizens Club and the city.

Both buildings were given to the city by heirs of the estate of the late C. M. Barnes, a prominent landowner and one of the leading pioneer families in the city.

a memorial plaque by Mayor

The dedication program will open with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and an invocation by the Rev. B. J. Baldwin, pastor of Evergreen Missionary Baptist Church.

Miss Jeannette Haubold will extend welcoming remarks and introduce special guests, then "Bless This House" will be sung.

Comments on the project will be presented by Mrs. Alma Mahar, president of the Senior Citizens Club, and Mrs. Bobbie Williams, president of the Civic Improvement Club.

"God Bless America" will be sung prior to dedicatory remarks and presentation of Jack Mahar.

5. A candidate shall establish specific expenditure limitations upon any political committee whose expenditures, if made, would be attributable to the candidate for the purpose of this act, and may limit the total dollar amount of anonymous contributions which a committee may accept on the candidate's behalf as provided for in subsections 2 and 3 of Section 4 of this act. Such specific expenditure limitations must be in writing and delivered to the treasurer of the committee.

6. Expenditures made by a committee in opposition to a candidate shall not be attributed to any candidate or to any committee supporting a candidate for the purpose of compliance with the provisions of this section, provided the Commission determines that such expenditures were not made for the purpose of supporting another candidate or candidates, but all contributions and expenditures of such committee shall be reported in accordance with the requirements of Section 7 of this act.

Section 4. 1. No annoymous contribution of more than five dollars shall be made by any person and no anonymous contribution or more than five dollars shall be accepted by any candidate or political commitee. If any anonymous contribution of more than five dollars is received, it shall immediately be returned to the contributor, if known and if the contributor is not known, the candidate or political committee treasurer shall immediately transmit that portion of the contribution which exceeds five dollars to the state treasurer, and therupon that portion of the anonymous contribution shall escheat to the state. Candidates and committee treasurers shall keep with their accounts, records of each anonymous contribution received, and each transmitted to the state treasurer, including the amount thereof, the date received and the date transmitted.

2. The maximum aggregate amount of anonymous contributions which may be accepted by any candidate, and by political committees supporting his candidacy shall be five hundred dollars, or one percent of the spending limitation set forth in Section 3 of this act for the candidate whichever is higher. In computing the total anonymous contributions which have been received for the support of a candidate, all anoymous contributions received by the candidate, and by political committees supporting his candidacy, shall be considered. If any anonymous contribution is received which exceeds the foregoing limitation on anonymous contribution, it shall immediately be returned to the contributor, if known, and if the contributor is not known, the candidate or political committee treasurer shall immediately transmit the contribution to the state treasurer, and thereupon such anonymous contribution shall escheat to the state.

3. Any funds which are contributed to a candidate or political committee which have been raised or collected in such a fashion by any person that the actual or beneficial contributor or contributors are not known (such as might occur when a voluntary contribution is taken up at an organization meeting) shall not be considered as anonymous contributions in computing the total amount of anonymous contributions which have been received by a candidate or committee, provided that such collected funds do not exceed one hundred dollars, and provided further that such collected funds shall be designated as having been contributed through the person who transmitted such funds to the candidate or committee. Such person shall submit, with such funds, a written statement setting forth when, where, and in what manner he collected such funds. No more than three percent of the candidate's total expenditure limitation as set forth in Section 3 of this act may be contributed in this manner. Any contribution over one hundred dollars raised in this manner or any amount in excess of three percent of the candidate's total expenditure limitation as set forth in Section 3 of this act may be contributed in this manner. Any contribution over one hundred dollars raised in this manner or any amount in excess of three percent of the candidate's total expenditure limitation as set forth in Section 3 of this act, raised in this manner, shall be transmitted by the candidate or political committee treasurer to the state treasurer, and escheat to the state.

4. A contribution made on behalf of another, or at the direction of another, or for the benefit of another, must be disclosed as such, and be made in both the name of the direct contributor and the beneficial owner of the contribution.

5. No labor organization, bank, trust company, or corporation, wherever organized, except not-for-profit corporations as defined in Chapter 355 RSMo whose articles of incorporation expressly authorize the exercise of any of the functions of a political committee as defined in this act, shall, directly or indirectly, make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any primary, general, or special election in support of or in opposition to any candidate or political committee, provided that nothing herein shall prohibit any individual or number of individuals who may be employees or members of a labor organization, bank trust company or corporation from acting singly or collectively on behalf of a candidate or candidates or political party or committee and from making contributions to a separate segregated fund to be utilized for political purposes by a corporation or labor organization provided that any such action or contribution is voluntary on their part and provided further, that it shall be unlawful for such a fund to make a contribution or expenditure by utilizing money or anything of value secured by physical force, job discrimination, financial reprisals, or the threat of force, job discrimination, or financial reprisal, or by dues, fees, or other monies required as a condition of membership in a labor organization or as a condition of employment, or by monies obtained in any commercial transaction.

6. No person shall make a cash contribution in the amount of fifty dollars or more unless the contribution is accompanied by a contribution statement on a form approved by the Commission. Such statement shall include:

(1) The full name and mailing address of the contributor;

(2) The date on which the contribution was made and the exact amount of the contribution;

(3) The name of the person who received the contribution on behalf of the candidate or political committee;

(4) The signature of the contributor.

One copy of the statement shall be given to the contributor, one copy retained by the candidate or the treasurer of the political committee, and one copy attached to the report required in Section 7 to be filed with the appropriate officer.

7. No candidate, member of the candidate's immediate family, or political committee supporting the candidacy of a candidate may make contributions in connection with the candidate's campaign for nomination or election to public office which would cause the aggregate amount of contributions or expenditures from the personal funds of the candidate and his immediate family to exceed:

(1) Thirty-five thousand dollars for candidates for public office filled by the voters at a state-wide election;

(2) For all other candidates, twenty-five thousand dollars or the candidate's total expenditure limitation as provided in subsection 2 of Section 3, whichever is the lesser amount.

8. No person other than a candidate or member of his immediate family shall make a contribution to a candidate or to a political committee acting in support of a candidate which would cause the aggregate amount contributed by that person to any one candidate or committees acting in his behalf to exceed ten thousand dollars in any one election or twenty percent of the total expenditure limitation for any elective office as provided in Section 3 of this act, whichever is less. In any calendar year, no person shall contribute, in the aggregate, more than fifty thousand dollars to all candidates and political committees covered by this act, and all political parties as that term is used and defined in Chapter 120, RSMo.

9. It is unlawful for any person to make a contribution or expenditure which exceeds the respective limitation applicable to such person as specified in subsections 7 and 8 of this section. Any person found guilty of violating the provisions of this subsection shall, in addition to other penalties provided by this act, pay to the state a sum equal to three times the amount the person contributed or expended in excess of the amount permitted; and each political committee which received such a contribution shall transmit any amount in excess of the amount permitted to the state treasurer with such amount to escheat to the state.

10. No candidate and no political committee shall accept a contribution of more than one hundred dollars in support of or in opposition to a candidate for public office from a political committee located within or without this state unless the contribution is accompanied by a written statement setting forth the full name and address of each person who contributed more than twenty-five dollars of the contribution and certified as true and correct by an officer of the contributing political committee.

Section 5. 1. Each political committee shall appoint a treasurer, who may be the candidate. No contributions shall be received or expenditures made to support or oppose a candidate by a political committee until the political committee certifies to the appropriate officer:

(1) The name and address of its treasurer, and

(2) The candidate or candidates it supports or opposes, and

(3) The name and address of its bank depository.

2. A committee which supports a candidate must notify the candidate of its support, and must provide the candidate with the same information required by this section to be sent to the appropriate officer, at the same time such report is made.

3. No contributions shall be received or expenditures made by a political committee except by or through the treasurer of the political committee.

4. A political committee may, with or without cause, remove its treasurer. In the event of the resignation or removal of a treasurer, the accounts and records shall be transferred in accordance with sound accounting principles and a closeout report signed by both the outgoing treasurer and the successor filed with the appropriate officer. The closeout report shall include total expenditures during the period in which the treasurer was in charge of the committee's accounts and records and total assets and liabilities at time of transfer to the successor. If the outgoing treasurer refuses to certify the closeout report, and in event of the death of a treasurer, a closeout report shall be signed by the successor and filed with appropriate officer and containing, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the information required in this subsection. The treasurer of each political committee shall certify on the basis of his knowledge and belief the correctness of each statement and report required to be filed under this act. The treasurer shall have the duty to exercise due diligence to assure the accuracy of each such report and statement. Failure to so certify or to excerise such due diligence is a violation of this act.

5. No political committee may expend funds on behalf of any candidate unless it has notified the candidate of the committee's intention to make such expenditures and has received from the candidate the specific expenditure limitations pursuant to subsection 5 of Section 3, except as permitted in subsection 4 of Section 3. The committee shall not spend more than the amount authorized by the candidate to be spent in behalf of his candidacy, and such expenditures shall constitute a violation of this act by the political committee. A candidate shall not be liable for, and shall not have attributed to him, any expenditures in excess of the restrictions he has placed upon the political committee.

6. If a candidate has more than one committee supporting his candidacy, he shall designate an official committee and shall file such designation with the appropriate officer, and all other committees and individuals supporting his candidacy shall remit to that committee reports of contributions and expenditures at such intervals as may be specified by the candidate. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 8 of this act permitting a committee to exempt itself from the requirements of this act regarding the filling of reports with the appropriate officer, if more than one committee accepts contributions or makes expenditures on behalf of a candidate, any such committee other than the official committee, whether or not exempt, shall furnish to the official committee, not later than five days prior to the time the official committee is required to make any report required by Section 7 of this act, a written report containing all of the information required by Section 6 of this act.

7. Any expenditures for advertising or other promotional efforts or activities by a political committee on behalf of more than one candidate shall be attributable to the various candidates on a pro rata basis, in accordance with rules and regulations promulgated by the elections commission for the purpose of making such equitable assessments. Any advertising which does not endorse or support a particular candidate or candidates, but merely urges support for a certain political party when made by a political committee or political party, shall be deemed to promote the party, and shall not be assignable, even on a pro rata basis, to the candidates of the political party, but shall be reported in accordance with the provisions of Section 7 of this act.

Section 6. 1. Each candidate and each political committee shall maintain records and accounts which shall include:

(1) An itemized listing of all contributions received by the candidate or committee, the name and address of each contributor, the amount contributed, the date the contribution was received, and, if the contributor is a member of the candidate's immediate family, as that term is defined by this act, a statement indicating such relationship; and

(2) An itemized listing of all expenditures made by the candidate and committee, the name and address of the persons to whom the amounts were paid or promised, the purpose for which the expenditures were made, and the date of the expenditures; and

(3) An itemized listing of all anonymous contributions received by the candidate or committee, including those accepted, those returned to the donor, and those transmitted to the state treasurer, the amount of each such contribution, and if transmitted to the state treasurer, the date on which it was transmitted.

2. Each candidate who receives contributions and each committee shall open and maintain at least one savings or checking account in its own name in not more than one state or federal bank or savings institution located withing the state of Missouri, and deposit therein all contributions received. A candidate shall notify the appropriate officer of the name and address of his depository at the same time, and together with, the report required to be filed by candidates thirty days prior to an election.

3. Each candidate and each committee shall keep its campaign accounts current at least within ten days of the receipt of any contribution or the incurring of any expense. This requirement shall not exempt any candidate or committee, however, from the reporting requirements of this act which impose stricter accounting during periods immediately before a report must be filed. Candidates and committees shall comply with normal and accepted bookkeeping procedures, and with rules and regulations regarding such procedures as may be adopted by the Commission in furtherance of the provisions of this act. Any contribution not recorded as required by the provisions of this act shall be treated as any anonymous contribution exceeding the limitation and shall be transmitted immediately to the state treasurer and shall escheat to the state.

4. Any contribution which is offered, tendered, or received by a candidate or political committee and which is rejected by the recipient and returned to the donor within ten days need not be recorded or reported by the candidate or political committee pursuant to this act. Any rejected contribution not so returned to the donor within ten days shall be recorded and reported in the same manner as other contributions.

5. All records of contributions and expenditures shall be kept by each candidate and treasurer at least two years after the date of election to which the accounts refer, or at least two years after the last supplemental statement is filed under the provisions of this act, whichever is later, and the Commission and its duly authorized representatives may inspect such records at any time. At the written demand of the Commission a candidate or treasurer shall retain such records until an audit has been completed by the Commission, but such demand shall not require the retention of records for more than four years from the election.

6. The treasurer of a committee shall be responsible for complying with the requirements of this section regarding committees.

Section 7. 1. Every candidate shall file reports in writing with the appropriate officer, at the times prescribed in Section 9. The reports shall be subscribed and sworn to by the candidate before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth in detail all contributions received and expenditures made by the candidate in endeavoring to secure his nomination or election. Each report shall set forth:

(1) An itemized listing of all contributions received by the candidate including transfers of funds from the candidate's previous campaign fund, the name and address of each contributor, the amount contributed, and the date the contribution was received; the names and addresses of persons who contributed an aggregate amount of twenty-five dollars or less need not be listed in the report, and instead may be grouped as one item and so identified;

(2) An itemized listing of all expenditures made by the candidate, the name and address of the person to whom the amounts were paid or promised, the purpose for which the expenditures were made, and the date of the expenditures; and

(3) An itemized listing of any anonymous contributions which were transmitted to the state treasurer, the amount of each such contribution, and the date transmitted.

(4) A specific itemized listing of any business or investment in which the candidate or the candidate's spouse or minor children have a financial interest in excess of one thousand dollars.

(5) A specific listing of the source, by name and address, of any gifts or income in excess of one hundred dollars received by the candidate or the candidate's spouse or minor children during the preceding twelve months or the time of the last report, whichever is later.

(6) A specific listing of the source, by name and address, of any gifts, salaries, fees, or other income which for the twelve month period preceding the filing date individually or in the aggregate exceeds five hundred dollars which has been paid on behalf of or for services rendered by the candidate to any sole proprietorship, partnership or corporation in which the candidate or the candidate's spouse holds an interest of ten percent or more.

2. Every political committee shall file reports in writing with the appropriate officer, at the times as prescribed in Section 9. The reports shall be subscribed and sworn to by the treasurer of the committee before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth in detail all contributions received and expenditures made by the committee in endeavoring to support or oppose any candidate's nomination or election. All contributions to and expenditures of a political party shall be reported by that party under the provisions of this subsection. Each report shall set forth:

(1) The amount on hand at the beginning of the reporting period and an itemized listing of all contributions received by the committee, the name and address of each contributor, if known, the amount contributed, and the date the contribution was received; the names and addresses of persons who contributed an aggregate amount of twenty-five dollars or less need not be listed in the report and instead may be grouped as one item and so identified;

(2) The amount owed at the beginning of the reporting period and an itemized listing of all expenditures made by the committee, the name and address of the person to whom the amounts were paid or promisted, the purpose for which the expenditure was made, and the date of the expenditure; and

(3) An itemized listing of any anonymous contributions which were transmitted to the state treasurer, the amount of each such contribution, and the date transmitted; and

(4) The report filed by the official committee, additionally, shall include a summary of all reports made to it by other political committees, indicating the amounts contributed to and expended by each.

3. If the candidate or official political committee supporting a successful candidate fails to file the statements required in this section, the appropriate officer shall not issue the certificate of election, and the candidate shall be prohibited from taking the office, without regard to the outcome of the election, and if the candidate takes office before thirty days after the election he shall file his final report before taking office notwithstanding the provisions of Section 9 of this act.

Section 8. 1. The provisions of this act regarding the reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures shall not apply to any candidate or to any political committee acting for, on behalf of, or in favor of any candidate if the candidate or political committee does not in the aggregate receive or expend more than five hundred dollars for any election and files the exemption affidavit required by this subsection. However, this exemption from reporting does not excuse a candidate or committee from complying with all other requirements of this act. If a candidate or political committee desires to be exempt from the reporting provisions of this act, the candidate or the treasurer of the committee shall, not later than thirty days prior to the date of the election, file a notice with the appropriate officer, of its intention to be exempt from the reporting provisions and it shall be exempt. No political committee may file such exemption affidavit without prior written approval of the candidate or candidates it supports. Only one political committee supporting a candidate may elect to be exempted from the reporting provisions of this section, unless the candidate has elected to be exempt from the reporting provisions, in which case no political committee supporting such a candidate may elect the exemption. The appropriate officer shall not accept more than one exemption affidavit per candidate, from either the candidate or from any committee supporting his candidacy.

2. Any candidate or committee filing such affidavit shall not expend more than five hundred dollars for such election, and all contributions received by the candidate or political committee which would make the total amount of contributions received by the candidate or political committee exceed five hundred dollars shall immediately be treated as if they were excess anonymous contributions and be returned to the contributor or transmitted to the state treasurer.

3. If, after filing the exemption affidavit provided for by this section, the candidate or political committee subsequently determines it does not desire to be exempt from the reporting requirements of this act, or that it desires to receive contributions or make expenditures of more than five hundred dollars for any one election, it may file a notice with the appropriate officer of its rejection of such exemption; however, such rejection shall not be filed later than the seventh day prior to the election. The rejection of the exemption shall be accompanied by a full and complete report of all contributions and expenditures, as the candidate or committee would have been required to make under the provisions of Section 9 of this act on the thirtieth day prior to the election, and all other reporting requirements shall be complied with.

Section 9. 1. Reports required by Section 7 of this act shall be filed:

(1) not later than forty days before the date of an election covered by this act for the period ending on the forty-fifth day before the election, and

(2) not later than seven days before the date of an election covered by this act for the period ending on the twelfth day before the election, and

(3) not later than thirty days after an election covered by this act for the period ending on the date of the preparation of the report which date shall be no later than the twenty-fifth day after the election.

2. For a candidate, the period covered in the report required to be filed no later than forty days before an election shall begin on the day on which he became a candidate, as that term is defined in Section 2 of this act. The reports required to be filed not later than seven days before an election and not later than thirty days after election and any supplemental reports required in subsection 7 of this section shall be cumulative reports, and the period covered by each report shall begin on the closing date of the candidate's last report, if the candidate has filed previously, or if the candidate has not filed previously, the date on which he became a candidate as defined in this act.

3. For a political committee organized for the sole purpose of influencing the result of an election covered by this act, the period covered in the report required to be filed not later than forty days before an election shall begin on the date of the committee's organization. The reports required to be filed not later than seven days prior to an election and not later than thirty days after an election and any supplemental reports required by subsection 7 of this section shall be cumulative reports, and the period covered by each report shall begin on the closing date of the committee's last report if the committee has filed previously, or if the committee has not filed previously, the date of the committee's organization.

4. For any committee or subcommittee of a political party, as that term is defined in Chapter 120 RSMo, each report required to be filed by this section shall be a cumulative report and shall be for the period beginning with the closing date of the last report required to be filed under the provisions of this act. If the political party committee or subcommittee was established after January 1 of the year in which the report is being filed, the beginning date of the period covered in the committee's first report filed under this act shall be the date on which the committee or subcommittee was organized or established.

5. For all other political committees, not covered by subsections 3 and 4 of this section, each report required to be filed by this section shall be a cumulative report and shall be for the period beginning with the closing date of the last report required to be filed under the provisions of this act. If no previous report has been filed, the report shall be for the period beginning on the date the committee was organized but no earlier than two years prior to the election pertinent to the report being filed.

6. Beginning with the effective date of this act, each committee or subcommittee of any political party, as that term is defined in Chapter 120 RSMo, shall file an annual statement of all receipts and expenditures with the appropriate officer on the thirty-first day of January of each year for the period of January 1 through December 31 of the preceding year. The annual report required by this subsection shall be in addition to the reports required by subsection 1 of this section and shall include all the information required in subsection 2 of Section 7 of this act.

7. If the statement required to be filed not later than thirty days after an election by a candidate or by a committee described in subsection 3 or subsection 5 of this section shows a deficit or surplus in excess of one hundred dollars, or if additional contributions or expenditures in excess of one hundred dollars are received or made, a supplemental report shall be filed with the appropriate officer between the eighty-fifth and the ninetieth day following the election and every ninety days thereafter until the accounts show no deficit or surplus in excess of one hundred dollars, or until four years have passed since the election. The supplemental report shall not be required, however, for candidates for a general election who have won a primary election and are required to file reports for such general election, nor for committees supporting such candidates unless the committee has been disbanded or does not participate in the general election campaign.

8. Any report which is mailed to the appropriate officer, properly addressed and with proper postage, at least one day prior to the dates set forth in this act for the filing of reports, shall be deemed to have been mailed properly and to have been received by the appropriate officer in the ordinary course of business if mailed from within the state of Missouri, whether or not the report is actually received by the appropriate officer on the given date set forth in this act.

Section 10. 1. The Secretary of State shall assist the Commission and promptly supply the commission with copies of all materials pertaining to this act and further shall:

(1) Develop, with the approval of the Commission, forms for reports, statements and other information required to be filed by this act, and shall furnish such forms to persons required to file reports and statements under this act together with a summary of the major provisions of Chapter 129 RSMo;

(2) Prepare, with the approval of the Commission, publish, and furnish to the persons required to file such reports and statements a manual setting forth recommended uniform methods of bookkeeping and reporting;

(3) Develop a filing, coding, and cross-indexing system consonant with the purposes of this act;

(4) Make the reports and statements filed with him available for public inspection and copying, commencing as soon as practicable but not later than the end of the second day after which it was received, and permit copying of any such report or statement by hand or by duplicating machine, as requested by any person, at the expense of such person, but no information copied from such reports and statements shall be sold or utilized by any person for the purpose of soliciting contributions or for any commercial purpose;

(5) Preserve such reports and statements for a period of not less than ten years from the date of receipt;

(6) Compile and maintain a current list of all statements or parts of statements pertaining to each candidate;

(7) From reports filed with him prepare and publish an annual report including compilations of amounts contributed and expended for the influencing of nominations and elections according to such categories as determined by the Commission;

(8) From reports filed with him, prepare and publish such other reports as he may deem appropriate;

(9) Disseminate statistics, summaries, and reports prepared under this act;

(10) Examine each report and statement filed with his office under the requirements of this act to determine if the statements are properly completed and filed within the time required by this act;

(11) Notify a person required to file a report or statement under this act immediately if, upon examination of the official ballot or other circumstances surrounding any election, it appears that the person has failed to file a report or statement as required by law;

(12) If, in the course of examining each report or upon examination of the official ballot or other circumstances surrounding any election, it appears that the requirements of this act have been violated, promptly present such findings to the Commission.

Section 11. 1. There is hereby created and established the Missouri Elections Commission which shall be composed of six members, not more than three of whom shall be members of the same political party. Members of the Commission shall be nominated by the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri in panels of three for each vacancy, and appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate. Two of the original members shall be appointed for a term of two years, two for a term of four years, and two for a term of six years, and thereafter the terms of members shall be for six years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. Any individual chosen to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the member whom he shall succeed. In the appointment of members, there shall be included in each of the two, four, and six year term appointments a member of the political party polling the highest number of votes at the last general election for governor and a member of the party polling the second highest number of votes for governor at said election. An individual appointed to serve an unexpired term shall be of the same political party as the member whom he shall succeed.

2. The original members of the Commission shall be nominated within thirty days after the effective date of this act, and the commission members shall not assume office nor exercise any of the duties or powers granted to the Commission by this act until all six original members have been appointed. Prior to thirty days before the expiration of the term of a Commission member and within thirty days after the occurrence of a vacancy in an unexpired term, the Supreme Court shall nominate three individuals for each vacancy in an unexpired term, the Supreme Court shall nominate three individuals for each vacancy. No vacancy in the Commission membership shall remain unfilled for longer than sixty days.

3. The Governor, with the consent of two-thirds of both houses of the Gneral Assembly, may remove any member of the Commission, but only for cause.

4. No current public official shall be appointed to membershp on the Commission. No person shall hold, or be a candidate for, public or political party office during his or her membership on the Commission.

5. The Commission shall annually elect one member to serve as chairman of the Commission and one member to serve as vice-chairman. The vice-chairman shall act as chairman in the absence or disability of the chairman or in the event of a vacancy in that office, and four members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum. The Commission shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

6. Each member of the Commission shall receive, as full compensation for his services, the sum of fifty dollars per day for each full day actually spent on the work of the Commission, and his actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of duty pertaining to his office, and no commissioner shall receive any compensation, either directly or indirectly, for his services except as herein provided.

7. All members, officers, agents, attorneys and employees of the Commission shall be subject to the provisions set forth in chapter 36.150, RSMo prohibiting political activity of state employees.

8. The Commission shall be assigned to the office of the Secretary of State. Supervision by the Secretary of State shall be limited to budgeting and shall not extend to subtantive matters relating to policies or regulative and enforcement functions.

Section 12. The Commission shall administer this act, and in connection therewith shall:

1. Appoint an executive director who shall serve at the pleasure of the Commission. The executive director shall be responsible for the administrative operations of the Commission and shall perform such other duties as are assigned by regulations or orders of the Commission, but the Commission shall not delegate the making of rules and regulations to the executive director. The Commission shall fix the compensation of the executive director and other employees within the limits of appropriations to the Commission:

2. Promulgate rules and regulations to carry out the policies and purposes of this act and approve the forms and manuals to be prepared and published by the Secretary of State;

3. As it deems necessary, audit reports and statements required to be filed under the provisions of this act to determine if the reports and statements conform to the requirements of law and to the truth, and when it deems necessary, audit reports and statements filed with other appropriate officers;

4. Upon written complaint of any citizen or upon its own motion or upon findings reported to the Commission by the Secretary of State, investigate and report apparent violations of this act to the appropriate law enforcement authorities;

5. If no legal action has been instituted by the appropriate law enforcement authorities within fifteen calendar days following a report of violation by the Commission to said enforcement authorities, commence in its own name legal action for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this act;

6. Prepare and publish an annual report to the Governor and the General Assembly concerning the actions it has taken, the names, salaries and duties of all its employees, the money it has disbursed, the effectiveness of this act and its enforcement by appropriate law enforcement authorities;

7. Compile and maintain a list of all Commission reports and statements;

8. Prepare and publish such other reports as it may deem appropriate;

9. With the assistance of the Secretary of State, take care to see that public information concerning the requirements of the act is available in advance of and during election campaigns covered by this act.

Section 13. The commission is empowered to:

1. From time to time make, amend, and rescind such rules and regulations as are necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, including rules governing statements and reports and defining any terms whether or not used in this act insofar as the definitions are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. For the purposes of rules, regulations and forms, the Commission may classify persons and matters within its jurisdiction and may prescribe different requirements for different classes;

(1) No rule, form or regulation may be made, amended, or rescinded, unless the Commission finds that the action is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the purpose fairly intended by the policy and provisions of this act.

(2) No provision of this act imposing any liability applies to any act done or omitted in good faith in conformity with any rule, regulation or form of the Commission, notwithstanding that the rule, regulation or form may later be amended or rescinded or be determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for any reason.

2. Issue, upon request, and publish advisory opinions upon the requirements of this act, based on a real or hypothetical set of circumstances.

3. File for such injunctive or other equitable relief as may be appropriate, in the Circuit Court of the county in which the violation is occurring or threatened, or in which the candidate resides, upon determining to the Commission's satisfaction that violations are occurring or threatened.

4. Commence in its name and prosecute any action under this act in the county where any violation may occur.

Section 14. 1. The Commission in its discretion may:

(1) Make such public or private investigations and insepctions within or outside of this state as it deems necessary to determine whether any person has violated or is about to violate any provisions of this act or any rule or regulation hereunder, or to aid in the enforcement of this act or in the prescribing of rules hereunder.

(2) Require or permit any person to file a statement in writing, under oath or otherwise as the Commission determines, as to all the facts and circumstances concerning the matter to be investigated, and

(3) Publish information concerning any violation of this act or any rule or regulation Hereunder.

2. For the purpose of any investigation or proceeding under this act, the Commission or any officer designated by it may administer oaths and affirmations, subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance, take evidence, and require the production of any books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, agreements or other documents or records which the Commission deems relevant or material to the inquiry.

3. In case of contumacy by, or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to any person, the Circuit Court of any county of the state or the City of St. Louis, upon application by the Commission, may issue to the person an order requiring him to appear before the Commission, or the officer designated by it, there to produce documentary evidence if so ordered or to give evidence touching the matter under investigation or in question. Failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt of court.

4. It shall be the duty of all officers of the State of Missouri charged with the enforcement of criminal law to render and furnish to the Commission when requested all information and assistance in their possession and in their power.

5. All investigations and hearings by the Commission prior to the election in which a candidate is participating shall be strictly confidential. Revealing any information in violation of this provision shall be cause for removal from the Commission in the case of a commissioner, or reason for termination of employment, in the case of a Commission employee.

6. The prosecuting attorney of any county or the City of St. Louis may investigate and prosecute any violation of this act with or without the prior written request of the Commission, or the Commission may so act upon its own initiative, or the Commission may request action by the Attorney General, to secure compliance with the provisions of this act.

Section 15. Whenever an action is brought by the Commission or by the Attorney General or the prosecuting attorney in any county or the City or St. Louis for violation of this act in a court of proper jurisdiction, the action shall have preference on the docket of any court in which the same is pending over all other civil actions whatever, and the court may upon a finding of violation grant injunctive or other equitable relief as may be appropriate. Such relief may include the following sanctions:

1. If the court finds that a successful candidate in any election has willfully violated any provision of this act in seeking election to public office, the result of said election may be held void and a special election, to be called by the Governor, held within sixty days of such findings, where constitutionally possible. In cases where such action is not constitutionally permissible, such successful candidate shall be denied the right to be a candidate for public office for ten years from the date of such findings. Any action to void an election shall be commenced within one year of the election in question. It is intended that this remedy be imposed freely in all appropriate cases to protect the right of the electorate to an informed and knowledgeable vote.

2. If action is instituted prior to the election and the Court finds that the candidate has willfully failed to file the reports or statements required by this act or has filed reports or statements containing any statement which, at the time and in light of the circumstances under which it is made, is false or misleading with respect to any material fact, or which omits to state any material fact necessary in order to make the statements therein not false or misleading or necessary to correct any statement in any earlier such report or statement which has become false or misleading, or has willfully violated any other provisions of this act, the court may order that the candidate shall cease to be such for the office sought and the candidate's name shall not be printed on the official ballot for the election. A vacancy on an official ballot under this section may be filled in the manner provided by law, but not by the same candidate.

Section 16. 1. Any person who violates the provisions of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction may be punished by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars or by confinement in the county jail for a term of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

2. Any person found guilty of making an illegal compaign contribution contrary to the provisions of this act shall, in addition to all other penalties provided by law, be fined in an amount equal to the amount of the illegal contribution.

3. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 541.210 RSMo(1969) barring prosecutions for any offenses other than a felony unless commenced within one year after the commission of the offense, any offense under this act may be prosecuted if the indictment be found or prosecution be instituted within four years after the commission of the alleged offense.

Section 17. Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this act, candidates for the office of United States Senator and for the office of United States Representative, and committees formed to support or oppose such candidates shall be deemed to have fully complied with the provisions of this act if copies of all election statements and reports which are required by federal law to be filed with appropriate federal officials are filed with the Secretary of State, at the same time that they are filed with federal officials, and if all books and records relating thereto are kept in accordance with federal law. The Missouri Elections Commission may, however, cooperate with appropriate federal officials in investigating any alleged violation of such federal laws.

Section 18. If any provision of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity shall not affect other provisions of applications of this act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this act are declared severable.

Section 19. This act shall become effective on January 1, 1975. Notwithstanding any other provisions to the contrary, none of the provisions of this act are retroactive prior to the effective date of this act.

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered America.

On this date—

In 1947, the American flag was lowered on Corregidor as that fortress rock was transferred to the Republic of the Philippines.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev shattered decorum at the U.N. General Assembly by pounding his desk with his shoe.

Ten years ago: Army forces took control in South Vietnam, ousting the government of Major General Nguyen Khanh in a bloodless coup.

Thought for today: I have never taken any exercise except sleeping and resting — Mark Twain, American humorist, 1835-1910.

Chaffee schools to observe lunch week

CHAFFEE — Chaffee public schools will observe National School Lunch Week Oct. 14-18.

Each year the Secretary of Agriculture, by joint resolution of Congress, designates the second week of October as National School Lunch Week. The theme for this year is "You Are What You Eat".

The menu for this week has been planned by the students at Chaffee Elementary School, assisted by Mrs. Levella Baker, food supervisor, with the exception of Oct. 16, which is Universal Menu Day. Every school that participates in National School Lunch Week will serve the same menu on Wednesday (the menu for the entire week may be found elsewhere in this newspaper.

Parents will be invited to participate as the children will select the parents of one child from each room to eat with them one day during the week.

Board overlooks Nov. 5 election

DEXTER — The Dexter School District had planned to advise district residents to register by Oct. 23 in order to vote in the Nov. 19 school bond election.

However, the school board apparently failed to take into account the Nov. 5 general election. Persons not registered to vote by 5 p.m. Wednesday won't be able to resiter to vote in the school bond election.

Voter registration books in Stoddard County closed at 5 p.m. Wednesday and won't open to residents of the Dexter R-11 School District again until Nov. 20. They closed to comply with state regulations regarding closure before an election — in this case the general election on Nov. 5.

Since the school district is having an election Nov. 19, there is not enough time between it and the general election to open the registration books again.

Other areas of the county will be able to register the day after the general election.

"If there was not a general election on the 5th day of November, they would be exactly right," County Clerk John Marvin Capps said in reference to the school district notice that registration books for its election would close Oct. 23. "But, they will already be in the period when the registration books are closed."

Capps said he had discussed the situation with the school's attorney and told him it would be misleading to publish the Oct. 23 registration deadline. "The statute says there will be no registration during that period," Capps said.

"When you register, you register for all elections, not just a particular election," he continued. "They can publish what election notice they want to, it won't affect registration."

Capps said, however, the miscalculation should not harm the school election. He feels that persons interested in voting would have been registered by Wednesday's deadline. Similar circumstances happened earlier this year in Bernie and there were no problems, he said.

Loren Coffey, president of the Dexter board of education, said this morning that the board had set the Oct. 23 registration deadline at its meeting last Tuesday. They were not aware of the interference of the general election in the normal procedure, according to Coffey.

Penalty could be deducted

CAPE GIRARDEAU --People who don't report changes in circumstances that affect their supplemental security income payments may have a penalty deducted from future payments, according to Gary Eason, Social Security Administration district manager in Cape Girardeau.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. Eligibility for payments and payment amounts can be affected by changes in income, place of residence, marital status and other circumstances.

"People have 30 days to report such changes to any Social Security office," Eason said. "Under the law, failure to report changes -or delay in reporting changes --can mean reductions in supplemental security income payments."

The penalty is $25 for the first failure or delay, $50 for the second and $100 for each subsequent failure or dealy.

"The penalty isn't applied if people couldn't help reporting late or weren't at fault for not reporting changes in their circumstances," Eason said.

"Also, people who make a flase statement that causes them to get money not rightfully due may be prosecuted for fraud," he said.

People getting supplemental security income payments may obtain information about reporting changes in their circumstances by calling or writing any Social Secruity office.

The supplemental security income program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Cape Girardeau Social Office is at 339 Broadway The phone number is 334-5281.

Disease control may help quality

PORTAGEVILLE — How much the cool fall has reduced our soybean crop in the Bootheel is difficult to estimate at this time. Seed development in late planted soybeans has been delayed by thy cool weather. Also, the Oct. 3 frost injured the upper part of the plants which will also affect the yield.

Cotton maturity was also delayed by the cool fall but the frost did not cause as much injury as it did to the soybean crop. Most growers had started or completed defoliation of their crop before the frost. The cotton harvest picked up last week. Some growers are picking more cotton per acre than they had predicted earlier.

The soybean disease monitoring plots were most informative. It was not hard to find diseases in these plots. Pod and stem blight, downy mildew, bacterial blight and purple seed stain were the most prevalent diseases showing up a this time of the year. Cyst and root knot nematodes were found in some of the plots.

Purple seed stain seems to be increasing each year and is reducing the quality of our seed beans. Dr. Baldwin thinks that we can control this disease by applying foliar sprays, like Benlate, during the growing season. It would be worth a try by some of our seed growers.

Purple stain is caused by several species of the fungus cercospora. Cercospora symptoms are quite niticeable the latter part of season on leaves, stems and pods. The cercospora leasions are angular, reddish brown spots about a sixteenth of an inch in diameter.

The discoloration of the seed varies from pink or light purple to dark purple. When diseased seed are planted, the fungus grows from the seed coat into the cotyledon and from these into the stems of some of the seedlings. The fungus produces spores on diseased seedlings and are transported to adjacent plants by wind and rains. The leaves, stems and pods of these plants will then develop the disease.

Some varieties show resistance to the disease and seed treatment will prevent a loss of seedlings but will not assure freedom from purple stain in the seed crop. This is why treatment is needed during the growing season, according to Dr. Baldwin.

Mathew Killroy was one of the nine British redcoats who killed five patriots in the Boston Massacre. Found guilty of manslaughter, his thumb was branded for punishment.

Reducing harvest losses increases soybean income

BLOOMFIELD --With the outlook for soybean prices being as good as it is for this year's crop, harvesting the soybean crop so as to hold harvest losses to a minimum will pay big dividends this season.

Extension agents checked harvest losses behind a number of combines in Stoddard County soybean fields during the 1970 and 1971 harvest seasons .

Losses behind the 22 combines involved in the survey ranged form a low of .25 bushel per acre to a high of 7.19 bushels per acre, with the average loss amounting to 2.31 bushels per acre.

Assuming a bean price of $7.50 per bushel, dollar losses on the basis of these bean losses would range from a low of $1.88 per acre to a high of $53.93 per acre for an average loss of $17.33 per acre.

As these figures indicate, doing a good job of harvesting the soybean crop will be a paying proposition.

Harvesting soybeans before they get too dry can mean a saving of an additional bushel per acre or more. One bushel, or 60 pounds, at 13 per cent moisture becomes only 58 pounds if beans are harvested at 10 per cent.

Beans should be combines as soon as possible after moisture content of beans reaches 13 to 14 per cent, and farmers should strive to complete bean harvest before the moisture content reaches 10 per cent, inasmuch as is possible.

An Ohio research study showed that bean losses increased one per cent per day after moisture content dropped below 10 per cent. AAnother bushel per acre or more can usually be gained by taking steps to reduce losses associated with cutting the beans.

The losses which result from shattering, bean pods left below the cutter bar and stalks which do not go into the combine account for approximately 80 per cent of all soybeans harvest losses.

Shattering usually causes the largest loss. Moisture content of the pod and kernel determine the amount of shattering. When shattering becomes excessive, harvesting in the early mornings when stalks are damp will help. Slowere forward combine speeds will also help to reduce shattering.

The combine cutter bar should run below all bean pods if possible. The absence of ridges and slow forward speeds of 2.5 to 3.5 miles per hour make it easier to keep the cutter bar close to the ground. Automatic header control and floating cutter bar devices can be a big help in reducing this type of loss.

The reed, which is the first part of the combine to touch the soybean plant, can cause heavy shattering. The reel tip speed should be equal to or slightly faster than the ground speed of the combine. The reel bats should penetrate iust deep enough to control the plants. The reel axial should be adjusted so that it is six to 12 inches ahead of the cutter bar.

The cylinder speed should be set in accordance with recommendations found in the operator's manual that came with your combine. In beans with a moisture content of 12 to 13 per cent or higher, or with damp stalks, the cylinder speeds whould be increased. As soybeans dry, the cylinder speeds whould be reduced, as excessive speeds will crack beans and lower the germination.

The conclave clearance should be set in accordance with recommendations in the operator's manual and is normally not changed as moisture content changes.

A check on harvest losses cna be made by counting the beans in several places behind the combine. A loss of four beans per square foot represents a loss of one bushel per acre. If losses are high, check each of the following: ground speed, cylinder speed and clearance, reel speed and position and the tailings from the combine.

Too much has been invested in the soybean crop in terms of time, hard work and actual dollars to allow excessive harvet losses to rob you of soybean profits which are potentially yours this year.

At that time it was revealed that Butler was among several New Madrid County prisoners who had alledgedly been working on the farm of New Madrid County Sheriff L. "Cowboy" Ramsey.

Butler was also accused by former New Madrid County prisoners of ordering their beatings while he was serving as a jail trustee, and of supplying liquor to prisoners in the jail.

Upon Butler's arrest Pemiscot County made inquiries to New Madrid County and were told that Butler was supposed to be in a Hayti hospital for treatment of a chronic blood ailment.

Later, New Madrid County Sheriff Ramsey claimed Pemiscot County authoriti s were given the hospitla excuse as a cover-up for Butler, who was a trustee doing undercover work in Pemiscot County. Ramsey sid Butler was trying to uncover leads on some burglaries that had occurrred in New Madrid County.

On Sept. 26 Butler was released from the Pemiscot County jail on his own recognizane pending disposition of a fraud charee. Burlison residency challenged

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — The sister of Rep. Bill D. Burlison has denied charges by his November election opponent challenging legality of his residence claims.

Truman Farrow of Jackson, who is attempting to unseat Burlison, charged Thursday that the address listed by Burlison as his Cape Girardeau residence is a house owned by Ruth D. Meadows.

Mrs. Meadows, the congressman's sister, admitted owning the property but said her brother's legal residence has been maintained the~e for several years.

Also denied by Mrs. Meadows was a claim by Farrow that no records are available to prove Burlison's having paid any taxes in Cape Girardeau County since 1969.

Farrow said he is asking Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth to investigate his residency charge.

Jury chosen in cover-up trial

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A predominantly middle-aged jury was chosen Friday to decide whether five men, including three top aides from Richard Nixon's presidency, joined in a criminal conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

The nine women and three men were drawn painstakingly from a cross-section of the Washington community after nine days of intensive, secret screening.

They were told by the judge that theirs was "a high and noble duty" and were admonished to try the case "without bias, prejudice, or sympathy."

The defendants, John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, stood and faced the jury box as the jurors raised their hands in oath.

As the jurors packed their belongings for a three to four month trial, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica unsealed a legal brief in which Nixon's lawyer argued that the former President's health will not permit him to travel for three to six months.

Nixon was subpoenaed as a witness both by Erhlichman and the government.

Citing the phlebitis that put Nixon into a hospital for 11 days recently, the lawyers said:

"It is clear Mr. Nixon cannot comply with the subpoena in the immediate future without impairing this physical condition and creating a potentially very serious risk to his health."

In asking that the subpoena requiring his appearance and documents be dismissed, Nixon's lawyers also claimed the materials are privileged, confidential communications.

Sirica gave attorneys until Wednesday to respond.

The jury make-up reflects the predominantly black Washington community from which it was chosen, including six black woman and two black men.

Five of the jurors are in their 50s three in the 60s, two in the 40s and two in their 20s.

Three of the jurors are retired from government service. The panel also includes a 27year-old logistics coordinator at George Washington University, a 60-year-old hotel doorman and a 68-year-old woman who is unemployed.

The alternates are six black women.

"Your role as jurors is to give each one of these defendants the same kind of fair and impartial trial you would want to receive if you were seated in their place," Judge Sirica said.

A young government lawyer, Richard Ben-Veniste, will deliver the opening arguments Monday morning after some preliminary matters are disposed of.

Mitchell, 61, was attorney general under Nixon. Haldeman was the White House chief of staff, Ehrlichman the top domestic aide. Parkinson was a lawyer for the 1972 Nixon reelection committee and Mardian was an official.

All are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice by trying to derail official investigations into the involvement of other people in the break-in at Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate office building.

In addition, all except Mardian are charged with actually obstructing justice, and Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman face multiple counts of lying.

Nixon had been expected to be the star witness at the trial but the uncertainty over whether he will appear may throw the spotlight on 33 of his tape recordings that the government plans to introduce into evidence.

The former president is one of the 19 or 20 unindicted coconspirators in the case. He was made immune from trial, even though no charges have been brought, through the pardon that President Ford granted him.

12,400 voters registered

BLOOMFIELD --Approximately 12,400 Stoddard Countians had registered to vote at the close of Wednesday's deadline, according to Stoddard County Clerk John Marvin Capps.

Capps said over 150 persons registered at a special registrations held Saturday at the Town and Country Shopping Center in Dexter. He said that from 85 -90% of all eligible voters have registered to vote.

Malden man hurt in mishap

RISCO --About 5:45 p.m. Friday Thomas Trotter of Malden was injured in a crash involving a pick-up truck and a semi-turck at Highway 52 and Main Street. He was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Risco Cheif of Police Alfred Scott said that at 1972 Ford semi-truck belonging to the Risco Cotton and Grain Co. made a U-turn and pulled into the path of Trotter's vehicle. Trotter was driving a pick-up truck belonging to Don Rickman of Malden. Lonnie Martin of Risco, who was driving the semi was given a citation for careless driving at the scene of the accident.

Acid poisoning threatens cattle

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD --Several questions from farmers have been coming to the University of Missouri Extension Center recently pertaining to the danger of grazing grain sorghum stubble.

There is danger of prussic acid poisoning of cattle that are grazing stubble of grain sorghum, sundangrass, sorghum-sudan crosses and other sorghum crops. Livestock producers and dairymen should be aware of this danger and take steps to avoid it.

However, in spite of the danger involved, such stalk fields will provide lots of grazing in many cases.

Fall is the season when conditions are usually most favorable for prussica acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drouth and freezing or near freezing temperatures.

Forage crops are likely to be most danngerous when plants are less than 18 inches high.

Farmers should be especially cautions of plants that are wilted following frost. Fields containing such plants may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. Such fields are absolutely safe for grazing after the palnts are dead and thoroughly cured.

Neither sudan grass or sorghum-sedan crosses are dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Visible signs of prussica acid poisoning are labored breathing, spasms or staggering. However, animals sometimes die without showing such symptoms. If cattle become poisoned from prussic acid, they should be removed from the field, and a beterinarian should be called immediately. Treatment must oftenr be admistered quickly to avoid death.

Hayti woman named to board

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two St. Louisians and a nurse from the Missouri Bootheel have been appointed to state boards by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, filling posts left vacated because terms of other members had expired.

Appointed to the state Board of Nursing Thursday were Norma Wilson of Hayti, a staff nurse at Pemiscot Memorial Hospital, succeding Florina Carlstrom of Malden, and Sister Mary Jeremy Buckman of St. Louis, director of Maryville College, replacing Sister Mary Isadore Lennon of St. Louis.

Dr. George B. Clark of St. Louis was named to the state Board of Podiatry, succeding Dr. Kenneth E. Lane of Ferguson.

2 injured in traffic mishap

FRUITLAND --A Perryville man received serious injuries in a one-car accident at 5:30 p.m. Friday on Interstate 55 two-and one-half miles south of town and his wife suffered minor injuries, the highway patrol announced today.

Ford says economy program is good

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford told his Cabinet Friday he believes his economic program is "good — despite what the critics say" and that no one has come up with better ideas, the President's chief spokesman reported.

"Some say it's too tough, some say it's not tough enough — but no one is offering anything better," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen quoted Ford as saying.

Meanwhile, the nation's foremost business leaders forecast that unemployment would rise to 6 1/2 per cent next year but that the country would avoid a serious recession.

The business leaders also predicted that the inflation rate next year would decline to 8.5 per cent, down from about 11 per cent this year. This economic prognosis was released at a Hot Springs, Va., meeting of the Business Council.

On Capitol Hill, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Friday there is no economic justification now for removing federal price controls from oil.

Simon told a congressional panel that President Ford supports continuation of the oil depletion allowance as long as prices are controlled. However, he said Ford will sign a taxrevision bill phasing out the allowance because "on balance it's got a lot more good than bad."

At a White House meeting Friday afternoon, Ford ordered the Cabinet- level group to take up as first priority a survey of government departments and agancies and how they can hold down spending.

The President also scheduled a meeting Saturday with his new 18-member Citizen Action Committee to Fight Inflation.

Ford intends to spell out what he wants Americans to do as part of a voluntary energy conservaton and anti-inflation effort when he appears next Tuesday in Kansas City before a gathering of the Future Farmers of America.

At Friday's Cabinet meeting, the President got a report from Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, on attempts to reduce the number of federal employes. Also, Nessen said, Ford received a report on the Boston school desegregation situation from Atty. Gen. William Saxbe.

Simon, in testimony before the Joint Economic Committee responded to criticism about Ford's inflation- fighting efforts.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., vice chairman of the committee, asked how the administration can justify a program that raises taxes on middle- income families while effectively giving industry additional tax breaks.

Proxmire said the proposed 5 per cent surcharge on the taxes of families with incomes above $15,000 "serves no useful economic purpose. It is not aimed at the kind of problem we have."

But Simon called the surcharge one part of a "balanced, comprehensive and integrated package of economic policy."

Consumers will be the ultimate beneficiary of the increased incentives for business investment, Simon said, because the result of higher investment will be greater production and lower prices.

Eagleton endorses Ford oil plan

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., strongly endorsed President Ford's goal of drastically reducing daily oil imports Friday night, but he warned that similar action may also be needed concerning other imported materials.

The United States may be entering an era of "product diplomacy" in which other countries may use their natural resources as a lever to gain power, Eagleton said at a meeting of the National Asssociation of Recycling Industries. "Beyond any question, the increase in the price of petroleum products, with its enormous multipliers throughout the economy, is the primary force behind today's economy," Eagleton said. "Unless we can come to grips with that problem, we will not whip inflation now or in the next five years."

Eagleton said the United States was entering an era of "product diplomacy" in which the oil tanker and ore hauler might replace the gunboat as an instrument of world power.

Eagleton said the country, which now imports more than 90 per cent of its rubber, cobalt, chrome and asbestos, must exercise its "power not to buy" against possible cartels in producing countries.

Eagleton called for a concerted national resource conservation and recovery program, saying such action was vital if the country was "going to successfully resist extortionist prices and cut-offs of supplies."

Ford slated for Curtis fund-raising breakfast

Ford will be in Kansas City Tuesday night to address some 12,000 FFA members.

The next morning he will speak at a fund-raising breakfast for Missouri Republicans and former Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, the GOP candidate for the Senate.

Ed Stemmler, campaign manager for Curtis, said about 400 persons, including Gov. Christopher S. Bond, are expected to attend the $100-a-plate breakfast at the Muehlebach Hotel at 8:30 a.m.

Ford, making his first trip to Missouri since becoming President in August, will leave Kansas City after the breakfast.

Curtis, who was a colleague of Ford for 18 years in the House, was defeated six years ago when he sought the Senate seat now held by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

He is opposing Eagleton's reelection bid.

By WANDA ATCHLEY

BLOOMFIELD --Most of us who grew up in this area have vivid memories of the long days and sore backs from picking cotton by hand, that is. However, hand -picked cotton today, is almost as much a thing of the past as the Model A, according to area farmers.

Not a single bale of hand -picked cotton has been brought in this year, officials at a Bernie cotton gin said, and only three bales were received last year.

"Hand -picked cotton is a thing of the past," Mrs. Bill Glass of the Vinson community said, when asked if the country store operated by Mr. and Mrs. Glass still keeps cotton sacks in stock.

"We haven't carried cotton sacks in about three years," Mrs. Glass said. "We tried to purchase some two years ago but were unable to do so."

The Glass store is located east and south of Dexter in the heart of Stoddard County's cotton producing area. Mrs. Glass said she knows of no one in the area who still hand picks cotton and that the only cotton sacks available are those purchases several years ago.

A call to other merchants in Stoddard County's cotton producing area turned up the same results. One Charter Oak merchant just laughed when aksed if he still stocks cotton sacks. He said it would be impossible to purchase a sack even if you wanted one.

Contact with several Stoddard County farmers also proved negative. The farmer's said they know of no one who hand picks cotton or plans to do so. They said hand -picked cotton in the county has been virtually non -existent for several years.

So it seems that hand -picked cotton has been replaced by the marvels of modern machinery, and the chore of picking cotton will become just an unpleasant memory.

Butler in custody in Mississippi

NEW MADRID --Dwight Butler, 31, of rural Gideon was placed in the custody of Mississippi state parole authorities Thursday afternoon. He was being held in the Dunklin County jail by the sheriff's department on a Mississippi parole violation warrant.

Mississippi officials had attempted unsuccessfully Sunday to gain Butler's extradition.

Mississippi authoritites had been notified that Butler was available to be returned to Mississippi after a felony charge of possession of stolen property against him was dismissed Sept. 24 by New Madrid Prosecutor Hal E. Hunter, Jr.

After the officers arrived Sunday, however, it was discovered they did not have the proper extradition papers.

Normally documents must be signed by the governor of the state where the suspect is staying, but Butler agreed to waive this right if he violated the parole agreement when he signed the agreement.

Butler, a former inmate of Mississippi and Missouri state prisons, has been in and out of New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin and Stoddard County jails since March, when he was charged with possession of stolen property in New Madrid County and burglary and on March 22 he was ordered held under $1,000 bond for circuit court trial in New Madrid County following a preliminary hearing in which he was accused of possession of 18 bushels of soy beans on March 2 that he allegedly knew had been previously stolen.

Later he was placed under $2,5000 bond in Stoddard County pending trial in circuit court on burglary and stealing charges stemming from the Feg. 22 burglary of Shipman's Rebel Market in Dexter.

Juvenile office remodled

BLOOMFIELD — A remodeling of the juvenile office has been included in the present remodeling under way at the county court house, according to county clerk John Marvin Capps. During the past, Capps said, it has been necessary to use the juvenile office to seat witnesses during Circuit Court trials. He said this has interfered with the work of deputy juvenile officer Melvin "Churn" Williams.

A partition has been installed between the juvenile office and the entrance to the Circuit Courtroom, providing a hall in which witnesses can enter and leave the Circuit Court room without first entering the juvenile office. Capps said the cost of the project was included in a bid submitted for the lowering of the ceilings which is presently under way.

Capps also said that the office equipment for the new county health unit has arrived. He said that the site of the health unit has not yet been determined, but several places are being considered. He said, however, he expects the office to be located in Bloomfield.

Garrison seeks guardian rights

KENNETT — Dr. Norman A. Garrison Jr., charged with the first degree murder of his ex-wife and who was held in contempt of Circuit Court here earlier this year when he failed to comply with a court order regarding the terms of custody of their children and a divorce settlement, filed a petition Wednesday in the office of the clerk of the Dunklin County Circuit Court seeking the court's permission to manage real estate inherited by their three children now residing with him and to sell their fashionable two- story Kennett home.

The petition — filed for Dr. Garrison by the law firm of Schapp, Graham and Reid of Fredericktown — named Don S. Jones, administrator of the estate of Lee Ann Garrison, as the defendant.

The petition alleges that Dr. Garrison — acting in capacity of guardian of the three children his ex-wife bore by him, Lila Annjonette, Norman A. Garrison III and Candice Michelle — has the right under Missouri law to remove the property of the nonresident wards to Mississippi, since the children were Mrs. Garrison's sole heirs.

The petition states that on Sept. 25 in the Chancery Court of Alcorn County, Miss., the court granted letters of guardianship to the physician of his three children by the late Mrs. Garrison, whom he is accused of murdering on Sept. 8.

Dr. Garrison's petition contends that under Missouri law he is entitled to the property in which the nonresident children are entitled and that he be permitted to remove from Missouri to Mississippi the property and sue and recover the same in any court.

The petition asks that the Circuit Court enter an order directing Jones, the public administrator of Dunklin County, to turn over the share of each of the three children's interest in the estate to the children and Dr. Garrison, although the petition acknowledges that the estate is presently being probated in Dunklin County Probate Court.

Dr. Garrison's suit contends that the divorce settlement, to which he agreed to in June, ordered him to convey the house to Lee Ann Garrison for life, with the remainder in fee to vest in the three children. Since she was killed by an unknown assailant on Sept. 8, the petition states, Dr. Garrison contends that his three children are entitled to a fourth of the estate each and that as "foreign guardian," he is entitled to take possession and sell his children's interest in the real estate.

Probate Judge Lawrence Bradley, after reviewing the petition Thursday, said it was his contention the Circuit Court had no jurisdiction in the matter, and appointed Mrs. Flora Todd, an aunt of the late Mrs. Garrison, as the guardian of the four children's estates.

The order of appointment, issued by Judge Bradley, read in part: "The said minors (Elizabeth Kimberlee, 12, Lila Annjonette, 9, Norman A. Garrison III, 5, and Candice Michelle, 2) have an estate within this state which a part thereof is located in Dunklin County; and said minors have an estate within the state which is not derived from a living parent and the best interests of the said minors require letters of guardianship for their estates and it is necessary to preserve said estates that a guardian of said estates be appointed and that Norman A. Garrison Jr., is a nonresident of the state of Missouri and none of the said minors are now 14 years of age, and that Said Flora Todd is a suitable and competent person for said guardianship."

Kimberlee Garrison is now living with Dr. and Mrs. Loys Wilson, under the care of Mrs. Todd, and the other three children remain in Mississippi at Dr. Garrison's home, where they have been since the beginning of summer.

When the divorce was granted in June, the court awarded Mrs. Garrison custody of the children, allowing the doctor to get them for a six- week visitation period in the summer plus shorter visits at other times. The children were not returned at the end of the six-week period by the doctor, because, his attorneys contended, the matter of custody was going to be reopened.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Experience is the dearest thing in the whole world. It cannot be purchased with money, and to secure it a man must spend his whole life.

WHERE YOUR TAX DOLLAR REALLY GOES

When Washington politicians talk of cutting the Federal budget, they invariably aim the scalpel at the Defense Department. However, that's like operating on a benign wart while ignoring a raging cancer in another part of the patient.

The cancer is the nation's social programs which have grown wildly in recent years and failed to give America much of a return on its investment. The Federal budget for the current fiscal year, which tops $300 billion for the first time, includes $100 billion for income security programs. That's more than double the amount spent on these programs in 1969.

Consider further: In 1968, President Johnson's last budget year, the government obligated $75.6 billion for defense and military assistance programs. The total requested by former President Nixon for this year is $92.6 billion, which, because of inflation, is actually a decrease from 1968.

In comparison, the amount spent by Federal, State and local governments for domestic social and economic programs in 1966 was $123 billion. The comparable amount in 1976 will be just over $400 billion. In other words, these programs during the last 10 years have been increasing at an average annual rate of 12.6 per cent — more than twice as fast as the growth of the GNP, which provides the tax base to pay for them.

Can there be any doubt where the real impetus to inflationary government spending is originating?

What is even more disturbing about this ruinous trend is the uneasy feeling that too many of those hard- earned tax dollars are going to those who don't deserve them. The Secretary of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare earlier this year reported that four out of every ten families receiving funds from the nation's largest welfare program were found to be either ineligible or paid incorrectly. Secretary Caspar Weinberger said that "national scandal" alone is costing taxpayers more than $1 billion annually. How many similar scandals are buried in government files?

We are by nature a generous people. None of us would deny to the truly needy our helping hand if it were at all possible to extend it. But none of us wants to feed a welfare cheater.

Next time someone talks about where those tax dollars are being wasted, do us all a favor and set him straight.

This is the real voice of America. And it is one of the great tasks of Presidential leadership to make our people aware that they share a fundamental unity of interest and purpose and belief.

SUPERMEN HAVE FEELINGS, TOO

WASHINGTON — For several years now, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been portrayed in magazines and books as Superman. Whenever there was trouble in the world, Henry would dash into a phone booth near the White House, change into his blue bodystoking costume and fly off to settle the matter.

It came as a shock the other day to hear Henry admit he was no longer Superman.

I was passing the phone booth and I saw Henry inside. "Good," I said to myself, "Henry's going to settle the oil crisis." I waited to see him fly out of the booth on his mission, but he just remained there.

"Henry," I finally said anxiously, "why haven't you changed into your costume?"

"I'm not going to be Superman any more," Henry said. "I'm sick and tired of working miracles."

"But, Henry, if you won't be Superman, what will we all do?"

"That's not my problem. Being Superman means you have to travel a lot. I want to spend more time with Nancy."

"I can appreciate that," I told him, "but you have an image to uphold. The media made you what you are today. You just can't go into a phone booth and say you're not coming out."

"Why should I come out?" Henry replied. "The House is picking on me; the Senate is picking on me; the press is picking on me. You know Supermen have feelings, too."

"You can't pay attention to criticism, Henry. If everyone loved you, you wouldn't be doing your job."

"Everyone (ital) used (unital) to love me," he said.

"Yes, but that's because they didn't like Nixon. You always looked so much better compared to him. Once he resigned, you were more or less on your own, and some people decided they loved you and some people decided they didn't."

"I think Superman should be loved by (ital) everybody (unital)," Henry said. "I don't mind criticism, What I don't like is unfair criticism."

"Nobody likes unfair criticism," I told him.

"I'm the first one to admit," he added, "that I'm not perfect. What I don't like is other people telling me I'm not perfect."

"Nobody likes to be told they're not perfect, Henry. The thing to do is to rise above it and prove they're wrong. Now get into that silly costume and fly off to the Middle East and straighten out our problems."

"I'm not going to do it unless I have assurance that people will stop picking on me."

"You have my word, Henry. I'll make sure that there is not one line in the newspapers questioning any of your past actions."

Henry started taking off his pants.

"Okay," he said, "I'll do it one more time. But if I hear any squawks from anybody about what I did, it's the last time I go into this phone booth."

"I don't know if I ever told you this, Henry," I said, "but you have lovely legs."

"Don't try to change the subject," he said as he took off his shoes and socks. This is everybody's last chance. If they don't like what I'm doing, let them get another Superman."

"They'll like it, Henry," I assured him. "They'll like it."

And so last Tuesday as people looked up into the sky they saw a weird object. One person said "It's a bird"; another person said "It's a plane," and then everyone cried out at once "NO, IT'S KISSINGER!" And we all slept better that night.

"Here's a Written Report, Mr. President, But It's in Invisible Ink!"

A SOVIET SATELLITE

Now we are being told that most Latin- American diplomats in Washington are now convinced that the U. S. will move to re-establish diplomatic relations with Cuba after the November elections.

Yet the American Security Council's report shows that Communist Cuba is at present more a Soviet satellite than at any time before, economically, culturally, politically and militarily.

It is now predicted in Havana that before long there will be the official announcement of Communist Cuba's cooperation with or perhaps fully joining in the Warsaw Pact, the military alliance of Communist Eastern Europe. This prediction was given credibility by the presence of a Soviet naval squadron, under the command of Rear Admiral Yuri Ivanovich Mozarov, in Havana harbor while the Soviet controlled Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (CMEA) were in session there. This was the twelfth Soviet naval squadron to visit Communist Cuba since the famous meeting between the then Special Presidential Adviser on National Security, Dr. Henry Kissinger, and Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet Minister of Foreign Affairs, which was supposed to deal with the issue Cienfuegos on the southern coast of Communist Cuba.

Altogether some twenty-two Soviet cruisers and destroyers have visited Cuba, plus 15 submarines, a number the operation of a new and powerful Cuban radar station at La Bajada, in the western - most part of Cuba, was inaugurated. This radar station has a range of some 400 miles and reaches the American coasts on the Gulf of Mexico.

Also, huge Soviet "Bear" bombers continue to fly from their bases in Europe to airfields in Communist Cuba and back, along the Atlantic Coast of the U. S.

The Institute of Nuclear Physics at Managua has been expanded in recent years to cover most of the old National Military Academy, and since 1969 some 700 Soviet technicians and guards have been working at the Institute. Now Canada has offered the Castro regime some equipment for the Nuclear Institute.

Military technicians sent by the Soviet Union are in charge of all units of the Cuban Armed Forces, as supervisors, advisers, or instructors. Their number is estimated to be around 22,000 men. The Cuban sugar industry is also directed by some 400 Soviet technicians.

Prof. C. Mesa-Lago of the University of Pittsburgh, the author of some of the most important books about the Castro regime, had an article on Communist Cuba in the June issue of the magazine "Vision," published simultaneously in the U. S. and Mexico, in which he said that the Soviet Union has given Communist Cuba the advanced MIG-23, to be flown by Soviet trained Cuban pilots, the first time anybody had disclosed in print that there are MIG-23s in Communist Cuba.

Appearing on a television program, Moshe Dayan stated there were 3,000 Cubans (Pilots, artillerymen, missilemen, etc.) fighting for Syria against Israel. The Pentagon then issued a statement the following day to the effect that there were "only between 100 and 500 Cubans fighting for Syria."

On the home front here, seven contingents of the so-called "Venceremos" Brigade of American young leftists have gone to Communist Cuba since December 1969, the last group on April 1974. Its recruits have just come back after a circuitous trip to Havan, Bridgeport (Barbados), New York City. Altogether some 2,300 recruits of the Venceremos "Brigade" have gone to Communist Cuba for indoctrination, training, contacts and resources. Some of the earlier recruits have already worked with the Weathermen, the Symbionese Liberation Army, and other terrorists groups.

So except for a few bleeding hearts, we see no reason to resume relations with Castro's communist utopia-- especially since Communist Cuba wants mostly is U. S. trade and aid.

YOUR 2000%
TAX HIKE

Perhaps Standard readers are getting tired of our constant harping on federal deficit spending and high taxes, but we believe the crux of inflation is excessive government spending. Here are the indisputable facts in the case:

In 1929 the entire federal budget came to less than $3 billion. That works out at an incredible 10,000 per cent increase in federal spending over the last 40 years.

The almost straight-up climb occurred during a period when the nation's population was growing from 120 million to about 210 million, an increase of about 75 per cent.

That means federal spending has been escalating up to $300 billion a year at a pace 130 times faster than the population growth.

The greater part of the increase has occurred since the end of World War II. In 1947, for example, the federal budget stood at $29.8 billion. In 1972 it was $250 billion. Hence, in the 25 years from Harry Truman to Richard Nixon, the budget jumped up more than 800 per cent.

State and local spending, meanwhile, took a corresponding upward swing -- from less than $20 billion in 1948 to more than $160 billion in 1972.

In terms of taxes to pay Uncle Sam's bills, the per capital federal tax burden was $64 back in 1932. But by 1972 it had shot up to $1,502 -- a hike of more than 2000 per cent.

Again, the pace upward was steep after World War II. In 1959 the per capita tax load was only $630. So it has nearly tripled from Dwight D. Eisenhower to the end of the Nixon administration.

Small wonder that national opinion polls show ever-increasing numbers of Americans favor putting the brakes on government spending and of course on taxes as well.

One poll showed that 70 per cent of respondents even looked with some favor on the idea of tax revolt.

We have asked for, and got, too many services from government. Too much of this we could have done for ourselves, we now leave to bureaucrats and politicians. Inflations will never ease until we stop the free- loading and begging.

"I think I'll have a bit to eat," said the first inebriated fellow. Whereupon, he plucked the olive from his martini and ate it.

"Ah," said his sizzled companion, "that calls for an after- dinner drink!"

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: No recession in junkets

WASHINGTON -- Each year, members of Congress explore the world, riding elephants in Ceylon, viewing art in Sweden, fingering chopsticks in China, poking their legislative noses into faraway places from the girlie shows of Paris to the palaces of Riyadh.

As part of our watch on waste, we have reported how these congressional travelers have squandered the taxpayers' money on vacations in official guise. Congressional junkets cost the taxpayers an estimated $1 million a year, which is a lot of moola to spend on legislators who preach austerity for everyone else.

But the junkets that cost the taxpayers nothing, we have discovered, may wind up as the most expensive of all. Dozens of legislators take trips overseas at the expense of foreign governments. They are lavished with hospitality by their friendly foreign hosts. Then the touring lawmakers return to Capitol Hill to vote for foreign aid, sugar quotas and other benefits for the host governments.

Not only is it poor economics for our lawmakers to repay hospitality with foreign aid, but it is unconstitutional for them to accept the hospitality in the first place.

Our founding fathers, fearful that some federal officials might sell out their country for foreign gratuities, added a special clause to the Constitution. This prohibits them from taking any "emolument ... of any kind whatever from any King, Prince or foreign state."

Yet the tourists from Capitol Hill have ignored the Constitution, not to mention the 1966 Foreign Gifts Act, by accepting illegal trips at the expense of foreign governments. Here are a few we have uncovered:

House Agriculture Chairman Bob Poage led still another congressional expedition to Brazil. The Brazilian government, looking for bigger sugar quotas, picked up the travel bills. Those who accompanied Paoge on the free trip were Congressmen Frank Stubblefield, D-Ky., William Wampler, R-Va., George Goodling, R-Pa., John Zwach, R-Minn., Ed Jones, D-Tenn., Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., and Jerry Litton, D-Mo.

Mainland China has opened the bamboo curtain to a number of Marco Polos from Capitol Hill. Their travel expenses inside China have been paid by the Mao Tse-tung government. Among those who have accepted a free tour of China are Senators J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., John Sparkman, D-Ala., Gale McGee, D-Wyo., Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., Robert Griffin, R-Mich., and Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii; also Congressmen Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., John McFall, D-Calif., Jerry Pettis, R-Calif., Peter Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., William Maillard, R-Calif., William Broomfield, R-Mich., and Barbara Jordan, D-Tex.

The other China, governed by Chiang Kai-shek,, has also rolled out the redcrpet for congressional tourists. Congressmen Bob McClory, R-Ill., Bob Leggett, D- Calif., and Floyd Spence, R-S.C., were flown to Taiwan under the auspices of the Chinese Nationalist government. The bills were picked up, strictly speaking, by a Chinese foundation. A dozen staff members from Capitol HIll were also treated to a free Taiwan vacation. Ralph Vandervort, a Senate Space Committee staffer, explained to us that the trip was "kind of a public relations thing" by the Chiang Kai-shek regime.

Some three dozen Congressmen and their aides, led by House Democratic leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, flew en masse to both Taiwan and South Korea, courtesy of those governments. So heavy was the congressional tourist traffic in Taiwan that U.S. Ambassador Walter McConaughy cabled plaintively: "This influx of visitors ... is straining embassy resources to the full."

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., as we have previously reported, traveled to Iran, Pakistan, Ceylon, Indonesia and New Zealand with his wife and daughter. In violation of the Constitution, most of Hartke's expenses were footed by the host governments. The U.S. embassy in Ceylon was quietly alerted by the State Department that the Hartkes had "side interests idelphant ride, sightseeing tour and gem shopping."

Many individual members of Congress have seen the world as the guests of foreign governments. Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., took a free excursion to Sweden to visit an art exhibit. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, flew to the Middle East at the expense of the Kuwaiti government and came back supporting the Arabs. Even Attorney General William Saxbe, while he was a Senator from Ohio, took a three- week tour of Bangladesh, paid for in part by that government.

Footnote: Without exception, the congressional travelers told us they were unaware of the prohibition on accepting plane fares and hotel accomodations paid for by foreign governments.

WASHINGTON — This is a good society, after all. Observe, please, who took personal insult from the President's recommendation of a 5 per cent tax surcharge on annual incomes over $15,000 per family. The resentment ricocheted from New York and San Francisco street cleaners to the more elitist building and construction trades workers; from many police forces to truck drivers; from municipal employes to auto workers.

This is a high- wage society. It's going higher. So will prices. And nearly everyone overlooks the fact that the national welfare (relief) bill now tops $40 billion annually. And 1974 will zoom out on truly high wage wins by coal- diggers, aerospace employes, airline pilots and oil workers. The latter now are really gung-ho. What easier pickings these days than the oil companies?

The price picture has a Dorian Gray grimness about it too. Price- makers are anticipating a wild union bargaining in 1975-- especially during the early months. There will be some 3,500 construction contracts up for renegotiation, steep cost- of-living clause increases and wage- reopeners. Bill Usery, Federal Mediation chief, tells me that the unions will be going for at least 10 and 12 per cent money increases for starters. Fringes will be extra.

There's not much Jerry Ford has with which to hold the line. So as an old center he passed the ball to Congress which these days is less loaded with heavyweights than usual. It will do very little for months.

He talked of his Council on Wage and Price Stability. Well, the day after he addressed the Congress, this council had an almost empty eight- room suite in the new Executive Office Building. Rattling around in it were its executive director, pragmatist Al Rees, former head of Princeton's economics department, and a deputy director, a public relations man and a secretary. Prof. Rees was searching for lawyers, economists and researchers.

The 53- year- old Rees is a sanguine, ofttimes enthusiastic, practical economist. Rare, indeed. But he's fighting this war with bows and arrows -- without a quiver. His is the awesome assignment -- get the featherbedding out of government, labor and industry. Remove all restrictions. This would take a combination of Roosevelt, Truman, Churchill and Attilla the Hun.

Prof. Rees now is keeping his eye on the scarcity and high price of anti- freeze, the coal industry collective bargaining, and the threat of airline pilots to strike if they don't make spectacular gains. He can't interfere in the nine negotiations. And that's that.

Arnold Miller's coal diggers will win very handsome wage-fringe increases. What if these are added to the current $20 to $25 a ton coal price and passed on to the private and industrial consumers? What if the utilities have to pay so much more?

Then Prof. Rees, with an assist from the Council of Economic Advisers, estimates the impact on inflation -- and passes it on to the President. Well, at least to his shop foreman, L. William Seidman, Mr. Ford's bright keeper of all domestic accounts. Sort of economic czar.

Bill Seidman is the man to watch. He's a fine snorkeler, skier, jogger, push-up chap. He knows his way around the intricate maze of corporation accounting. Certainly he knows where some of Manhattan's best East Side restaurants are (not far from his big town apartment).

But he's new to Washington's infighting, the frustrations of group encounters with the dug-in, ever kingdom- conscious Washington bureaucracy.

Neither he nor Jerry Ford really knows the labor movement -- though the President has had some good talks with labor chief George Meany. Actually, the President has been saved from considerable clobbering by the labor chiefs only because of the civil war inside the Democratic party. Labor's high command -- insiders say -- just won't go along with a new politics Democratic presidential candidate in 1976. So why cut oneself off from the White House now? Why knock "Jerry? ... Rocky's our man, isn't he? And he'll be Vice President. So let's cool it for a while."

Thus, though the President's speech turned them off, at least it didn't turn them on -- loudly. Privately, union leaders said they were sharply disappointed.

Labor's rank and file will not be that silent. Most of them are for letting the other fellows make the sacrifices. Just watch coming negotiations. For the moment there's nothing to stop them from pushing for 12 to 15 per cent annual wage increases. Nor the price-makers, either.

Just about all Prof. Rees can do is to get into off- the-record discussions with labor and business leaders in an attempt to head off higher inflationary wages and prices. Then he must go to the President via Seidman. Then, if permitted, Dr. Rees can hold public hearings to shame the pushers- up of wages and prices into some sort of rollback, the chances for which are as good as a comeback by Bob Haldeman.

So the society is good -- and inflated. It will continue inflating. Without congressional help there's little President Ford can do. And it's sad to say but if you knew many of them as I do, you'd know the congressional power brokers aren't about to help a Republican President even if he is a decent fellow who would rather be right than President.

In search of the American dream

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of 18 articles exploring the theme, In Search of the American Dream. This article discusses the settling of America and the surprises encountered by colonists. The author is professor of history at the University of California, Berkeley.

Settling America

This work, called "Peaceable Kingdom" by Edward Hicks, portrays correctly what the early settlers of America found--a land that was empty but also was inhabitated by savages, some friendly, some otherwise. Painting is from Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art collection.

When Englishmen first began to scent opportunity in America, they were told two controdictory "facts" about the new land. They were told, on the one hand, that it was a "desert," a "waste firmament." They were told, at the same time, that "savages" lived there. For Englishmen and Anglo-Americans both statements remained correct for centuries: America was both empty (an opportunity) and filled (with problems).

America's apparent emptiness can be explained by considering English perspectives at that time. The native Indians were not numerous by European standards, especially not in comparison to the enormous expanse of territory they lived in. What we would call a relatively low density of population, Englishmen were then perfectly justified in perceiving as "few."

More importantly, Englishmen thought the Indians had no "settled habitations." What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put.

Initially, therefore, Englishmen had no notion of exterminating the native peoples, nor even of sweeping them aside; even though people already lived in America, Englishmen thought, such an immense land had plenty of room for more.

The warped perception that caused the English to see Indians as unsettled wanderers was in large measure a function of how they saw society at home. The severe, almost catastrophic dislocations which accompanied the English Reformation and Henry VIII's fluctuating tempers had resulted in large numbers of displaced persons.

Thrown off the land onto English countryside and villages, they became the "wandering beggars" to whom Kakluyt, the "trumpet" of American colonization, had referred in his "Discourse Concerning Western Planting."

Social dislocation and what we would call "underemployment problems" persuaded many Englishmen that England was overpopulated in general and especially overpopulated by "undesirables." Given the assumptions of the day, America was seen not as a dumping ground for these undesirables (as Australia was to seem much later) but as an empty and fertile ground for the settlement, employment, and hence moral and social reformation of the offscourings of English society.

At the same time, as the Protestant Reformation took increasing hold on English society, certain religious fringe groups came to think of America as a refuge from a mounting threat of persecution. They were not immune, any more than Englishmen generally, to the scent of opportunity which by the early 1600s was so very much in the air. The various streams of attraction to America and propulsion from England were thoroughly mixed.

In retrospect, the early "great migration'. (1620-1650) of the English to America is particularly striking in terms of the number and variety of people and motivations involved. Relative to the population of Europe, probably more persons left Europe for the New World during those decades than at any time before or since.

The English went principally to three areas: the eastern Caribbean (Barbados and the few small Leeward Islands), the Chesapeake Bay (Virginia and Maryland), and eastern New England (the Massachusetts Bay and the Plymouth Colony.)

Some went against their will, especially the Scots and Irish, victim- prisoners of the English Civil Wars, who migrated to the West Indies. Many went for better fortunes and better times: such people probably predominated in the Chesapeake area and were certainly prevalent everywhere else. Some went in the hope of fulfilling the faith we describe as religious, and while it would be right to ascribe "religion" as the predominating motive of those who came to New England, it would be radically incorrect to assign thereby a lack of otherworldly faith to those not fortunate enough to have joined God's special project there.

However sure various breeds of Englishmen were about God's intentions, the various English communities in America turned out to be different sorts of places. In the island, sugar and the slave labor it seemed to require took over almost totally.

The Chesapeake settlements, with a diffuse population, spilled all over the eastern, watered portions of the area. After almost being wiped out by the native inhabitants, the colonists eventually succeeded in establishing a populous but sparsely settled community in Virginia, devoid of real villages and devoted mainly to staple agriculture. (They hunted but mainly they farmed; ironically they went, unintentionally, part way toward reproducing the Indian woodland cultures their forebears had disliked.) Only in New England (and this development was to persist for a very long time) did the English manage to reproduce in the New World what they thought valuable, as a social mode, in the Old.

The Pilgrims in Plymouth and the Puritans in Massachusetts have long attracted attention because they were so articulate about their own goals.

Though the Puritans were a much larger, wealthier, and better educated group, they shared with the Pilgrims a powerful sense of mission. In England, their own low-church, modified- Calvinist Protestantism seemed to be on the defensive against the forces of the Crown, the closely allied Church of England, and, not least, the numerous legions of ungodliness.

Determined that their "true religion" and the Lord's will should prevail in the wilderness, they set about to establish "Bible Commonwealths" where families, society, the polity, and the churches would all be harmoniously ordered according to God's Word.

All this required inner discipline and inevitably (given their view of the essential nature of man) outer discipline as well. They sternly punished lying, drunkenness, fornication and all the myriad other sins to which men and women, and even children, seemed so wickedly inclined.

They enforced orthodoxy and discipline in the churches; they harried out religious dissenters and went so far as to hang two Quakers. The Puritans were indeed pious, intolerant moralists, but they were not prudes. They punished sexual offenses but they were not in the least surprised by them.

They wore colorful clothing, suitable, of course, to their social stations. When Harvard College thought it necessary to limit drinking at commencement, the authorities restricted degree-takers to three gallons of wine per man.

Whether the Puritans succeeded or failed in their mission is a matter of definition and they were themselves ambivalent on the matter. Even as they railed at the prevalence of wickedness among them and at the decline of true piety, they remained acutely conscious that their society and churches were superior to England's.

While they were keenly aware of men's tendency to disperse to new, empty lands, they prided themselves on their regulated pattern of settlement, ordered town by ordered town. They were, indeed, the most realist of utopians.

They expected to establish a New Israel in the wilderness, and they demanded godly thoughts and behavior of its members; at the same time they knew that Adam's fall from grace meant that men were inherently and perversely wicked.

People who demand perfection yet do not expect to achieve it are inevitably condemned to ambivalence about the results.

There were other such experiments in America, but with major differences. The most notable and undeniably successful was Pennsylvania. There William Penn and his fellow Quakers (whom the Puritans hated, partly because they had so much in common) deliberately founded a colony that would welcome all varieties of Protestants.

The idea was a relatively new one, but it led quite directly, as things turned out, to populouness and prosperity even beyond the dreams of the founders. It led also to an even greater novelty- ethnic diversity, a development of such critical importance in all the colonies that it deserves separate attention in another lecture.

JEFFERSON CITY-- A special Senate Committee on Welfare has recommended that the federal government assume full financing of the aid to dependent children program.

At the same time, the committee headed by Sen. Robert A. Young, D- St. Ann, came up with a long list of recommended laws and suggestions for the Senate Appropriations Committee when it gets to consideration of the welfare budget-- now the Division of Family Services.

"We are hopeful," Young said, "that this report— based on a series of hearings around the state— will lead to some meaningful legislation to take care of the many complaints we heard about the present system.

"We have also set out some findings which we hope will give the Appropriations Committee a better insight into the operations of this department.

"It seems to me, after these hearings, that our legislature should be reviewing big programs like this on an annual basis to make sure we're getting value received for our tax dollars."

One recommended law would eliminate the present property maximum of $10,500 for ADC families and provide instead a "homestead exemption" for the ADC and general relief programs-- the same system used for the old age assistance, the blind and the disabled programs under the new federal supplemental security income program.

Also recommended was a strong fraud law and enough money for the attorney general to hire staff members to enforce it.

Other recommendations for state legislation included:

Include the natural father in the ADC unemployed parent program.

Set up a fund to pay for vocational job training for those on ADC, including money for day care of children while parents are in training.

The committee suggested that the Appropriations Committee review many administrative practices, including duplication of staffing between income maintenance and family services and reduction of eligibility and overpayment error to not more than 8 per cent.

Reduction of paper work and staff time was recommended along with study of possible use of a "picture identification service card" to show eligibility and services authorized.

Reduction of the number of required forms, more staff training, greater courtesy by employes, more rapid handling of correspondence, a study of the possible use of computers and the possibility of mailing food stamp coupons and assistance checks at the same time were also suggested.

The committee got a lot of complaints about slow pay for medical and dental services and suggested the whole vendor fee schedule be reviewed.

"If savings accrue from recommendations," the report said, "consideration should be given to increasing individual grants."

Murray Lane Baptist Church is setting

Murray Lane Baptist Church was the setting at 7 p.m. Sept. 20 when marriage vows were exchanged between Karen Sue Holsinger and David Eugene Syre. The Rev. Wade Paris officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holsinger, 908 Arlington Road, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Syre of Bertrand.

The theme song from "Love Story" set the mood as family members were ushered into the candlelit church and pews adorned with bows.

Billie Fair was organist, and Greta Davis sang, "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor- length gown of white velvet featuring pearl and lace trimming around the neckline and empire waist. The tapered sleeves were also accented with pearl and lace trimmcomplemented by a Juliet cap which held a three-tiered fingertip- length veil edged with lace.

They wore floor- length dresses of polyester crepe. The gowns featured empire waistlines, high necklines and long sleeves. Mrs. Hunt's dress was blue with tiny white roses, while the bridesmaids wore mint green and yellow gowns with tiny roses.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth and held a three-tiered white cake adorned with a miniature bride and groom. Two candles and a flower arrangement in a heirloom honeydish, which belonged to the bride's great-great- grandmother, accented the table.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 17 and my sister is 12. We need your help desperately.

Our father has been secretly dating another woman off and on for several years. Mom knew about it and broke them up on two occasions.

Last January Mom died. Dad started to date this woman almost immediately. Sometimes he doesn't come home at night and we know he is with her.

It looks like they are going to be married. This is very hard for us to take because we know how much heartache she caused our mom. The woman is divorced and has two children. There are four of us. (We have two younger brothers.)

My sister and I think that if the ten of us try to live under one roof it will be a disaster. We are unable to hide our true feelings for this woman and don't know what to do. Are we wrong in feeling this way? -- From Chicago

Dear Chicago: I have no idea what your father's marriage was like, and neither do you. I am not condoning his behavior, but I am suggesting that there might have been some factors you kids didn't know about.

If your dad does marry this woman please do your darnedest to create an atmosphere of acceptance and forgiveness. Remember -- "Hate the sin, but love the sinner."

Dear Ann Landers: It's taken me until now to simmer down after reading the letter from the young man who wanted to picket the doctor's office because he was sent a bill for $40 after removing a plantar's wart.

I have been a medical assistant's secretary for nearly three years and I am sick of hearing complaints like this. First of all, a doctor is a professional man who has studied, worked and sacrificed many precious hours of leisure that many of us take for granted.

My boss is at the hospital at 6 a.m. to make his rounds. He pinch hits for other doctors, does clinic work, attends meetings and is in his office at 12:30 to see patients.

His bills are reasonable, yet I must spend hours sending out "reminders" and telephoning patients about long- overdue remittances. It's strange how they turn from sick and desperate people to deadbeats. They MUST see the doctor at once because they are dying! When they get well they'd rather have died than pay their bill.

Thanks for listening, Ann. I feel better now. -- Teed Off

Dear T.D.: I hope the kid who had the plantar's wart sees your letter. And for the record, the price was NOT high. If the job was well done and the wart was removed permanently, he got a bargain.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 19-year- old son is stationed about 600 miles from home. He phones collect every Sunday, and I live for those phone calls. I told him before he left to call us collect, in fact, I insisted on it.

Whenever his collect calls come my husband becomes annoyed. He says the boy should cut down on something else and pay for the calls himself if he wants to talk to us.

I should add, this lad sends his younger sister (who is handicapped) $10 a month, so you can see he is not an insensitive person. Please give us your opinion, Ann. Should he call collect or not? -- A Mother

Dear Mother: Thousands of parents whose sons wore the uniform would give anything to hear their voices again, but they never will. Hand this column to your husband.

This pair of St. Louis Cardinals may be a deciding factor in the football game Sunday at Busch Stadium. Jim Bakken (kicking ball) and Roger Wehrli (22) will be teaming up to try to beat the Dallas Cowboys in their toughest test this season. The Cardinals lead the Eastern Division with a 4- 0 record.

Tigers win

After the Tigers defense held the Indians scoreless Gessent sent a 21-yard field goal through the uprights for a 10-0 lead which held up through the remainder of the first half.

David Gross didn't waste any time scoring in the second half for the Tigers as the fleet back broke through the Jackson defensive setup for a 95-yard kickoff return. Brent Chenowetch ran for the two extra points and Cape had an 18-0 lead.

Jackson scored their only points on the night as Bob Lichtenegger ran in from the five yard line. Kent Gibb caught a pass from Terry Holmes for the two extra points.

Poplar Bluff traveled to St. Louis and defeated Northwest 7-6. John Casey Poplar Bluff's starting quarterback who has played every game since his freshmen year stayed home with mono. Northwests starting quarterback Jim Chote was unable to play. Both teams played with their second team quarterbacks.

With twenty-five seconds remaining in the second quarter Northwest's Matt Creath passed eight yards to Mike Barton for the score. Point after missed.

The Charleston Blue Jays advanced their record to four wins and one loss Friday night defeating the Cairo Pistols 39-0 in a non-conference ball game.

Both teams were fairly balanced in the first period as neither team was able to score.

In the middle of the second quarter the Cairo center snapped the ball out of the end zone for a two point safety. Later in the quarter Ralph Mitchell ran 45 yards for the first touchdown of the game and Kevin Hess kicked the extra point following. The Blue Jay's Charlie McCluney tackled the Cairo quarterback in the end zone for the second safety of the quarter.

In the final seconds of the third quarter, quarterback Keith Quertermous threw a 47 yard pass to Clint Clark to return to the locker room with an 18-0 lead at the half.

In the third quarter reserve quarterback Hess threw a 56 yard pass to Jon McMikle for another Charleston touchdown. Hess provided the extra point.

KENNETT --The Sikeston Bulldogs freshmen took their second loss of the season against one win and a tie here Thursday night as the Kennett freshmen won 22 -8.

The Bulldogs couldn't contain the bigger Indians of defense and were unable to mount any kind of consistant offense.

After a scoreless first quarter the Indians scored on a 10 yard run into the end zone and added the two extra points for an 8 -0 lead.

Kennett was leading 8 -0 in the third period and ran to the Sikeston nine yard for a first and goal but Sikeston held and took over. On the first play from scrimmage the ball was fumbled and Kennett recovered in the endzone for a touchdown and added two extra points for a 16 -0 lead.

KENNETT——For the tenth time in a row the Sikeston Bulldogs ended up on the short end of the final score. This time the successful opponents were the Kennett Indians, who triumphed 19-0, and dropped the Bulldog record to 0-5. Kennett was the last team the Bulldogs were able to defeat, and that SHS victory was one long year ago.

First string tailback Richy Moore, the leading Indian ballcarrier on the year, was unable to play and Kennett was in what appeared to be offensive trouble. The scouting report on the Indians indicated they passed well, and it was assumed that the hosts would rely mostly on the strong right arm of quarterback Robert Roundtree. If Kennett coach Bill Arment had know that Roundtree was going to complete just three of 11 passes before the game started, he might have just conceded the contest. Its a good thing he didn't. An unheralded tailback with the unimposing dimensions of 5 foot-7, 145 pounds, and bearing number 10 made the night a long one for the crimson and white Bulldogs. Don Downing, a second-string halfback, ran for 168 yeards and score and fipped a halfback option toss to Eddio Cross for another one to give Kennett the win that wasn't even as close as the final score indicated. The Indians used their superior strength and football sense to control the ball and, for the most part, completely stymie the hapless Bulldog offense.

A long punt return by Dowling set up the first Dog score, which came on an 11-yard scamper, by the hard-running back. Larry Johnson, who missed two field goal attempts--one a 55-yarder--and two extra points, was good on this conversion and the Indians had all the points they were to need.

A Tom DeRoush fumble, surprisingly the only fumble of the night for the slick-fingered Bulldogs, set up the second Kennett score two-thirds of the way through the third period. After the wide sweeps by the supposedly slow Kennett runners had worked all night, the Bulldogs finally came up to head off Dowling who cooly tossed the ball to Cross. He appeared to have trapped the ball in the endzone, but the referees saw the play differently.

The final Indian score came when Indian defensive back Ricky Rebstock picked off an errant Luber ariel and returned it to the S-11, from where 5-foot-8, 220-pound Ricky Limbaugh bulled it over two plays later to run the final score to 19-0.

It was a long game, delayed by 23 penalties. It was hard or whether neither team was exactly playing inspired football. The general impression was that the second term would be more accurate.

Once again it was a case of the defense putting two much pressure on a defence that is finally beginning to crack. There was inspiring play from underclassmen Fred Gilliland, Rob Neuman and Juakene Dumas, but it was way too little to stem the tide against the obviously superior Indian players. The monentum which the Bulldogs so sorely needed once again escaped the Bulldogs and they risk further the slipping in to a defeastist attitude.

Hayti rolls over Chaffee

The Hayti Indians didn't let the Chaffee Red Devil's victory over Illmo-Scott City last week frighten them one bit, as the Indians scored in every quarter and defeated the Red Devils 40-6.

Hayti's Danny White scored three touchdowns and gained 165 yards rushing. Eddie Martin Hayti's other back rushed for 104 yards. The Indians rushed for 330 yards.

In the first quarter the Indians mounted a 65 yard drive and scored with White on a nine yard run up the middle. Eddie Martin ran for a two point conversion. Chaffee mounted a fifty yard drive and scored on a three yard run. Point after missed.

In the second quarter White again scored on a fifteen yard run off tackle. Eddie Martin made the two point conversion. White was denied a score late in the second quarter when he fumbled at the one and Chaffee recovered in the end zone. Half Hayti 16- Chaffee 6.

In the third quarter Indian Safety Wayne Robinson intercepted a Red Devil pass and returned it sixty yards for the score. Quarterback Jimmy Morgan passed to End Alex Clinton for the Point after. Danny White blocked a Chaffee punt and returned it fifteen yards to score. Patrick Thomas ran for a two point conversion.

In the fourth quarter Hayti's Don Flowers scored on a twenty- eight yard run up the middle. Thomas again ran the extra point over to give the Hayti Indians a 40 to 6 victory.

Scott Wright started the Ram attack early in the first quarter on a 23 yard run that resulted in a 6-0 lead. Scott Amick passed for the two point conversion following Wrights run to lead 8-0.

The Tiger's Taylor sprinted 22 yards in the middle of the third period to take a 10-8 lead.

Scott City's Mark Short plunged one yard in the fourth period for a touchdown and the lead. Ram quarterback Terry Blattel, threw to Steve Hanchen for the two point conversion. Short repeated his earlier feat with another one yard plunge with Dave Heuring kicking the extra point.

Short ended the night with 14 carries for 57 yards.

John Welsh sneaked across the goal for two touchdowns and two extra points to lead the Malden Greenwave past the Portageville Bulldogs 20-0 in a Southern Division conference game at Malden Friday night. The win game the Greenwave a 2-0 conference slate and 3-2 overall this season.

Welsh scored his first TD in the first quarter after the Greenwave had marched to the Bulldog one yard line. The big quarterback plunged into the endzone for the two extra points to give Malden an 8-0 lead which held up the rest of the way.

The two teams played fine defense the rest of the first half but tailback Nicky Arnold broke loose by the aid of blocks by Kenny Stegall, Jeff Barker, Mark Jones and Mike Broyles, for a 30 yard touchdown. The extra point was missed and the score was 14-0.

COLUMBIA --The 55-mile -per -hour speed limit saves lives. If you don't believe it, ask any deer...

Ollie Torgerson and Wayne Porath, deer biologists for the Department of Conservation, have figures showing that the slower speed cut deer deaths last year and they expect an even more dramatic cut now that the slower speed is mandatory.

"The figures are misleading," Torgerson says. "Actually, we had a very slight increase of four per cent in 1973 deer deaths, but the herd still is growing so there are more deer to be hit. And the increase was much lower than the 15 per cent increases we'd had in the previous few years."

Fall, especially October and November, is one of two periods when deer kills are the most likely to happen. Deer are beginning their breeding season and are restless and likely to be crossing highways.

Again in May, the animals will be breaking up winter groups and does will be looking for fawning areas. Auto -deer collisions are by far the most common accidental deer death and besides being no fun for the deer, such collisions are dangerous for drivers.

There were 2529 highway deer deaths reported in 1973 and undoubtedly others that went unreported -Torgerson feels may drivers picked up the deer they hit because of high meat prices last autumn.

Torgerson had some suggestions for drivers so they can avoid hitting deer. "The best and easiest one is to slow down immediately when the driver sees the flash of deer eyes in his headlights," he says. "There's no way to predict what a deer or any other animal will do when it's confused by headlights."

"Often there is more than one deer. The driver sees one run across the road and assumes that's the only one and then he hits a second one. Deer usually travel in groups."

Torgerson also recommends blowing the horn to scare animals on or near the road. "I do it for quail, rabbits, and squirrels --anything I see that I might hit," he says.

Reported deer deaths other than hunting have risen from 2128 in 1969 to 3334 last year. Next to autos, illegal kills are the largest reported cause -but most illegal kills obviously are not reported.

Fences accounted for a few deer (63) last year, while undetermined and other causes took about 100. A particular pleasure to Torgerson and Porath is that there was only one reported death from disease.

"That indicated that statewide the deer herd is healthy and growing in numbers." The reported deaths are one measure of the state of the deer herd. The number of deaths is proportional to the number of deer overall. North Missouri deer deaths rose, but stayed about the same in central and southern areas.

October and November are two of the peak months for deer deaths on highways as breeding season makes deer move much more than they do in other times of the year, but lower speed limits have saved deer lives as well as human lives. Missourians annually hit more than 2,000 deer on the state's highways.

Fertilizer prices keep on rising

COLUMBIA — Nitrogen fertilizer prices, already up 150 per cent over a year ago, are likely to keep on rising, Nolin Hein, University of Missouri - Columbia farm management specialist, reported this week.

"We expect nitrogen supplies to be tight until 1980," said Hein. "Generally, farmers will be able to get what they need, but they'll have to pay for it."

As of Sept. 15 of this year, anhydrous ammonia in Missouri was selling for $225 a ton – up to $130 over a year ago. Hein expects the price to continue to rise at least until spring of next year.

The price outlook for other farm fertilizers is better --- but not much.

Superphosphate prices in Missouri were at $180 -- up $80 over a year ago. They're also expected to keep rising through spring.

"In the longer run, phosphate supplies should be tight only for the next year or two," said Hein. "By then some new plants will be in operation, and supplies should be somewhat better than nitrogen."

"Potash appears to be the only for the next year or two," said Hein. "By then some new plants will be in operation, and supplies should be somewhat better than nitrogen."

"Potash appears to be the only bright spot in the fertilizer situation for the coming year," said Hein.

"The current price is higher than I expected it to be, but that isn't because of any shortage in plant capacity. It's probably due to increased production and transportation costs. Also, these plants (mostly in Canada) have had labor problems that reduced plant production.

Because of the price and supply situation, Hein had this advice for farmers:

-- Book supplies of nitrogen and phosphate well in advance of the planting season.

-- Soil test and don't apply any more fertilizer than is profitable.

"Also," he added, "this may be a poor year to abruptly change suppliers. If fertilizer supplies are short, suppliers will tend to supply their old, regular customers first."

Bakery wastes may be used as rations

"Bread and bakery waste products are high energy feeds that could nutritionally substitute for corn in hog rations," reports John Rea, University of Missouri-Columbia swine sepcialist.

While that's only one of the corn substitutes Rea suggests for hog producers, he does point out that protein content of these bakery wastes averages around 10 per cent. Some researchers say these bakery wastes can substitute for 75 to 100 per cent of the corn in a hog ration, depending on the fat and water content.

"If hog producers can afford to do so, most will stick with corn in their hog rations," says Rea. But the summer's drought and rising prices has many asking about substitutes."

Besides the bread and bakery products, other possibilities are ground rye, molasses , dried whey, tallow and lard.

Some hogs might even be fed moldy or damaged grain. But before hog producers use these, Rea suggests they evaluate them on a "case by case" basis.

He says the moldy or damaged grain probably has enough nutrient value, but it might be toxic to hogs. He suggests that producers dilute the moldy grain with other grains, try trial feeding with a few animals, and avoid feeding it to pregnant females or breeding stock.

USDA announces loan interest hike

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced an increase in the interest rate on price-support commodity loans and on storage facility and drying equipment loans made by Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

The increases, from 7.25 to 9.375 per annum on Commodity Loans and from 8.75 to 9.375 per cent per annum on storage facility and drying equipment loans will more nearly reflect the cost of borrowing money to CCC.

In making the announcement, the department said the new interest rates will be applicable to all such loans for which applications are received by CCC on or after Oct. 1, 1974.

Also announced recently is a change in the policy regarding interest on price-support commodity loans and on storage facility and drying equipment loans made by CCC. The interest rat e on loans for which applications are received on and after Oct. 1 will be subject to changes, twice a year, during the time the loan is outstanding. Loans for which applications were received prior to Oct. 1 will continue to bear interest at the rate stated in this loan agreement until maturity.

Grain storage is becoming marketing tool

SIKESTON— On- farm grain storage is becoming a marketing tool for modern farmers, Robert A. Wright of the Sikeston Production Credit Association, said today.

"Farmers are rapidly becoming market specialists," he added. "The government is not in the grain storage business any more. This creates a need immediately for on- farm grain storage."

Throughout the midwest, a great number of small grain elevators have closed down for one reason or another. This, too, has created a storage need.

Grain storage and drying equipment is an important capital decision, Wright said. Just a small grain drying and storage set- up can cost $10,000 or more. A farm financial advisor can help in this type of decision making.

"But the point to be made is this," Wright said, "more farmers are putting their capital into grain storage units. They are positioning themselves in the market with on- farm storage. They are becoming better prepared as marketers of their cash grain crops."

Committee nominations received

BENTON— Farmers are reminded that the Scott County ASCS Office is now receiving nominations for ASC community election candidates. Kenneth E. Vowels, county executive director, encourages farmers to use this opportunity to nominate their farm neighbors as candidates in the ASC Committee election.

The ASC election will be conducted by mail from Nov. 22 to Dec. 2. Eligible farm voters will be provided with instructions for filling out the secret ballot and returning it to the county ASCS office.

Most resident farmers are eligible to hold office as ASC committeemen. If a farmer would like detailed information concerning eligibility requirements, he or she should contact the county ASCS office.

In filling out a petition, farmers should be careful to include the name of only one nominee, the signatures of at least three eligible ASC voters who support the nominee, and certification that the nominee is willing to serve if elected. Petitions must contain this information; without it, they will not be accepted. The complete petition should be dated and mailed or hand-delivered to the county ASCS office no later than October 29.

ASC committee elections are open to all eligible ASC voters without regard to race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. Vowels said any concerned farmer with an interest in serving fellow producers would be an asset to the ASC Committee. For this reason, farmers are urged to petition for the farmers of their choice. The individual producer will benefit in the long run from a responsible, concerned team of ASC committeemen in the local administration of U. S. government farm programs, Vowels said.

BUFFALO HAVE HEARD ABOUT THERMAL HEAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Americans in general are just now waking up to the possibilities of thermal heat and power, Yellowstone Park buffalo have been benefiting from it for generations.

A National Park Service report says that hot springs in the park are largely responsible for the survival of this country's only wild buffalo herd. Reduced to 23 animals in 1901, the herd now numbers over 800.

COLUMBIA — Gather up those old tires, bags of dirt , heavy boards and that plastic sheeting. It's time to save some silage.

"A cover for that trench or bunker silo is a bargain," claims Fred Meinershagen, University of Missouri-Columbia dairy specialist.

"The 4-mill- thick plastic sheeting has probably doubled in price in the last year, but the silage is worth a lot more, too.

"Without a cover, every inch of spoilage you see next winter represents the remains of what was 6 to 7 inches of good forage at ensiling time."

Meinershagen says the cover for a trench or bunker silo will pay if . . .

— It is covered immediately after filling, not two to three days later.

"Unless you can keep wind from blowing across the silage," says Meinershagen, "carbon dioxide will escape into the atmosphere, causing fermentation and spoilage."

So bring on the old tires, bags of dirt, etc.

"The best material to hold the plastic cover in place is, by far, about 3 or 4 inches of limestone or dirt," says Meinershagen. "But the work required to remove it next winter will likely discourage you from ever using it again.

Research at the University of Missouri-Columbia's Delta Center shows fungicides applied directly to the seed boosted yields as much as 15 bushels per acre. In-furrow treatments were even better, boosting production up to 27 bushels an acre.

"By applying fungicides directly to the seed rather than through the hopper box you get better coverage of the seed and better protection in the soil," reports Chuck Baldwin, Delta Center plant pathologist. "The in-furrow method works even better because you can put more chemical in the soil -- two or three times the amount of fungicide applied directly on the seed."

Cost for the in-furrow treatment runs about $3 or $4 an acre. Direct seed treatment costs even less, because less fungicide is used.

Only two fungicides have been cleared so far for in-furrow treatment: Captan and Demosfan. Several have been cleared for seed treatment.

Chemicals protect the soybeans from seedling diseases such as pythium, phytophthora, rhizoctonia and early season infections of charcoal rot and southern blight.

"These chemicals serve as insurance to the soybean grower," notes Baldwin. "This means they will be able to decrease planting cost and seeding rates and still increase yields."

CAPE GIRARDEAU --Navy Sabbath '74 is being observed this weekend (Oct. 11- 13), with a theme of "Peace Is a Shared Task."

Lt. Cmdr. J.W. Dowdy, commanding officer of the Cape Girardeau Naval Reserve Center, states that the purpose of the observance is to seek spiritual support for members of the Navy -Marine Corps team and their families.

This year's theme symbolizes the inseparable fact, that in today's world, realization of peace requires that the United States maintain a strong and effective armed force.

Clergymen and congregations are requested to remember the men and women of the Navy and Marine Corps and their families during services on Navy Sabbath weekend.

Locally, the U.S. Coast Guard and the Cape Girardeau Naval Reserve Center are working cooperatively in sponsoring an open house aboard the USS Fox Glove. The USS Fox Glove is a Coast Guard vessel, 112 feet long with a 116- foot barge attached. On Saturday it will be used as the Reserve Center for training pruposes prior to the open house.

Open house aboard the USS Fox Glove has been set to begin at 1 p.m., and it will be located in the Mississippi River at the foot of Broadway in Cape Girardeau.

The public is invited to the open house. Recruiters from the Naval Reserve and Coast Guard will be on hand.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"We do not even know how we ought to pray, but through our inarticulate groans the Spirit himself is pleading for us." (Romans 8:26)

PRAYER: Lord, bring comfort and certainty to us in our groping. Grant us the grace to accept Your answer when we don't understand it or when You say No to one of our fondest dreams. For Your love's sake. Amen.

MARSTON — A dedication program and open house for the C. M. Barnes Community Center is scheduled Sunday following a carry-in covered- dish dinner open to the public at noon in the center's community meeting room.

An annex connecting the city hall and the community building was recently completed as a result of a joint expansion and improvement project funded by the Civic Improvement Club, the Senior Citizens Club and the city.

Both buildings were given to the city by heirs of the estate of the late C. M. Barnes, a prominent landowner and one of the leading pioneer families in the city.

The dedication program will open with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and an invocation by the Rev. B. J. Baldwin, pastor of Evergreen Missionary Baptist Church.

Miss Jeannette Haubold will extend welcoming remarks and introduce special guests, then "Bless This House" will be sung.

Comments on the project will be presented by Mrs. Alma Mahar, president of the Senior Citizens Club, and Mrs. Bobbie Williams, president of the Civic Improvement Club.

"God Bless America" will be sung prior to dedicatory remarks and presentation of Jack Mahar.

The program will close with a benediction by the Rev. Vaughn Marsden, pastor of the United Methodist Church.

5. A candidate shall establish specific expenditure limitations upon any political committee whose expenditures, if made, would be attributable to the candidate for the purpose of this act, and may limit the total dollar amount of anonymous contributions which a committee may accept on the candidate's behalf as provided for in subsections 2 and 3 of Section 4 of this act. Such specific expenditure limitations must be in writing and delivered to the treasurer of the committee.

6. Expenditures made by a committee in opposition to a candidate shall not be attributed to any candidate or to any committee supporting a candidate for the purpose of compliance with the provisions of this section, provided the Commission determines that such expenditures were not made for the purpose of supporting another candidate or candidates, but all contributions and expenditures of such committee shall be reported in accordance with the requirements of Section 7 of this act.

Section 4. 1. No annoymous contribution of more than five dollars shall be made by any person and no anonymous contribution or more than five dollars shall be accepted by any candidate or political committee. If any anonymous contribution of more than five dollars is received, it shall immediately be returned to the contributor, if known and if the contributor is not known, the candidate or political committee treasurer shall immediately transmit that portion of the contribution which exceeds five dollars to the state treasurer, and therupon that portion of the anonymous contribution shall escheat to the state. Candidates and committee treasurers shall keep with their accounts, records of each anonymous contribution received, and each transmitted to the state treasurer, including the amount thereof, the date received and the date transmitted.

2. The maximum aggregate amount of anonymous contributions which may be accepted by any candidate, and by political committees supporting his candidacy shall be five hundred dollars, or one percent of the spending limitation set forth in Section 3 of this act for the candidate whichever is higher. In computing the total anonymous contributions which have been received for the support of a candidate, all anoymous contributions received by the candidate, and by political committees supporting his candidacy, shall be considered. If any anonymous contribution is received which exceeds the foregoing limitation on anonymous contribution, it shall immediately be returned to the contributor, if known, and if the contributor is not known, the candidate or political committee treasurer shall immediately transmit the contribution to the state treasurer, and thereupon such anonymous contribution shall escheat to the state.

3. Any funds which are contributed to a candidate or political committee which have been raised or collected in such a fashion by any person that the actual or beneficial contributor or contributors are not known (such as might occur when a voluntary contribution is taken up at an organization meeting) shall not be considered as anonymous contributions in computing the total amount of anonymous contributions which have been received by a candidate or committee, provided that such collected funds do not exceed one hundred dollars, and provided further that such collected funds shall be designated as having been contributed through the person who transmitted such funds to the candidate or committee. Such person shall submit, with such funds, a written statement setting forth when, where, and in what manner he collected such funds. No more than three percent of the candidate's total expenditure limitation as set forth in Section 3 of this act may be contributed in this manner. Any contribution over one hundred dollars raised in this manner or any amount in excess of three percent of the candidate's total expenditure limitation as set forth in Section 3 of this act may be contributed in this manner. Any contribution over one hundred dollars raised in this manner or any amount in excess of three percent of the candidate's total expenditure limitation as set forth in Section 3 of this act, raised in this manner, shall be transmitted by the candidate or political committee treasurer to the state treasurer, and escheat to the state.

4. A contribution made on behalf of another, or at the direction of another, or for the benefit of another, must be disclosed as such, and be made in both the name of the direct contributor and the beneficial owner of the contribution.

5. No labor organization, bank, trust company, or corporation, wherever organized, except not-for-profit corporations as defined in Chapter 355 RSMo whose articles of incorporation expressly authorize the exercise of any of the functions of a political committee as defined in this act, shall, directly or indirectly, make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any primary, general, or special election in support of or in opposition to any candidate or political committee, provided that nothing herein shall prohibit any individual or number of individuals who may be employees or members of a labor organization, bank trust company or corporation from acting singly or collectively on behalf of a candidate or candidates or political party or committee and from making contributions to a separate segregated fund to be utilized for political purposes by a corporation or labor organization provided that any such action or contribution is voluntary on their part and provided further, that it shall be unlawful for such a fund to make a contribution or expenditure by utilizing money or anything of value secured by physical force, job discrimination, financial reprisals, or the threat of force, job discrimination, or financial reprisal, or by dues, fees, or other monies required as a condition of membership in a labor organization or as a condition of employment, or by monies obtained in any commercial transaction.

6. No person shall make a cash contribution in the amount of fifty dollars or more unless the contribution is accompanied by a contribution statement on a form approved by the Commission. Such statement shall include:

(1) The full name and mailing address of the contributor;

(2) The date on which the contribution was made and the exact amount of the contribution;

(3) The name of the person who received the contribution on behalf of the candidate or political committee;

(4) The signature of the contributor.

One copy of the statement shall be given to the contributor, one copy retained by the candidate or the treasurer of the political committee, and one copy attached to the report required in Section 7 to be filed with the appropriate officer.

7. No candidate, member of the candidate's immediate family, or political committee supporting the candidacy of a candidate may make contributions in connection with the candidate's campaign for nomination or election to public office which would cause the aggregate amount of contributions or expenditures from the personal funds of the candidate and his immediate family to exceed:

(1) Thirty-five thousand dollars for candidates for public office filled by the voters at a state-wide election;

(2) For all other candidates, twenty-five thousand dollars or the candidate's total expenditure limitation as provided in subsection 2 of Section 3, whichever is the lesser amount.

8. No person other than a candidate or member of his immediate family shall make a contribution to a candidate or to a political committee acting in support of a candidate which would cause the aggregate amount contributed by that person to any one candidate or committees acting in his behalf to exceed ten thousand dollars in any one election or twenty percent of the total expenditure limitation for any elective office as provided in Section 3 of this act, whichever is less. In any calendar year, no person shall contribute, in the aggregate, more than fifty thousand dollars to all candidates and political committees covered by this act, and all political parties as that term is used and defined in Chapter 120, RSMo.

9. It is unlawful for any person to make a contribution or expenditure which exceeds the respective limitation applicable to such person as specified in subsections 7 and 8 of this section. Any person found guilty of violating the provisions of this subsection shall, in addition to other penalties provided by this act, pay to the state a sum equal to three times the amount the person contributed or expended in excess of the amount permitted; and each political committee which received such a contribution shall transmit any amount in excess of the amount permitted to the state treasurer with such amount to escheat to the state.

10. No candidate and no political committee shall accept a contribution of more than one hundred dollars in support of or in opposition to a candidate for public office from a political committee located within or without this state unless the contribution is accompanied by a written statement setting forth the full name and address of each person who contributed more than twenty-five dollars of the contribution and certified as true and correct by an officer of the contributing political committee.

Section 5. 1. Each political committee shall appoint a treasurer, who may be the candidate. No contributions shall be received or expenditures made to support or oppose a candidate by a political committee until the political committee certifies to the appropriate officer:

(1) The name and address of its treasurer, and

(2) The candidate or candidates it supports or opposes, and

(3) The name and address of its bank depository.

2. A committee which supports a candidate must notify the candidate of its support, and must provide the candidate with the same information required by this section to be sent to the appropriate officer, at the same time such report is made.

3. No contributions shall be received or expenditures made by a political committee except by or through the treasurer of the political committee.

4. A political committee may, with or without cause, remove its treasurer. In the event of the resignation or removal of a treasurer, the accounts and records shall be transferred in accordance with sound accounting principles and a closeout report signed by both the outgoing treasurer and the successor filed with the appropriate officer. The closeout report shall include total expenditures during the period in which the treasurer was in charge of the committee's accounts and records and total assets and liabilities at time of transfer to the successor. If the outgoing treasurer refuses to certify the closeout report, and in event of the death of a treasurer, a closeout report shall be signed by the successor and filed with appropriate officer and containing, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the information required in this subsection. The treasurer of each political committee shall certify on the basis of his knowledge and belief the correctness of each statement and report required to be filed under this act. The treasurer shall have the duty to exercise due diligence to assure the accuracy of each such report and statement. Failure to so certify or to excerise such due diligence is a violation of this act.

5. No political committee may expend funds on behalf of any candidate unless it has notified the candidate of the committee's intention to make such expenditures and has received from the candidate the specific expenditure limitations pursuant to subsection 5 of Section 3, except as permitted in subsection 4 of Section 3. The committee shall not spend more than the amount authorized by the candidate to be spent in behalf of his candidacy, and such expenditures shall constitute a violation of this act by the political committee. A candidate shall not be liable for, and shall not have attributed to him, any expenditures in excess of the restrictions he has placed upon the political committee.

6. If a candidate has more than one committee supporting his candidacy, he shall designate an official committee and shall file such designation with the appropriate officer, and all other committees and individuals supporting his candidacy shall remit to that committee reports of contributions and expenditures at such intervals as may be specified by the candidate. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 8 of this act permitting a committee to exempt itself from the requirements of this act regarding the filling of reports with the appropriate officer, if more than one committee accepts contributions or makes expenditures on behalf of a candidate, any such committee other than the official committee, whether or not exempt, shall furnish to the official committee, not later than five days prior to the time the official committee is required to make any report required by Section 7 of this act, a written report containing all of the information required by Section 6 of this act.

7. Any expenditures for advertising or other promotional efforts or activities by a political committee on behalf of more than one candidate shall be attributable to the various candidates on a pro rata basis, in accordance with rules and regulations promulgated by the elections commission for the purpose of making such equitable assessments. Any advertising which does not endorse or support a particular candidate or candidates, but merely urges support for a certain political party when made by a political committee or political party, shall be deemed to promote the party, and shall not be assignable, even on a pro rata basis, to the candidates of the political party, but shall be reported in accordance with the provisions of Section 7 of this act.

Section 6. 1. Each candidate and each political committee shall maintain records and accounts which shall include:

(1) An itemized listing of all contributions received by the candidate or committee, the name and address of each contributor, the amount contributed, the date the contribution was received, and, if the contributor is a member of the candidate's immediate family, as that term is defined by this act, a statement indicating such relationship; and

(2) An itemized listing of all expenditures made by the candidate and committee, the name and address of the persons to whom the amounts were paid or promised, the purpose for which the expenditures were made, and the date of the expenditures; and

(3) An itemized listing of all anonymous contributions received by the candidate or committee, including those accepted, those returned to the donor, and those transmitted to the state treasurer, the amount of each such contribution, and if transmitted to the state treasurer, the date on which it was transmitted.

2. Each candidate who receives contributions and each committee shall open and maintain at least one savings or checking account in its own name in not more than one state or federal bank or savings institution located withing the state of Missouri, and deposit therein all contributions received. A candidate shall notify the appropriate officer of the name and address of his depository at the same time, and together with, the report required to be filed by candidates thirty days prior to an election.

3. Each candidate and each committee shall keep its campaign accounts current at least within ten days of the receipt of any contribution or the incurring of any expense. This requirement shall not exempt any candidate or committee, however, from the reporting requirements of this act which impose stricter accounting during periods immediately before a report must be filed. Candidates and committees shall comply with normal and accepted bookkeeping procedures, and with rules and regulations regarding such procedures as may be adopted by the Commission in furtherance of the provisions of this act. Any contribution not recorded as required by the provisions of this act shall be treated as any anonymous contribution exceeding the limitation and shall be transmitted immediately to the state treasurer and shall escheat to the state.

4. Any contribution which is offered, tendered, or received by a candidate or political committee and which is rejected by the recipient and returned to the donor within ten days need not be recorded or reported by the candidate or political committee pursuant to this act. Any rejected contribution not so returned to the donor within ten days shall be recorded and reported in the same manner as other contributions.

5. All records of contributions and expenditures shall be kept by each candidate and treasurer at least two years after the date of election to which the accounts refer, or at least two years after the last supplemental statement is filed under the provisions of this act, whichever is later, and the Commission and its duly authorized representatives may inspect such records at any time. At the written demand of the Commission a candidate or treasurer shall retain such records until an audit has been completed by the Commission, but such demand shall not require the retention of records for more than four years from the election.

6. The treasurer of a committee shall be responsible for complying with the requirements of this section regarding committees.

Section 7. 1. Every candidate shall file reports in writing with the appropriate officer, at the times prescribed in Section 9. The reports shall be subscribed and sworn to by the candidate before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth in detail all contributions received and expenditures made by the candidate in endeavoring to secure his nomination or election. Each report shall set forth:

(1) An itemized listing of all contributions received by the candidate including transfers of funds from the candidate's previous campaign fund, the name and address of each contributor, the amount contributed, and the date the contribution was received; the names and addresses of persons who contributed an aggregate amount of twenty-five dollars or less need not be listed in the report, and instead may be grouped as one item and so identified;

(2) An itemized listing of all expenditures made by the candidate, the name and address of the person to whom the amounts were paid or promised, the purpose for which the expenditures were made, and the date of the expenditures; and

(3) An itemized listing of any anonymous contributions which were transmitted to the state treasurer, the amount of each such contribution, and the date transmitted.

(4) A specific itemized listing of any business or investment in which the candidate or the candidate's spouse or minor children have a financial interest in excess of one thousand dollars.

(5) A specific listing of the source, by name and address, of any gifts or income in excess of one hundred dollars received by the candidate or the candidate's spouse or minor children during the preceding twelve months or the time of the last report, whichever is later.

(6) A specific listing of the source, by name and address, of any gifts, salaries, fees, or other income which for the twelve month period preceding the filing date individually or in the aggregate exceeds five hundred dollars which has been paid on behalf of or for services rendered by the candidate to any sole proprietorship, partnership or corporation in which the candidate or the candidate's spouse holds an interest of ten percent or more.

2. Every political committee shall file reports in writing with the appropriate officer, at the times as prescribed in Section 9. The reports shall be subscribed and sworn to by the treasurer of the committee before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth in detail all contributions received and expenditures made by the committee in endeavoring to support or oppose any candidate's nomination or election. All contributions to and expenditures of a political party shall be reported by that party under the provisions of this subsection. Each report shall set forth:

(1) The amount on hand at the beginning of the reporting period and an itemized listing of all contributions received by the committee, the name and address of each contributor, if known, the amount contributed, and the date the contribution was received; the names and addresses of persons who contributed an aggregate amount of twenty-five dollars or less need not be listed in the report and instead may be grouped as one item and so identified;

(2) The amount owed at the beginning of the reporting period and an itemized listing of all expenditures made by the committee, the name and address of the person to whom the amounts were paid or promisted, the purpose for which the expenditure was made, and the date of the expenditure; and

(3) An itemized listing of any anonymous contributions which were transmitted to the state treasurer, the amount of each such contribution, and the date transmitted; and

(4) The report filed by the official committee, additionally, shall include a summary of all reports made to it by other political committees, indicating the amounts contributed to and expended by each.

3. If the candidate or official political committee supporting a successful candidate fails to file the statements required in this section, the appropriate officer shall not issue the certificate of election, and the candidate shall be prohibited from taking the office, without regard to the outcome of the election, and if the candidate takes office before thirty days after the election he shall file his final report before taking office notwithstanding the provisions of Section 9 of this act.

Section 8. 1. The provisions of this act regarding the reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures shall not apply to any candidate or to any political committee acting for, on behalf of, or in favor of any candidate if the candidate or political committee does not in the aggregate receive or expend more than five hundred dollars for any election and files the exemption affidavit required by this subsection. However, this exemption from reporting does not excuse a candidate or committee from complying with all other requirements of this act. If a candidate or political committee desires to be exempt from the reporting provisions of this act, the candidate or the treasurer of the committee shall, not later than thirty days prior to the date of the election, file a notice with the appropriate officer, of its intention to be exempt from the reporting provisions and it shall be exempt. No political committee may file such exemption affidavit without prior written approval of the candidate or candidates it supports. Only one political committee supporting a candidate may elect to be exempted from the reporting provisions of this section, unless the candidate has elected to be exempt from the reporting provisions, in which case no political committee supporting such a candidate may elect the exemption. The appropriate officer shall not accept more than one exemption affidavit per candidate, from either the candidate or from any committee supporting his candidacy.

2. Any candidate or committee filing such affidavit shall not expend more than five hundred dollars for such election, and all contributions received by the candidate or political committee which would make the total amount of contributions received by the candidate or political committee exceed five hundred dollars shall immediately be treated as if they were excess anonymous contributions and be returned to the contributor or transmitted to the state treasurer.

3. If, after filing the exemption affidavit provided for by this section, the candidate or political committee subsequently determines it does not desire to be exempt from the reporting requirements of this act, or that it desires to receive contributions or make expenditures of more than five hundred dollars for any one election, it may file a notice with the appropriate officer of its rejection of such exemption; however, such rejection shall not be filed later than the seventh day prior to the election. The rejection of the exemption shall be accompanied by a full and complete report of all contributions and expenditures, as the candidate or committee would have been required to make under the provisions of Section 9 of this act on the thirtieth day prior to the election, and all other reporting requirements shall be complied with.

Section 9. 1. Reports required by Section 7 of this act shall be filed:

(1) not later than forty days before the date of an election covered by this act for the period ending on the forty-fifth day before the election, and

(2) not later than seven days before the date of an election covered by this act for the period ending on the twelfth day before the election, and

(3) not later than thirty days after an election covered by this act for the period ending on the date of the preparation of the report which date shall be no later than the twenty-fifth day after the election.

2. For a candidate, the period covered in the report required to be filed no later than forty days before an election shall begin on the day on which he became a candidate, as that term is defined in Section 2 of this act. The reports required to be filed not later than seven days before an election and not later than thirty days after election and any supplemental reports required in subsection 7 of this section shall be cumulative reports, and the period covered by each report shall begin on the closing date of the candidate's last report, if the candidate has filed previously, or if the candidate has not filed previously, the date on which he became a candidate as defined in this act.

3. For a political committee organized for the sole purpose of influencing the result of an election covered by this act, the period covered in the report required to be filed not later than forty days before an election shall begin on the date of the committee's organization. The reports required to be filed not later than seven days prior to an election and not later than thirty days after an election and any supplemental reports required by subsection 7 of this section shall be cumulative reports, and the period covered by each report shall begin on the closing date of the committee's last report if the committee has filed previously, or if the committee has not filed previously, the date of the committee's organization.

4. For any committee or subcommittee of a political party, as that term is defined in Chapter 120 RSMo, each report required to be filed by this section shall be a cumulative report and shall be for the period beginning with the closing date of the last report required to be filed under the provisions of this act. If the political party committee or subcommittee was established after January 1 of the year in which the report is being filed, the beginning date of the period covered in the committee's first report filed under this act shall be the date on which the committee or subcommittee was organized or established.

5. For all other political committees, not covered by subsections 3 and 4 of this section, each report required to be filed by this section shall be a cumulative report and shall be for the period beginning with the closing date of the last report required to be filed under the provisions of this act. If no previous report has been filed, the report shall be for the period beginning on the date the committee was organized but no earlier than two years prior to the election pertinent to the report being filed.

6. Beginning with the effective date of this act, each committee or subcommittee of any political party, as that term is defined in Chapter 120 RSMo, shall file an annual statement of all receipts and expenditures with the appropriate officer on the thirty-first day of January of each year for the period of January 1 through December 31 of the preceding year. The annual report required by this subsection shall be in addition to the reports required by subsection 1 of this section and shall include all the information required in subsection 2 of Section 7 of this act.

7. If the statement required to be filed not later than thirty days after an election by a candidate or by a committee described in subsection 3 or subsection 5 of this section shows a deficit or surplus in excess of one hundred dollars, or if additional contributions or expenditures in excess of one hundred dollars are received or made, a supplemental report shall be filed with the appropriate officer between the eighty-fifth and the ninetieth day following the election and every ninety days thereafter until the accounts show no deficit or surplus in excess of one hundred dollars, or until four years have passed since the election. The supplemental report shall not be required, however, for candidates for a general election who have won a primary election and are required to file reports for such general election, nor for committees supporting such candidates unless the committee has been disbanded or does not participate in the general election campaign.

8. Any report which is mailed to the appropriate officer, properly addressed and with proper postage, at least one day prior to the dates set forth in this act for the filing of reports, shall be deemed to have been mailed properly and to have been received by the appropriate officer in the ordinary course of business if mailed from within the state of Missouri, whether or not the report is actually received by the appropriate officer on the given date set forth in this act.

Section 10. 1. The Secretary of State shall assist the Commission and promptly supply the commission with copies of all materials pertaining to this act and further shall:

(1) Develop, with the approval of the Commission, forms for reports, statements and other information required to be filed by this act, and shall furnish such forms to persons required to file reports and statements under this act together with a summary of the major provisions of Chapter 129 RSMo;

(2) Prepare, with the approval of the Commission, publish, and furnish to the persons required to file such reports and statements a manual setting forth recommended uniform methods of bookkeeping and reporting;

(3) Develop a filing, coding, and cross-indexing system consonant with the purposes of this act;

(4) Make the reports and statements filed with him available for public inspection and copying, commencing as soon as practicable but not later than the end of the second day after which it was received, and permit copying of any such report or statement by hand or by duplicating machine, as requested by any person, at the expense of such person, but no information copied from such reports and statements shall be sold or utilized by any person for the purpose of soliciting contributions or for any commercial purpose;

(5) Preserve such reports and statements for a period of not less than ten years from the date of receipt;

(6) Compile and maintain a current list of all statements or parts of statements pertaining to each candidate;

(7) From reports filed with him prepare and publish an annual report including compilations of amounts contributed and expended for the influencing of nominations and elections according to such categories as determined by the Commission;

(8) From reports filed with him, prepare and publish such other reports as he may deem appropriate;

(9) Disseminate statistics, summaries, and reports prepared under this act;

(10) Examine each report and statement filed with his office under the requirements of this act to determine if the statements are properly completed and filed within the time required by this act;

(11) Notify a person required to file a report or statement under this act immediately if, upon examination of the official ballot or other circumstances surrounding any election, it appears that the person has failed to file a report or statement as required by law;

(12) If, in the course of examining each report or upon examination of the official ballot or other circumstances surrounding any election, it appears that the requirements of this act have been violated, promptly present such findings to the Commission.

Section 11. 1. There is hereby created and established the Missouri Elections Commission which shall be composed of six members, not more than three of whom shall be members of the same political party. Members of the Commission shall be nominated by the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri in panels of three for each vacancy, and appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate. Two of the original members shall be appointed for a term of two years, two for a term of four years, and two for a term of six years, and thereafter the terms of members shall be for six years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. Any individual chosen to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the member whom he shall succeed. In the appointment of members, there shall be included in each of the two, four, and six year term appointments a member of the political party polling the highest number of votes at the last general election for governor and a member of the party polling the second highest number of votes for governor at said election. An individual appointed to serve an unexpired term shall be of the same political party as the member whom he shall succeed.

2. The original members of the Commission shall be nominated within thirty days after the effective date of this act, and the commission members shall not assume office nor exercise any of the duties or powers granted to the Commission by this act until all six original members have been appointed. Prior to thirty days before the expiration of the term of a Commission member and within thirty days after the occurrence of a vacancy in an unexpired term, the Supreme Court shall nominate three individuals for each vacancy in an unexpired term, the Supreme Court shall nominate three individuals for each vacancy. No vacancy in the Commission membership shall remain unfilled for longer than sixty days.

3. The Governor, with the consent of two-thirds of both houses of the Gneral Assembly, may remove any member of the Commission, but only for cause.

4. No current public official shall be appointed to membershp on the Commission. No person shall hold, or be a candidate for, public or political party office during his or her membership on the Commission.

5. The Commission shall annually elect one member to serve as chairman of the Commission and one member to serve as vice-chairman. The vice-chairman shall act as chairman in the absence or disability of the chairman or in the event of a vacancy in that office, and four members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum. The Commission shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

6. Each member of the Commission shall receive, as full compensation for his services, the sum of fifty dollars per day for each full day actually spent on the work of the Commission, and his actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of duty pertaining to his office, and no commissioner shall receive any compensation, either directly or indirectly, for his services except as herein provided.

7. All members, officers, agents, attorneys and employees of the Commission shall be subject to the provisions set forth in chapter 36.150, RSMo prohibiting political activity of state employees.

8. The Commission shall be assigned to the office of the Secretary of State. Supervision by the Secretary of State shall be limited to budgeting and shall not extend to subtantive matters relating to policies or regulative and enforcement functions.

Section 12. The Commission shall administer this act, and in connection therewith shall:

1. Appoint an executive director who shall serve at the pleasure of the Commission. The executive director shall be responsible for the administrative operations of the Commission and shall perform such other duties as are assigned by regulations or orders of the Commission, but the Commission shall not delegate the making of rules and regulations to the executive director. The Commission shall fix the compensation of the executive director and other employees within the limits of appropriations to the Commission;

2. Promulgate rules and regulations to carry out the policies and purposes of this act and approve the forms and manuals to be prepared and published by the Secretary of State;

3. As it deems necessary, audit reports and statements required to be filed under the provisions of this act to determine if the reports and statements conform to the requirements of law and to the truth, and when it deems necessary, audit reports and statements filed with other appropriate officers;

4. Upon written complaint of any citizen or upon its own motion or upon findings reported to the Commission by the Secretary of State, investigate and report apparent violations of this act to the appropriate law enforcement authorities;

5. If no legal action has been instituted by the appropriate law enforcement authorities within fifteen calendar days following a report of violation by the Commission to said enforcement authorities, commence in its own name legal action for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this act;

6. Prepare and publish an annual report to the Governor and the General Assembly concerning the actions it has taken, the names, salaries and duties of all its employees, the money it has disbursed, the effectiveness of this act and its enforcement by appropriate law enforcement authorities;

7. Compile and maintain a list of all Commission reports and statements;

8. Prepare and publish such other reports as it may deem appropriate;

9. With the assistance of the Secretary of State, take care to see that public information concerning the requirements of the act is available in advance of and during election campaigns covered by this act.

Section 13. The commission is empowered to:

1. From time to time make, amend, and rescind such rules and regulations as are necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, including rules governing statements and reports and defining any terms whether or not used in this act insofar as the definitions are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. For the purposes of rules, regulations and forms, the Commission may classify persons and matters within its jurisdiction and may prescribe different requirements for different classes;

(1) No rule, form or regulation may be made, amended, or rescinded, unless the Commission finds that the action is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the purpose fairly intended by the policy and provisions of this act.

(2) No provision of this act imposing any liability applies to any act done or omitted in good faith in conformity with any rule, regulation or form of the Commission, notwithstanding that the rule, regulation or form may later be amended or rescinded or be determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for any reason.

2. Issue, upon request, and publish advisory opinions upon the requirements of this act, based on a real or hypothetical set of circumstances.

3. File for such injunctive or other equitable relief as may be appropriate, in the Circuit Court of the county in which the violation is occurring or threatened, or in which the candidate resides, upon determining to the Commission's satisfaction that violations are occurring or threatened.

4. Commence in its name and prosecute any action under this act in the county where any violation may occur.

Section 14. 1. The Commission in its discretion may:

(1) Make such public or private investigations and insepctions within or outside of this state as it deems necessary to determine whether any person has violated or is about to violate any provisions of this act or any rule or regulation hereunder, or to aid in the enforcement of this act or in the prescribing of rules hereunder.

(2) Require or permit any person to file a statement in writing, under oath or otherwise as the Commission determines, as to all the facts and circumstances concerning the matter to be investigated, and

(3) Publish information concerning any violation of this act or any rule or regulation hereunder.

2. For the purpose of any investigation or proceeding under this act, the Commission or any officer designated by it may administer oaths and affirmations, subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance, take evidence, and require the production of any books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, agreements or other documents or records which the Commission deems relevant or material to the inquiry.

3. In case of contumacy by, or refusal to obey a subpoena issued to any person, the Circuit Court of any county of the state or the City of St. Louis, upon application by the Commission, may issue to the person an order requiring him to appear before the Commission, or the officer designated by it, there to produce documentary evidence if so ordered or to give evidence touching the matter under investigation or in question. Failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt of court.

4. It shall be the duty of all officers of the State of Missouri charged with the enforcement of criminal law to render and furnish to the Commission when requested all information and assistance in their possession and in their power.

5. All investigations and hearings by the Commission prior to the election in which a candidate is participating shall be strictly confidential. Revealing any information in violation of this provision shall be cause for removal from the Commission in the case of a commissioner, or reason for termination of employment, in the case of a Commission employee.

6. The prosecuting attorney of any county or the City of St. Louis may investigate and prosecute any violation of this act with or without the prior written request of the Commission, or the Commission may so act upon its own initiative, or the Commission may request action by the Attorney General, to secure compliance with the provisions of this act.

Section 15. Whenever an action is brought by the Commission or by the Attorney General or the prosecuting attorney in any county or the City or St. Louis for violation of this act in a court of proper jurisdiction, the action shall have preference on the docket of any court in which the same is pending over all other civil actions whatever, and the court may upon a finding of violation grant injunctive or other equitable relief as may be appropriate. Such relief may include the following sanctions:

1. If the court finds that a successful candidate in any election has willfully violated any provision of this act in seeking election to public office, the result of said election may be held void and a special election, to be called by the Governor, held within sixty days of such findings, where constitutionally possible. In cases where such action is not constitutionally permissible, such successful candidate shall be denied the right to be a candidate for public office for ten years from the date of such findings. Any action to void an election shall be commenced within one year of the election in question. It is intended that this remedy be imposed freely in all appropriate cases to protect the right of the electorate to an informed and knowledgeable vote.

2. If action is instituted prior to the election and the Court finds that the candidate has willfully failed to file the reports or statements required by this act or has filed reports or statements containing any statement which, at the time and in light of the circumstances under which it is made, is false or misleading with respect to any material fact, or which omits to state any material fact necessary in order to make the statements therein not false or misleading or necessary to correct any statement in any earlier such report or statement which has become false or misleading, or has willfully violated any other provisions of this act, the court may order that the candidate shall cease to be such for the office sought and the candidate's name shall not be printed on the official ballot for the election. A vacancy on an official ballot under this section may be filled in the manner provided by law, but not by the same candidate.

Section 16. 1. Any person who violates the provisions of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction may be punished by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars or by confinement in the county jail for a term of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

2. Any person found guilty of making an illegal compaign contribution contrary to the provisions of this act shall, in addition to all other penalties provided by law, be fined in an amount equal to the amount of the illegal contribution.

3. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 541.210 RSMo(1969) barring prosecutions for any offenses other than a felony unless commenced within one year after the commission of the offense, any offense under this act may be prosecuted if the indictment be found or prosecution be instituted within four years after the commission of the alleged offense.

Section 17. Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this act, candidates for the office of United States Senator and for the office of United States Representative, and committees formed to support or oppose such candidates shall be deemed to have fully complied with the provisions of this act if copies of all election statements and reports which are required by federal law to be filed with appropriate federal officials are filed with the Secretary of State, at the same time that they are filed with federal officials, and if all books and records relating thereto are kept in accordance with federal law. The Missouri Elections Commission may, however, cooperate with appropriate federal officials in investigating any alleged violation of such federal laws.

Section 18. If any provision of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity shall not affect other provisions of applications of this act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this act are declared severable.

Section 19. This act shall become effective on January 1, 1975. Notwithstanding any other provisions to the contrary, none of the provisions of this act are retroactive prior to the effective date of this act.

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered America.

On this date—

In 1947, the American flag was lowered on Corregidor as that fortress rock was transferred to the Republic of the Philippines.

Ten years ago: Army forces took control in South Vietnam, ousting the government of Major General Nguyen Khanh in a bloodless coup.

Thought for today: I have never taken any exercise except sleeping and resting — Mark Twain, American humorist, 1835-1910.

Chaffee schools to observe lunch week

CHAFFEE — Chaffee public schools will observe National School Lunch Week Oct. 14-18.

Each year the Secretary of Agriculture, by joint resolution of Congress, designates the second week of October as National School Lunch Week. The theme for this year is "You Are What You Eat".

The menu for this week has been planned by the students at Chaffee Elementary School, assisted by Mrs. Levella Baker, food supervisor, with the exception of Oct. 16, which is Universal Menu Day. Every school that participates in National School Lunch Week will serve the same menu on Wednesday (the menu for the entire week may be found elsewhere in this newspaper.

Parents will be invited to participate as the children will select the parents of one child from each room to eat with them one day during the week.

Board overlooks Nov. 5 election

DEXTER — The Dexter School District had planned to advise district residents to register by Oct. 23 in order to vote in the Nov. 19 school bond election.

However, the school board apparently failed to take into account the Nov. 5 general election. Persons not registered to vote by 5 p.m. Wednesday won't be able to resiter to vote in the school bond election.

Voter registration books in Stoddard County closed at 5 p.m. Wednesday and won't open to residents of the Dexter R-11 School District again until Nov. 20. They closed to comply with state regulations regarding closure before an election — in this case the general election on Nov. 5.

Since the school district is having an election Nov. 19, there is not enough time between it and the general election to open the registration books again.

Other areas of the county will be able to register the day after the general election.

"If there was not a general election on the 5th day of November, they would be exactly right," County Clerk John Marvin Capps said in reference to the school district notice that registration books for its election would close Oct. 23. "But, they will already be in the period when the registration books are closed."

Capps said he had discussed the situation with the school's attorney and told him it would be misleading to publish the Oct. 23 registration deadline. "The statute says there will be no registration during that period," Capps said.

"When you register, you register for all elections, not just a particular election," he continued. "They can publish what election notice they want to, it won't affect registration."

Capps said, however, the miscalculation should not harm the school election. He feels that persons interested in voting would have been registered by Wednesday's deadline. Similar circumstances happened earlier this year in Bernie and there were no problems, he said.

Loren Coffey, president of the Dexter board of education, said this morning that the board had set the Oct. 23 registration deadline at its meeting last Tuesday. They were not aware of the interference of the general election in the normal procedure, according to Coffey.

Penalty could be deducted

CAPE GIRARDEAU --People who don't report changes in circumstances that affect their supplemental security income payments may have a penalty deducted from future payments, according to Gary Eason, Social Security Administration district manager in Cape Girardeau.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. Eligibility for payments and payment amounts can be affected by changes in income, place of residence, marital status and other circumstances.

"People have 30 days to report such changes to any Social Security office," Eason said. "Under the law, failure to report changes -or delay in reporting changes --can mean reductions in supplemental security income payments."

The penalty is $25 for the first failure or delay, $50 for the second and $100 for each subsequent failure or dealy.

"The penalty isn't applied if people couldn't help reporting late or weren't at fault for not reporting changes in their circumstances," Eason said.

"Also, people who make a flase statement that causes them to get money not rightfully due may be prosecuted for fraud," he said.

People getting supplemental security income payments may obtain information about reporting changes in their circumstances by calling or writing any Social Secruity office.

The supplemental security income program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Cape Girardeau Social Office is at 339 Broadway The phone number is 334-5281.

Disease control may help quality

PORTAGEVILLE — How much the cool fall has reduced our soybean crop in the Bootheel is difficult to estimate at this time. Seed development in late planted soybeans has been delayed by thy cool weather. Also, the Oct. 3 frost injured the upper part of the plants which will also affect the yield.

Cotton maturity was also delayed by the cool fall but the frost did not cause as much injury as it did to the soybean crop. Most growers had started or completed defoliation of their crop before the frost. The cotton harvest picked up last week. Some growers are picking more cotton per acre than they had predicted earlier.

The soybean disease monitoring plots were most informative. It was not hard to find diseases in these plots. Pod and stem blight, downy mildew, bacterial blight and purple seed stain were the most prevalent diseases showing up a this time of the year. Cyst and root knot nematodes were found in some of the plots.

Purple seed stain seems to be increasing each year and is reducing the quality of our seed beans. Dr. Baldwin thinks that we can control this disease by applying foliar sprays, like Benlate, during the growing season. It would be worth a try by some of our seed growers.

Purple stain is caused by several species of the fungus cercospora. Cercospora symptoms are quite niticeable the latter part of season on leaves, stems and pods. The cercospora leasions are angular, reddish brown spots about a sixteenth of an inch in diameter.

The discoloration of the seed varies from pink or light purple to dark purple. When diseased seed are planted, the fungus grows from the seed coat into the cotyledon and from these into the stems of some of the seedlings. The fungus produces spores on diseased seedlings and are transported to adjacent plants by wind and rains. The leaves, stems and pods of these plants will then develop the disease.

Some varieties show resistance to the disease and seed treatment will prevent a loss of seedlings but will not assure freedom from purple stain in the seed crop. This is why treatment is needed during the growing season, according to Dr. Baldwin.

Mathew Killroy was one of the nine British redcoats who killed five patriots in the Boston Massacre. Found guilty of manslaughter, his thumb was branded for punishment.

BLOOMFIELD --With the outlook for soybean prices being as good as it is for this year's crop, harvesting the soybean crop so as to hold harvest losses to a minimum will pay big dividends this season.

Extension agents checked harvest losses behind a number of combines in Stoddard County soybean fields during the 1970 and 1971 harvest seasons .

Losses behind the 22 combines involved in the survey ranged form a low of .25 bushel per acre to a high of 7.19 bushels per acre, with the average loss amounting to 2.31 bushels per acre.

Assuming a bean price of $7.50 per bushel, dollar losses on the basis of these bean losses would range from a low of $1.88 per acre to a high of $53.93 per acre for an average loss of $17.33 per acre.

As these figures indicate, doing a good job of harvesting the soybean crop will be a paying proposition.

Harvesting soybeans before they get too dry can mean a saving of an additional bushel per acre or more. One bushel, or 60 pounds, at 13 per cent moisture becomes only 58 pounds if beans are harvested at 10 per cent.

Beans should be combines as soon as possible after moisture content of beans reaches 13 to 14 per cent, and farmers should strive to complete bean harvest before the moisture content reaches 10 per cent, inasmuch as is possible.

An Ohio research study showed that bean losses increased one per cent per day after moisture content dropped below 10 per cent. AAnother bushel per acre or more can usually be gained by taking steps to reduce losses associated with cutting the beans.

The losses which result from shattering, bean pods left below the cutter bar and stalks which do not go into the combine account for approximately 80 per cent of all soybeans harvest losses.

Shattering usually causes the largest loss. Moisture content of the pod and kernel determine the amount of shattering. When shattering becomes excessive, harvesting in the early mornings when stalks are damp will help. Slowere forward combine speeds will also help to reduce shattering.

The combine cutter bar should run below all bean pods if possible. The absence of ridges and slow forward speeds of 2.5 to 3.5 miles per hour make it easier to keep the cutter bar close to the ground. Automatic header control and floating cutter bar devices can be a big help in reducing this type of loss.

The reed, which is the first part of the combine to touch the soybean plant, can cause heavy shattering. The reel tip speed should be equal to or slightly faster than the ground speed of the combine. The reel bats should penetrate just deep enough to control the plants. The reel axial should be adjusted so that it is six to 12 inches ahead of the cutter bar.

The cylinder speed should be set in accordance with recommendations found in the operator's manual that came with your combine. In beans with a moisture content of 12 to 13 per cent or higher, or with damp stalks, the cylinder speeds whould be increased. As soybeans dry, the cylinder speeds whould be reduced, as excessive speeds will crack beans and lower the germination.

The conclave clearance should be set in accordance with recommendations in the operator's manual and is normally not changed as moisture content changes.

A check on harvest losses cna be made by counting the beans in several places behind the combine. A loss of four beans per square foot represents a loss of one bushel per acre. If losses are high, check each of the following: ground speed, cylinder speed and clearance, reel speed and position and the tailings from the combine.

Too much has been invested in the soybean crop in terms of time, hard work and actual dollars to allow excessive harvet losses to rob you of soybean profits which are potentially yours this year.

from Stoddard County he was returned to New Madrid County Sheriff's department. In July he was arrested in Pemiscot County for driving while intoxicated and fraud in connection with bad checks.

At that time it was revealed that Butler was among several New Madrid County prisoners who had alledgedly been working on the farm of New Madrid County Sheriff L. "Cowboy" Ramsey.

Butler was also accused by former New Madrid County prisoners of ordering their beatings while he was serving as a jail trustee, and of supplying liquor to prisoners in the jail.

Upon Butler's arrest Pemiscot County made inquiries to New Madrid County and were told that Butler was supposed to be in a Hayti hospital for treatment of a chronic blood ailment.

Later, New Madrid County Sheriff Ramsey claimed Pemiscot County authoriti s were given the hospitla excuse as a cover -up for Butler, who was a trustee doing undercover work in Pemiscot County. Ramsey sid Butler was trying to uncover leads on some burglaries that had occurrred in New Madrid County.

On Sept. 26 Butler was released from the Pemiscot County jail on his own recognizane pending disposition of a fraud charee. Prosecutor Art Seephenson said he was released due to his medical reports and a recommendation by his do On Oct. 2 Butler was involved in an automobile accident in Dunklin county when a pick- up truck he was driving side -swiped a bridge railing, ran off the highway and struck and embankment. He and a passenger were treated for injuries at athe Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett and Butler later was returned to Pemiscot County, following a hearing in Pemiscot County on Oct. 3 in which he was bound over to circuit court and was returned to New Madrid County.

Truman Farrow of Jackson, who is attempting to unseat Burlison, charged Thursday that the address listed by Burlison as his Cape Girardeau residence is a house owned by Ruth D. Meadows.

Mrs. Meadows, the congressman's sister, admitted owning the property but said her brother's legal residence has been maintained there for several years.

Also denied by Mrs. Meadows was a claim by Farrow that no records are available to prove Burlison's having paid any taxes in Cape Girardeau County since 1969.

Farrow said he is asking Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth to investigate his residency charge.

RISCO --At the Risco city council meeting held Thursday the Mayor, W.W. "Pat" Sherwood proposed an ordinance to authorize issuing $15,000 in bonds for additional consturction of sewage facilities.

In other action by the city council the mayor presented a letter from the Missouri Division of Environmental Quality which advised the city that a filtration plant will be necessary to meet state water quality standards. The mayor and the council agreed to take this matter up as soon as sewer construction is completed.

In other action, the mayor and the council endorsed the Bootheel Redevolopment and Planning Commission flood control program and discussed street and culvert improvement.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A predominantly middle-aged jury was chosen Friday to decide whether five men, including three top aides from Richard Nixon's presidency, joined in a criminal conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

They were told by the judge that theirs was "a high and noble duty" and were admonished to try the case "without bias, prejudice, or sympathy."

The defendants, John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, stood and faced the jury box as the jurors raised their hands in oath.

As the jurors packed their belongings for a three to four month trial, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica unsealed a legal brief in which Nixon's lawyer argued that the former President's health will not permit him to travel for three to six months.

Nixon was subpoenaed as a witness both by Erhlichman and the government.

Citing the phlebitis that put Nixon into a hospital for 11 days recently, the lawyers said:

"It is clear Mr. Nixon cannot comply with the subpoena in the immediate future without impairing this physical condition and creating a potentially very serious risk to his health."

In asking that the subpoena requiring his appearance and documents be dismissed, Nixon's lawyers also claimed the materials are privileged, confidential communications.

Sirica gave attorneys until Wednesday to respond.

The jury make-up reflects the predominantly black Washington community from which it was chosen, including six black woman and two black men.

Five of the jurors are in their 50s three in the 60s, two in the 40s and two in their 20s.

Three of the jurors are retired from government service. The panel also includes a 27year-old logistics coordinator at George Washington University, a 60-year-old hotel doorman and a 68-year-old woman who is unemployed.

The alternates are six black women.

"Your role as jurors is to give each one of these defendants the same kind of fair and impartial trial you would want to receive if you were seated in their place," Judge Sirica said.

Mitchell, 61, was attorney general under Nixon. Haldeman was the White House chief of staff, Ehrlichman the top domestic aide. Parkinson was a lawyer for the 1972 Nixon reelection committee and Mardian was an official.

All are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice by trying to derail official investigations into the involvement of other people in the break-in at Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate office building.

Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD --Several questions from farmers have been coming to the University of Missouri Extension Center recently pertaining to the danger of grazing grain sorghum stubble.

There is danger of prussic acid poisoning of cattle that are grazing stubble of grain sorghum, sundangrass, sorghum -sudan crosses and other sorghum crops. Livestock producers and dairymen should be aware of this danger and take steps to avoid it.

However, in spite of the danger involved, such stalk fields will provide lots of grazing in many cases.

Fall is the season when conditions are usually most favorable for prussica acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drouth and freezing or near freezing temperatures.

Forage crops are likely to be most danngerous when plants are less than 18 inches high.

Farmers should be especially cautions of plants that are wilted following frost. Fields containing such plants may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. Such fields are absolutely safe for grazing after the palnts are dead and thoroughly cured.

Neither sudan grass or sorghum -sedan crosses are dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Visible signs of prussica acid poisoning are labored breathing, spasms or staggering. However, animals sometimes die without showing such symptoms. If cattle become poisoned from prussic acid, they should be removed from the field, and a beterinarian should be called immediately. Treatment must oftenr be admistered quickly to avoid death.
